STOCKS TURN REACTIONARY, THEN CLOSE IRREGULAR

Closing of Tokio Stock Exchange and Denial of Utilities Merger Rumor Precede Selling Wave.

UTILITIES STRONG LATE IN THE DAY

Allied Chemical a Feature —U. S. Steel Off at Finish — Credit Conditions Are Firmer.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The stock market closed irregular today after a session marked by frequent shifts of speculative sentiment. A strong opening, based on the unexpectedly small increase in brokers' loans, was followed by a wave of selling inspired by the official denial of merger reports involving the Public Service Co. of New Jersey and United Gas Improvement, and the closing of the Tokio stock exchange for the day after a short earlier closing.

Strong buying support was supplied and the market made irregular recovery in the afternoon with several of the public utilities making their best prices of the day in the last hour of trading.

Total sales ran above 5,600,000 shares.

Trade Review Summaries.

Weekly mercantile reviews were moderately optimistic. Bradstreets, which continued to characterize general business as "fair to quiet," stated that the warmer weather and the approach of Easter had stimulated distributive trade. Dun's stated that "it continues to be in factors making for ultimate renewal, rather than in actual present gains, that the general business situation reflects the main improvement." "Sentiment is stronger on the whole," it adds, "and the advancing season has not failed to give impetus to activities but expansion still comes only slowly, and not in all quarter simultaneously."

Wall street believes that several major consolidations in the public utility field will be completed within the next few months. Dow Jones reported today that Johns Manville was negotiating for the acquisition of another company, and rumors also were in circulation that Gold Dust is planning further expansion.

Call Money Firmer.

A slightly firmer undertone was in evidence in the call money market today and the rate for loans remained at the renewal figure of 4 per cent, instead of dropping to 3½, as has been the case during the past several days. Money was offered in the "outside market" early at the lower figure, but the afternoon saw the unofficial rate return to the 4 per cent level.

Similar firmer conditions prevailed in the time money market where 30 and 60-day loans were quoted at 4 per cent flat. Loans from 90 days to four months also were slightly higher at 4¼ per cent. Five and six months' loans were quoted at 4¼ to 4½ per cent, unchanged from yesterday.

U. S. Steel Closes Lower.

Allied Chemical was one of the spectacular features in today's market soaring to a new high record at 331 and then easing to [illegible] for a net gain of 14½ points. Standard Gas & Electric, International Hydro Electric, Southern California Edison, American Water Works, Foundation Co., National Bellas Hess and National Surety were among the many issues to close with net gains of 3 to 6 points.

U. S. Steel common closed at [illegible] for a net loss of 1¾ points. General Electric closed fractionally lower at 92⅛ after having sold above 95 yesterday. Radio, Anaconda Copper, Montgomery Ward, General Motors, Bethlehem Steel, American Can, Sears Roebuck and Paramount Famous Lasky were some of the recent leaders to decline a point or so. Westinghouse Electric lost 2½ points.

Wheat closed ½c to ⅝c lower. Corn also was easy, closing about [illegible] a bushel lower. Cotton dropped [illegible] to nearly $1 a bale.

Stock prices, with other tables and market news, will be found on pages 23c, 24c and 25C.

20 KILLED, SEVEN HURT WHEN TRAIN WRECKS BUS IN NEW MEXICO

Santa Fe Flyer Hits Pickwick Greyhound Motor Coach Carrying 27 Passengers—Crash Occurs on Unobstructed Crossing.

By the Associated Press.

ISLETA, N. M., April 11.—Twenty passengers of an eastbound Pickwick Greyhound bus were killed and seven seriously injured today when the bus was struck by a west-bound Santa Fe fast mail train near here.

The speeding train side-swiped the bus, causing its gasoline tank to explode and burning much of the wreckage.

Bodies were hurled from 50 to 200 feet along either side of the grade crossing and the right of way. Parts of the bus were carried along for a half mile, the engine traveling at such a speed that it was not brought to a stop for a mile and one-half.

The injured were taken to hospitals at Albuquerque, near here.

There were 27 passengers on the bus, so far as officials were able to ascertain.

No One Hurt on Train.

The first body identified was that of a Mrs. Huff of Oklahoma City, who was a passenger, with her 8-year-old son, Kenneth. The boy died later.

Part of the train was derailed but none of its crew or passengers was injured. F. D. Williams, driver of the bus, which is owned by the Pickwick Greyhound Co. of Kansas City, Mo., was among those killed.

George Irwin, the train conductor, said the exact time of the accident was 9:27 a. m. All the bodies were burned or crushed. The clothes were burned off many of the bodies.

The offices of the Pickwick Co. at Albuquerque said they had no passenger list and that the bus rriver did not have a list.

Attempts to identify the bodies at the morgue from letters and other efects will be difficult because of their condition.

Survivor Refuses to Talk.

The scene of the accident is on a paved road to Isleta, an Indian pueblo. The crossing is open to view on both sides in a level territory.

The crossing is only a half mile from the Indian pueblo, and Indians and passing tourists were the first to arrive at the scene. The Indians could do little to care for the injured until ambulances arrived. They made no attempt to remove any of the bodies. The train crew and passengers did what they could until the ambulances arrived.

One passenger slightly injured refused to give his name or go to a hospital and was taken to the Sheriff's office at Albuquerque.

The engineer of the train said he saw the bus on the crossing and slowed down to 38 miles an hour but the accident was unavoidable.

The known dead:

Mrs. Huff (initials unknown), Oklahoma City.

Kenneth Huff, 8 years old, Oklahoma City.

F. D. Williams, Albuquerque, driver of the bus.

The list of dead announced shortly after 1 p. m., was not official and some discrepancies may develop. The identification was made entirely from baggage, letters and small identification clews found on the bodies.

As an aid to the officials, any persons noting discrepancies in the list were requested to notify the Pickwick company office at Albuquerque.

The injured included:

FIVE STATES VOTE FOR DRY REPEAL IN DIGEST POLL

Tennessee Gives Combined Wet Proposals a Lead—Also Majority in Arkansas

The fifth week's tabulation of the Literary Digest prohibition poll shows a slightly larger vote for enforcement of prohibition laws, and a corresponding slight reduction in the vote for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, the vote for modification of the Volstead law remaining relatively the same as the week before. However, only one State, Kansas, now shows a majority for enforcement over the two wet proposals.

With 2,516,072 votes tabulated from 44 states and the District of Columbia, in the 20,000,000-ballot poll, the present percentage for enforcement is 28.3, as compared with 27.7 a week ago; for modification, 29.9, unchanged; and for repeal 41.7, compared with a previous 42.4.

CONFESSION BY DR. BASS; HE TELLS OF EARLIER PLOT

Scheme to Kill His Wife's Cousin, an Insurance Company Officer, Failed When $100,000 Policy Was Canceled.

HE HIRED ST. LOUIS GUNMEN FOR THE JOB

He Declares That as a Result He Was Forced Into Pearman Conspiracy but Refuses to Name Actual Slayers.

By JOHN T. ROGERS.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BENTONVILLE, Ark., April 11.—Dr. A. J. Bass, 55-year-old retired dentist of Columbia, Mo., in a signed confession today, told an amazing story of how he organized the $200,000 life insurance plot which resulted in the murder of William R. Pearman, at the order of St. Louis gunmen whom he had previously hired to kill his wife's cousin, an Indianapolis insurance man, in a similar plot which collapsed when the intended victim canceled a $100,000 insurance policy.

Harassed by gunmen, who threatened him constantly with death unless he promoted a successful fraud to succeed the one which failed, Dr. Bass declared he persuaded Pearman, a Columbia automobile mechanic, to take out $200,000 in life insurance last Dec. 24 under the alias of William Folta and then identified Pearman's body when it was found, with three bullet wounds, near Gravette, Ark., March 29. He has insisted, however, that he had no personal part in the actual murder.

Why First Plot Failed.

The intended victim of the Indianapolis plot, begun in 1928, was Machier J. Dorsey, an insurance company executive. In his confession, Dr. Bass told of hiring a killer for $8000 in St. Louis and taking him to Indianapolis in an automobile to point out Dorsey, only to learn that the cousin had canceled the policy on which Dr. Bass hoped to collect.

The killer and his associates, Dr. Bass says in his confession, insisted on payment of the fee, threatened him daily by telephone and finally accepted $4000 in settlement at a meeting in St. Louis, only to continue their threats and demands until he agreed to attempt another insurance fraud with the intention of substituting a body for that of the insured.

The confession was made public by Sheriff Edgar Fields, who said Dr. Bass told him orally that the idea of the plot against Dorsey came to his mind after he had permitted the use of his name as a reference in a previous $25,000 insurance fraud-plot at Moline, Ill.

Sheriff Fields said he was convinced that Pearman was not killed in Arkansas. "I believe that he was killed elsewhere, moved here in an automobile and thrown out. Dr. Bass left his home in Columbia before breakfast the morning of March 27 and did not return until midnight. I believe he was present or nearby when Pearman was killed.

Several Accomplices Named.

Several men have been named by Dr. Bass as accomplices, Sheriff Fields said, and arrests have been ordered.

Meanwhile, bond for S. K. Johnson, Kansas City real estate dealer, jointly charged with Dr. Bass in the Pearman murder, has been set at $15,000. As has been told, Johnson accompanied Bass to Gravette to identify the body of Pearman as William Folta. Johnson has said he was introduced to Pearman as "Folta" by Dr. Bass.

Dr. Bass exonerated Johnson of complicity in the crime, saying he was engaged merely to draw up papers and had no knowledge of the doctor's criminal intent.

Dr. Bass signed a formal release of the insurance policies issued on the life of "Folta" by the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., of Fort Wayne, Ind., and in return received from the company a certified check of $3102, the amount of premiums he had paid. The doctor indorsed this check over to his wife.

Text of Confession.

The text of Dr. Bass' confession, made public after the dentist signed it, follows:

"In 1928, my wife and I lent Dorsey $112,000 on a large tract of land in Miller County, Ark., taking

EMBEZZLES $50,000 FROM FRISCO, LOSES IT GAMBLING

Oliver D. Chalmers, Mail and Express Traffic Manager, Admits Defalcations and Forgery of Officer's Signature.

CRIME DISCOVERED ON CHANCE REMARK

Vandervoort Bank Absconder Mentioned to Police That Chalmers Deposited Large Checks and Frequented Gaming Houses.

Oliver D. Chalmers, manager of mail and express traffic for the Frisco Railroad, was arrested today after making confession, in President Kurn's office, to defalcations of the railroad's money, stated by officers of the Frisco as exceeding $10,000, and thought in fact to exceed $50,000.

Chalmers admitted that, in four years, he deposited to his own account checks given to the Frisco by the Post-Dispatch and the Globe-Democrat for carrying papers in baggage cars. In doing this he forged the signature of another Frisco officer. He said most of the money had been spent in gambling.

The Post-Dispatch checks deposited by Chalmers to his own account, as shown by a check-up today, are 38 in number over four years, and are for a total of $42,407.59. This is thought to have constituted the larger part of the defalcation. The amount of the Globe-Democrat's checks has not been estimated. The Kansas City Star had been using the service for only one year, having previously sent out papers by mail and express. Thirteen checks of the Post-Dispatch were cashed for the railroad in the proper manner.

The discovery of Chalmers' defalcation resulted from a chance remark of Marvin E. Phillips, assistant cashier of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney Bank, arrested Tuesday for admitted defalcation of $31,600, the money being spent in gambling. Phillips, in the course of his confession, said checks of the Frisco, in sums of $2000 or $3000 a month, were being deposited at his window, to a personal account, and that the man making the deposits had been seen by him at gambling places.

Has Wife and Daughter.

Chalmers is 38 years old and resides at 4530A Shenandoah avenue. He has a wife and daughter. Until about a year ago, he was chief clerk in the mail and express department.

Several daily newspapers use the baggage car service of the Frisco. Because of the haste with which bundles of paper sometimes must be handled, it is not practicable to make out waybills for them, as is done with express matter. Instead, the papers keep accounts of the weight of their bundles, and make monthly remittances to the railroad company.

It has been the papers' practice to send duplicates of their bills to the accounting department of the railroad. Where this was done, the checks went to the credit of the railroad in the usual way. But the Post-Dispatch, Globe-Democrat and Kansas City Star were not notified to send the duplicate bills to the accounting department, and did not do so.

The checks sent by the three papers were in a form prescribed by Chalmers and were made payable to the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad Co., O. D. Chalmers, manager of mail and express traffic, and J. W. Nourse, passenger traffic manager.

Forged Officer's Name.

Chalmers made the indorsement of the railroad company with a rubber stamp, forged Nourse's name, signed his own name, and deposited the checks in Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney Bank to his own account.

Chalmers said he did not act in collusion with anyone else, and

President Hoover Commends American Naval Delegation

WASHINGTON, April 11.

PRESIDENT HOOVER said today he had communicated to the American Naval Delegation at London his approval of the results achieved there.

The President said he commended the delegation members for their courageous actions.

The most constructive accomplishment, the President said, is the abolition of competition in construction of naval arms.

President Hover said that for the first time the United States has accomplished parity with Great Britain for its navy, as a result of the conference.

He said the results of the conference pleased him because of its final success, and that he had telegraphed his aproval to the American delegation because of the difficulties it had overcome.

The President said he wished to congratulate the other delegations because o ftheir contributions toward the vital accomplishments.

One result of the London conference, he cited as the abolition of naval competition and fears of rival naval construction by other nations.

Expressing his views at the regular Friday press conference, the President said that when the three-power conference at Geneva failed in 1927, the world was steadily drifting toward the "Geneva basis" in naval tonnage. This basis, he continued, required from the United States a total expenditure of between $1,400,000 and $1,700,000,000, or choice of perpetual inferiority of the American fleet.

On the basis of the present proposed London treaty, the President said the United States would spend between $500,000,000 and $650,000,000, or less than half of what the Geneva basis program would have represented.

The President pointed out that under the London program, Great Britain, the United States and Japan would scrap nine battleships totaling 230,000 tons of existing naval tonnage and defer for six years any replacement building.

During that time, the President said, between 300,000 and 400,000 tons of fighting ships in other categories would be scrapped as obsolete.

An immediate effect of the London program as to battleships, the President said, would be realization of parity in battleship fleets between the United States and Great Britain for the first time in history.

President Hoover said France and Italy had co-operated to the fullest extent of their ability as continental Powers, whose security rested upon land armaments to a large extent.

He added that Italy and France had indicated adherence to many important features of the proposed three-Power pact but did not specify what those provisions were.

CIRCUS WOMAN SHOOTS MAN TO DEATH IN PEORIA

Mrs. Louise Bryars Who Lives in St. Louis During Winter, Kills Fred Smola at Drinking Party.

Mrs. Louise Bryars, 34 years old, former manager of concessions for the D. D. Murphy circus with headquarters in St. Louis, is held without bond in Peoria, Ill., for the killing of Fred Smola, formerly of Edwardsville.

Smola, an employe of the Brundage carnival, now wintering in Peoria, died in a hospital there Wednesday night due to three bullet wounds inflicted by Mrs. Bryars.

"He insulted me," Mrs. Bryars told police after her arrest. "Smola and my husband and I were drinking beer in a saloon when Smola became offensive and made some disparaging remarks about my character. I had a revolver in my purse and when he refused to stop I shot him."

Smola was wounded in the neck, arm and abdomen. After the shooting Mrs. Bryars' husband, James, took the revolver and fled. He has not been found. Mrs. Bryars remained in the saloon and submitted to arrest.

At the Coroner's inquest at Peoria yesterday she declined to testify, but police officers told of her statements made to them and she was ordered held for the grand jury for homicide.

Mrs. Bryars said she went to Peoria a month ago to become connected with the Brundage Shows. She said she had been with the Murphy circus about 10 years and had spent most of her winters in St. Louis. She is a native of Flat River, Mo.

Smola, who was 29 years old, went to Peoria from Edwardsville two years ago.

Mrs. Bryars is said to be the first woman held on a murder charge in Peoria in more than 50 years. The case has not yet been submitted to the grand jury.

SUBMARINE WAR TO BE HUMANIZED

Competition Stopped in Categories Not Fixed in Washington Pact—Parity for U. S. and Britain, 70 Pct. Ratio for Tokio.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1930, by the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, April 11.—Except for actual drafting of its agreements in treaty form, the five-Power naval conference today reached the end of its labors after 78 days of deliberation.

Heads of the delegations at a meeting in St. James's Palace this morning appointed committees to draft the document and decided to hold a plenary session of the conference Monday. A further plenary session will be held Thursday afternoon for signing of the treaty if it is ready by that time, though it is possible this ceremony will have to be postponed until after Easter. Announcement was made that heads of all delegations will be in London to sign the pact. In a statement after today's meeting, Prime Minister MacDonald expressed satisfaction with the work of the conference, saying substantial results had been obtained in the face of great difficulties.

Large Degree of Success.

Though the conference failed to reach one of its great objectives—conclusion of an auxiliary tonnage limitation agreement among all five Powers—the results represent a large degree of success.

Italy's claim to parity with France and refusal of the latter to make material tonnage reductions without some new guarantee of security remained throughout the conference as effective bars to a general limitation agreement.

When final decision was taken, after weeks of vain negotiation, to end the search for a security formula acceptable to Britain and France, events began to march with great rapidity. The upshot was the tentative decision, contingent upon approval by heads of all delegations, to place all agreements which have been reached within the framework of a single treaty.

Approval of this plan was indicated by today's official communique, which referred throughout to a single treaty.

Treaty In Three Parts.

The plan is to write a treaty in three parts: first, providing for a battleship building holiday up to and through 1936 and covering all other matters bearing upon the Washington naval treaty; second, containing a submarine "humanization" compact on which all five nations are agreed, and third embracing a firm three-Power arrangement among Great Britain, the United States and Japan.

This means in effect that the conference proposes to validate the three-Power agreement within a framework of a five-Power treaty, leaving the way open for France and Italy to write their figures into the treaty at some later date if negotiations among themselves and Great Britain should prove successful. So far as the United States in concerned, the parleys are ended. All problems left unsettled are distinctly European.

The treaty will not contain a general consultative clause, such as was discussed, and into which it had been suggested the United States might enter.

The submarine agreement is of

LIEUT. WILLIAMS DENIES HE ASKED FOR SEA DUTY

Navy Speed Ace Who Has Resigned Says That Department's Statement Gave False Impression.

WANTED TO FINISH BUILDING PLANE

He Informs Senate Committee That Letter He Wrote Was Ordered by Rear Admiral Leigh.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Lieut. Al Williams, navy speed ace, who resigned from the service after being ordered to sea duty, said today that a letter read before a Senate Committee by Assistant Secretary Ingalls of the navy left a false impression of his attitude toward the sea duty order.

Williams said that a letter written by him to the Naval Bureau of operations on prospectivt sea duty was not voluntary, but was in response to orders from Rear Admiral Richard Leigh, chief of the Bureau of Navigation.

The flyer, who sprang into prominence through feats with speed planes, said that Ingalls in reading the letter before the Senate Committee did not point out that he had asked for sea duty after he had completed his work on the mercury racer, a plane that he unsuccessfully attempted to complete in time for the speed trials in England last year.

Williams' resignation from the navy, following statements from him that he had been ordered to sea duty without being allowed to complete plans for a racing plane, has been aired this week before a Senate committee.

Ingalls yesterday read before the committee a letter written by Williams requesting sea duty.

"I did not consider when the letter was written that I had finished work on the racer," Williams said, "and do not consider now that it is completed. My letter was not a request for assignment to sea duty but was a request to be allowed to continue development of the racer. The reference to the letter before the Senate committee left an incorrect impression of my stand in the matter."

HOOVER INDORSES PROPOSAL FOR RELIGIOUS FREEDOM DAY

Jefferson's Birthday Falling on Palm Sunday Fitting for Occasion, He Writes.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The Thomas Jefferson memorial foundation today announced receipt of a telegram from President Hoover indorsing its plan to observe Jefferson's birthday this year as religious freedom day.

"The noteworthy and most unusual coincidence," the message said, "that the religious holy days known as Palm Sunday and Passover both occur this year on the birthday of Thomas Jefferson makes it, indeed, appropriate that the anniversary on April 13 is to be observed educationally and patriotically with special emphasis on the founding of religious freedom.

"Jefferson's contribution together with that of the other fathers of the Republic, to the famous statute for religious freedom, and his life-long championship of that principle, decisively helped to fix it permanently in the national policy with results beneficient beyond calculation.

"It is useful to recall these benefits and to renew their sanctions in the general conscience of mankind."

FORMER CHIEF OF POLICE GETS YEAR FOR DRY LAW CONSPIRACY

G. C. Pike of Springfield, Mo., Sentenced to Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 11.—G. C. Pike, former Chief of Police here, who pleaded guilty in United States District Court Wednesday to a charge of conspiring to violate the Volstead law, was sentenced by Judge A. L. Reeves today to serve one year and one day in the Federal penitentiary in Leavenworth, Kan.

The specific charge was that last summer Pike received monthly payments of $15 from John Yancey, confessed bootlegger, to allow the latter to sell liquor without police interference. Pike was tried on this charge last November, and the jury failed to agree. Yancey was paroled from the Leavenworth penitentiary shortly after having testified against Pike.

3-Power Battleship Holiday for 6 Years

doubtful practical value, but the three-Power compact and the decision not to replace battleships during the next six years represent distinct achievements.

Without the battleship holiday, Great Britain, the United States and Japan would be faced with the prospect of laying down, respectively, 10, 10 and 6 battleships to the end of 1936. The program was, of course, not obligatory but permissive. It meant a virtual certainty that if any of the three principal naval powers should begin replacements, the others would follow suit. Figuring the cost of a battleship at $40,000,000, the building holiday saves the United States $400,000,000 that might have been required to execute replacement schedules of the Washington treaty.

Saving to all three Powers under the same head is estimated by Ambassador Gibson at between $800,000,000 and $900,000,000.

To Reduce Capital Ships.

Another step which may lead to eventual abolition of the battleship is the decision of the three Powers to reduce their capital ship fleets as soon as practicable after ratification of the treaty to 15 ships each for Britain and the United States and nine for Japan. This means Great Britain will scrap or demilitarize five capital ships, the United States three and Japan one in 1931, instead of retaaining the ships for the full term peremitted by the Washington treaty. In the case of the United States, the three ships to be put out of active service—Florida, Utah and Wyoming — do not reach the age limit until 1934, so that the treaty will effect a saving of about three years' upkeep on these vessels.

The important feature of the three-Power agreement is that it definitely stops competition among Britain, the United States and Japan in categories left unregulated by the Washington treaty of 1922. The United States and Britain are placed on a parity, while Japan gets a ratio of 70 per cent in six-inch gun cruisers, 70 per cent in destroyers and parity in submarines. Up to 1936 Japan will have a ratio of 72 per cent in 8-inch gun cruisers and thereafter, if the United States builds up to its permitted total, only 60 per cent. Japan reserves the right to renew her claim to a better than 60 per cent ratio in this category at the next naval conference, while the United States will have a corresponding right to oppose the claim.

Tonnage in Three Categories.

Tonnage in cruiser, destroyer and submarine categories is placed at 541,700 for Britain, 526,200 for the United States and 367,050 for Japan. Britain's superiority over America in total cruiser tonnage is offset by the fact that the United States received the right to build 18 of the most powerful type as against 15 for Britain.

The three-Power agreement is modelled closely on the understanding reached by President Hoover, and Prime Minister MacDonald in their Rapidan conversations last fall.

It is a better agreement than was possible at any stage of the Geneva conference three years ago, where the lowest level of parity offered by Britain in cruisers was 70 ships, aggregating at least 450,000 tons. Under the London agreement, Britain puts here cruiser strength at 50 ships, aggregating 339,000 tons. The United States receives the right to build cruisers up to 323,500 tons, or about 35 ships. The effect of the three-Power treaty in a nutshell is to leave the Japanese and British auxiliary fleets at approximately their present strength and give the United States the right to build up. Its advantage to the American taxpayer lies not in any immediate saving, but in the prevention of expenditure that would be required if the insane armament race were kept up. It will put an end to bursts of irritated building, such as followed the collapse of the Geneva conference, within the life of the new treaty.

It should be understood that only by expenditure of large sums can the United States actually realize parity with Britain. Taking into account both the new ships required and replacement of old ships as they pass the effective age during the life of the treaty, our experts here estimate that a total of about $850,000,000 would be needed. Whether Congress will vote that sum during the next six years—a sum close to $150,000,000 annually—is another question altogether. Congress in the last five years has annually appropriated for naval building only a small fraction of $150,000,000.

How Estimate Is Reached.

The estimate is arrived at in the following manner: To reach the permitted quota of eight-inch gun cruisers, five new ships would be needed at a total cost of $85,000,000. In six-inch gun cruisers we should have to build new units at a cost of $136,000,000. Other items are 88 destroyers to replace obsolete ships at a cost of $352,000,000; 17 submarines at $68,000,000, and five aircraft carriers at $95,000,000. The total of the foregoing items is $736,000,000, To this should be added $116,000,000 as the estimated cost of completing 11 cruisers and two submarines now building. The grand total comes to $852,000,000.

Against this expenditure of cash which is possible only if Congress appropriates the money, must be set off the certainty that $400,000,000, which loomed up as a possible outlay on battleships, will not be required.

Real Step Toward Disarmament, Is View of British Press.

By the Associated Press.

London newspapers today hailed the three-Power limitation agreement, and the possible five-Power agreement on a battleship holiday as a real step in the direction of disarmament.

In the House of Commons, MacDonald interrupted debate on the Scottish housing bill to make a "naval announcement," which he informed the Commons of complete agreement covering all categories of ships by America, Great Britain and Japan. "The differences in the naval requirements of France and Italy have proved intricate and have not so far been resolved," he said.

MacDonald said a white paper would be published covering the work accomplished, and he concluded: "At a meeting this evening between the French, Italians and United Kingdom delegations it was decided that as such a substantial agreement had been reached it was unnecessary and undesirable to keep the full body of delegates sitting at London pending settlement of difficulties which primarily concern these three delegations only.

"So we shall propose at a plenary session early next week that the agreement now reached shall be signed and the conference adjourned on the understanding that France, Italy and ourselves shall continue efforts to come to an agreement in unison with what which has been reached by the United States, Japan and ourselves."

France Pleased With Possibility of Continuing Negotiations.

PARIS, April 11.—Great satisfaction was expressed in official circles today at the way the naval conference is winding up. The fact that France and Italy will be left in a position to continue negotiations is particularly stressed, as it had been feared that the conference might leave these two countries in a disagreeable situation that would increase the tension which has existed for some time.

TRADING SUSPENDED ON TOKIO EXCHANGE

Cabinet Members Say Political Opponents Have Helped Manipulate Market.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, April 11.—Japan's economic difficulties reached a critical stage today with the suspension of trading on the Tokio Stock Exchange.

The bear ridden market opened well below yesterday's closing and the resulting confusion caused the directors to announce a one-hour suspension, which later was extended. At 1 p. m. the exchange attempted to open again, but when a selling stampede was threatened it closed for the day.

Kyucho Hijikata, president of the Bank of Japan, and the heads of other official banks conferred during the afternoon on the economic situation.

The Osaka Exchange continued orderly trading throughout the day, the leading stocks dropping slightly.

Cabinet members said that the condition of the market was due to manipulation in which the political opposition was concerned.

The economic crisis is the result of a long period of decline in trade and industry which recently was accentuated by several adverse elements in the export market.

Among these elements was the decreased American demand for raw silk, causing a slump in Japan's most important export commodity; India's augmented tariff on cotton fabrics, a heavy blow to Japan's second largest export item; a slump in silver bullion, hurting Japan's markets in China; declining specie reserves due to the removal on Jan. 11 of the embargo on gold exports; and the prospect of serious labor trouble following efforts of cotton spinners to reduce wages.

The financial editor of Rango News Agency wrote that within two years the value of shares listed on the Tokio Stock Exchange had declined 30 per cent, meaning a paper loss of nearly $4,500,000,000.

that no part of the defalcations went to anyone else. Examination of his account at the bank showed but a small balance, nearly all the money having been checked out almost as soon as it was deposited.

Phillips has said his visits to gambling houses began in Wellston two years ago and that his heaviest losses, varied by occasional large winnings, were in the Hyde Park Club, in Venice, Ill., and the Southern Club in East St. Louis. He is under a Federal charge, as the bank is a member of the Federal Reserve System. Chalmers probably will be prosecuted by the State.

A warrant charging embezzlement was issued against Chalmers by the Circuit Attorney's office, as a means of holding him for the grand jury. It is based on a Globe-Democrat check for $825.46, appropriated by Chalmers to his own use. Bond for Chalmers will be fixed at $10,000.

Confession by Dr. Bass in Murder Plot

a first mortgage. I later learned he carried $100,000 insurance on his life and I arranged with him to assign this insurance to me as additional collateral.

"I believed that Dorsey did not intend to meet his obligations to us. I discussed the deal with a friend in Columbia and we talked about the advisability of taking Dorsey's life in order to collect the insurance.

"My friend said he knew a man in St. Louis who could put us in touch with professional gunmen who would be willing to kill Dorsey for a monetary consideration. We went to St. Louis and called on the man he had in mind. This man agreed to furnish a man to take Dorsey's life. He introduced us to another man with whom we discussed the plot in detail.

Agreed to Pay $2000 at First.

"He agreed to do the job for $2000, accepting $1000 to bind the deal, the other $1000 to be paid after Dorsey was killed. My friends' acquaintance was to phone us when Dorsey had been slain.

"Later my friend received the signal 'O. K.' by telephone and we believed the job had been done. He told me about it in the Daniel Boone Tavern at Columbia, but to our amazement at the very moment we were discussing the message, we saw Dorsey walk through the hotel corridor.

"I was excited. Grasping my friends's arm, I exclaimed, 'Look, there he goes now. There's something crooked in this.' It was a remarkable coincidence.

"Shortly after this we went to St. Louis and demanded to know why the agreement had not been carried out. Our contact man said the hired killer had double-crossed him and offered to supply a better gunman who would guarantee the job but at a higher price.

"I agreed and was told to register at the Majestic Hotel under my own name. That night a gunman called on me in my room and after hearing my proposition agreed to take Dorsey's life for $8000. I was to accompany him to Indianapolis and point out Dorsey.

"Later this man brought another gunman to me, explaining he had been given the plan in detail and would do the job. I drove him to Indianapolis in my automobile. I called on Dorsey alone and in the way of a pretext for being there inquired when he expected to be able to meet his obligations to me.

Dorsey Canceled Policy.

"I told him that I had met an acquaintance of his in Columbia who was very angry at him and had made threats to me that he would kill him. If our attempt failed, I did not want Dorsey to suspect me, but rather to feel grateful to me for warning him. To my surprise he told me he had canceled the $100,000 policy he had assigned to me. He offered no explanation but that fact caused me to alter my plans and call off the gunmen. I drove the gunman who accompanied me back to St. Louis and proceeded to Columbia.

"In a day or two the contact man telephoned me at my home demanding the $8000 in no uncertain tones, which I had previously agreed to pay for killing Dorsey. I told him the insurance had been canceled and that as no killing took place, I did not owe them anything.

"The gunman's boss then began telephoning my home repeatedly, threatening my life if I did not pay the $8000. Each time he would insist that his man was ready for the job and that my failure to go through with it caused them a loss of $8000.

"In the meantime, my friend who had made the original arrangements, moved to St. Louis and the gunmen began threatening him. They would pick him up on his way to or from work, ride him around the streets, thrust pistols into his side and threaten his life unless he prevailed on me to pay. Once they threw him out of an automobile and hurt him seriously.

"During this period they forced my friend to accompany them to Columbia. They stopped at a roadhouse not far from my home and had him telephone me to meet them at the roadhouse or some other place, at some bridge. He did not reach me because I had been very apprehensive and on this evening I had taken the telephone receiver off the hook and plugged the bell.

"It was a nightly occurrence to be called out of bed after midnight and threatened with death in one form or another. They often spoke of dynamiting the house. I was almost in a state of terror at times. They would not listen to reason when I told them I did not have the money they demanded.

"I confided my troubles to my pastor, the Rev. Carl Agee of the Christian Church at Columbia (of which Dr. Bass was a deacon). He accompanied me to St. Louis where we met my tormenters at the Washington Hotel. My friend, who had been threatened, was also in a state of terror. Prior to all this he was healthy and strong, but his experiences at the hands of the gangsters had all but broken him down completely.

"The upshot of the discussion was that I was to pay the gangsters $4000 in full settlement of our verbal contract to kill Dorsey. I gave a cash check to my friend, who cashed it and paid them off.

"I felt relieved that the matter had been settled but it was only a short time until the gunman's boss began to harass us for the other $4000. The threats became more violent as I refused to pay and so I had to go back for another conference.

"I met the boss of the gunman at the St. Louis Hotel, at Fourteenth and Chestnut streets. He was a terrible man. His language was worse than vulgar; it was violent. He swore with a volley of oaths that he would put out my lights unless I paid the additional money. As a last resort I pleaded with him to withhold further demands until I sold my farm in Southwest Arkansas.

"It was a surprise to him that I owned the farm and he eagerly questioned me about it, proposing that I sell this land to someone, insure his life to secure notes and then substitute a body for that of the insured. I objected to this plan because of my unfortunate experience in the Indianapolis deal.

Refuses to Name Slayers.

"I returned to Columbia and a short time later met Pearman whom I had long known. While chatting with him I remarked that I had met a Frank Folta on a train three months before, and that Frank told me his brother, William, had been missing 17 years.

"Later, Pearman and I entered negotiations resulting in the purchase by him of my land in Miller County, Ark., he using the name of the long missing William Folta. I arranged for $200,000 insurance on the life of "Folta," to secure notes in the sum of $112,000, and paid the first annual premium of $3,102.

"On or about March 30, I went to Gravette where I saw the body of Pearman and identified it as that of Folta. I did this because to have done otherwise would have been to sign my own death warrant."

Here the confession stops, but in response to questions of investigators Dr. Bass has sought to give the impression that the gunmen he hired in the Indianapolis plot murdered Pearman, and that his participation in obtaining the insurance, and in identifying Pearman's body as that of Folta, were his unwilling acts.

Cries When Reporters Call.

After the confession was signed, Dr. Bass was taken back to his cell in the Bentonville jail where a Post-Dispatch reporter called to ask if he cared to add anything to the statement. Tears came to the dentist's eyes and he fumbled in his handbag, on the bunk beside him, to find a box containing a new handkerchief. "This is the first clean handkerchief I've had for days," he said as he removed his spectacles to dry his eyes.

He declined to talk of the case to the reporter. "I regret that it is necessary for me to receive you here in this fashion," he said courteously. "It is a pity that I have not the opportunity to receive you in my home. I have a fine wife and family, as good as any man alive, and a lovely home."

Tells About Kindness.

He wiped his spectacles and put them on. "I am in an embarrassing position, a most trying situation. I don't believe that God ever intended to persecute anyone. I believe in justice and I feel that eventually everything will come out all right. There are circumstances over which we sometimes have no control."

The prisoner chatted about the kindness with which he had been treated since his arrest and during the questioning and related that he had received "many encouraging letters and telegrams which have strengthened me in this ordeal."

As the reporter left, Dr. Bass asked for a copy of the Post-Dispatch. "I haven't seen it for a week," he said. 'I want to read the livestock reports. We're feeding some cattle up in Missouri and I would like to watch the progress of the market."

FERGUSON-BAGGOT INDICTMENTS FOR FRAUD DISMISSED

U. S. Attorney Also Drops Charges Against C. W. Beck and E. J. Barrett in Home Building Case.

ACTION TAKEN ON MITCHELL'S ORDERS

Heads of Dry Goods Firm Tried Three Times Without Success—Sentences of Others Reversed.

The Federal indictments against Forrest Ferguson and Alfred Baggot, charged with using the mails to defraud in the $2,000,000 Ferguson-McKinney Manufacturing Co. failure, and against Christian W. Beck and Edward J. Barrett, charged with the same offense in connection with the defunct Federal Home Building Corporation, were dismissed today by District Attorney Breuer, on orders from the Attorney-General's office.

The District Attorney, in entering a nolle prosequi before Judge Davis, cited the fact that Ferguson, who was president of Ferguson-McKinney, had been tried three times and Baggot, the secretary, twice, each trial resulting in a hung jury. In view of these results, he held there was no prospect of conviction, and he so informed the Attorney-General, who issued the final orders.

Beck and Barrett were convicted, but the Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the convictions and criticised the Government counsel for "conducting the case unfairly to the defendants." The Government sought to show losses of $282,000 to St. Louisans through the housing concern's operations.

"Inasmuch as the court held the evidence insufficient," Breuer said, "and the Government has no additional evidence to offer, another trial would be useless."

Under the remanded convictions, Beck was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and Barrett to three, with fines of $5000 each.

An indictment charging Ferguson with obtaining money and credit by false pretenses is still pending in the State courts. Circuit Judge Taylor, two months ago, refused to dismiss the case on the ground, urged by Ferguson's lawyer, Edward W. Foristel, that the case had run through 16 terms of court, and that the last seven continuances were without motion by the defense.

Ferguson was placed on trial on an embezzlement charge in the State courts in 1926, but after a demurrer, Circuit Judge Mix directed an acquittal, and Circuit Attorney Sidener dismissed a false pretense charge. Sidener, now in private practice, was in Federal Court when Ferguson's case was dismissed, and remarked to bystanders, "Now what do you think of the Ferguson case?" Sidener's handling of the Ferguson case was one of the points cited against him in the 1928 campaign, in which Franklin Miller defeated him for the office of Circuit Attorney.

5 NEW YORK COMMUNISTS IN MARCH 6 RIOT CONVICTED

William Z. Foster, Robert Minor and Others Found Guilty of Unlawful Assembly.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Five Communists arrested in the riots in Union Square March 6 were found guilty today of a charge of unlawful assembly. They were remanded one week for sentence.

The five men, three of them leaders of the Communist party in this country, are William Z. Foster, national leader; Robert Minor, editor; Israel Amter, district organizer, and Joseph Lester and Harry Raymond.

The five defendants testified, much of the testimony corroborating that of State witnesses, which was that Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen had refused a delegation permission to form a parade and march to city hall. The Commissioner had offered to take the leaders there himself to present their grievances to Mayor James J. Walker. This offer was declined.

CONNIE RITTER PLEADS NOT GUILTY; TRIAL SET FOR MAY 26

Gangster Charged With Murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City, Ill.

BENTON, Ill., April 11.—Connie Ritter, Southern Illinois gangster and lieutenant of Charlie Birger, who was hanged here for the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City, pleaded not guilty yesterday in connection with the same crime when arraigned in Circuit Court. His trial was set for May 26.

Ritter was arrested in Gulfport, Miss. He was named by Harry Thomasson as the man who paid him and his brother, Elmo, for the slaying of Mayor Adams Dec. 12, 1926. Harry Thomasson at that time named Ritter and Art Newman as the men who paid him and Elmo $50 a shot for the crime.

Immediately after the confession of Thomasson, Ritter fled and eluded police until his arrest in Gulfport.

FIRE DOES $42,000 DAMAGE IN MADISON ROOMING HOUSE

Blaze Starts at Noon in 3-Story Building; Granite City Department Called.

Fire broke out shortly after noon today in a three-story brick building containing 70 rooms, a restaurant, and a saloon on the southwest corner of Thirteenth street and Madison avenue in Madison.

The blaze, which started from an undeterminate cause in a garage attached to the building, swept quickly through the structure, causing a loss estimated by Fire Chief Charles Barger at $42,000. The Granite City fire department is aiding Madison firemen, but the building was destroyed.

It was owned by Thomas Miofsky, who rented rooms on the second and third floors and conducted a restaurant on the first floor. A saloon was also on the first floor.

A one-story frame dance hall adjoining the building and owned by a Mrs. Seyka also was destroyed.

One of the trunk telephone lines between Madison and St. Louis was put out of commission by the fire.

AMPHIBIAN PLANE TO LAND IN RIVER, TAXI ONTO LEVEE

An amphibian plane owned by the Northern Illinois Public Service Co., Chicago, arrived at Lambert-St. Louis Field at noon today and later in the day will be landed in the Mississippi River, near Eads Bridge, to permit six passengers to get aboard for the return flight to Chicago.

The plane, flown by Pilot Arthur Caperton, will be taxied onto the levee to demonstrate the practicability of using the river front for aerial passenger operations with amphibian craft. The passengers are officers of the company owning the plane.

NEW YORK ASSEMBLY VOTES, 80 TO 62, FOR DRY LAW REPEAL

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 11.—By a vote of 80 to 62, the State Assembly today passed the Cuvillier bill to memorialize Congress to call a constitutional convention to repeal the eighteenth amendment.

The Republican wet bloc, which yesterday voted with the Democrats to get the bill out of committee to the floor of the House, was increased today from 20 to 21 members.

MRS. BRAZELLE DIES IN PARIS OF PNEUMONIA

She Spent Girlhood in St. Louis—Former Wife of David G. Joyce.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 11.—Mrs. Charles L. Brazelle, formerly of St. Louis, Mo., died of pneumonia in a Paris hotel yesterday. She was 37 years old. The illness followed her return from a motor trip through Italy and Southern France.

Mrs. Brazelle was formerly Miss Roberta Acuff, the daughter of the late Alonzo Acuff, a director of the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co. Word of her death was received last night by her aunt, Mrs. James H. Howe of 540 Big Bend road. Mrs. Brazelle telephoned Mrs. Howe from Paris last Saturday and said she was in good health.

Mrs. Brazelle's husband is a broker, now in New York. Owing to the stock market crash he did not accompany her to Paris last November. They were married six years ago. Her first marriage, in 1912, was to David G. Joyce, millionaire Chicago lumberman, brother of J. Stanley Joyce, who later married—and divorced—Peggy Hopkins.

As Mrs. Joyce, she spent her honeymoon on her husband's yacht, the Marguerite. The Chicago home was in a fashionable section. There was a winter residence in Miami and for the hot weather a rustic camp near Longville, Minn., with one large structure of logs surrounded by guest cottages. At the dock 20 motorboats rode at anchor.

She obtained a divorce from Joyce in 1920, their separation dating from a winter in Miami during which his brother married Peggy Hopkins. The next year she went to Paris to live and in nine months word came that she was engaged to Reginald Gouraud, one of four children adopted by Mrs. Aimee Crocker-Ashe-Gillig-Gouraud-Miskinoff, said then to be "potentially a millionaire if not actually one." Announcement of this engagement was later declared a hoax.

Her second husband is the son of Mrs. George Coleman of Chicago. He and Mrs. Brazelle had quarters in New York but spent much of their time in Paris and maintained a summer home in Biarritz.

She spent her girlhood in the Acuff residence, in St. Louis on Washington boulevard, east of Union. After attending Mary Institute, she went to the Sacred Heart Convent and later to Monticello Seminary at Godfrey, Ill. When her mother and father were divorced in 1907 she entered the home of her aunt, Mrs. Howe of Webster Groves. There she resided until her first marriage. A brother, Tom Acuff, lives in Detroit.

Arrangements have been made for returning the body for burial which will take place in about two weeks in her birthplace, Bolivar, Mo., by the side of her father's grave.

PARTIAL ECLIPSE OF MOON TO TAKE PLACE TOMORROW

Phenomenon to Last Two Hours and 15 Minutes; Visible at 9:43 P. M.

A partial eclipse of the moon, lasting two hours and 15 minutes and reaching its height at 2 minutes before midnight, will take place tomorrow night.

With clear skies, the hazy shadow of the penumbra, a circle of faint shadow surrounding the earth's black umbra, or true shadow of the earth, will begin to slide over the moon. It will disappear at 1:36 a. m. Sunday, having covered at its height about one-ninth of the moon's surface.

The phenomenon will be visible throughout North America wherever skies are clear. By studying the penumbra, astronomers hope to obtain data that will enable them to compute some of the unknown weights of atmosphere in the upper regions which cause winds and storms.

HOOVER WILL NOT WITHDRAW JUDGE PARKER'S NOMINATION to Act.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—After hearing that some Republican Senate members, alarmed at the opposition to confirmation of Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina as Associate Supreme Court Justice, had expressed a desire that the nomination be withdrawn, information reached the Senate today that President Hoover had no intention of withdrawing Judge Parker's name.

Senator Overman (Dem.), North Carolina, the chairman of the Judiciary Subcommittee considering the nomination, said today he would make a report on Parker to the Judiciary Committee on Monday. He is for confirmation.

Covered Wagons, Dirigible In Oregon Trail Centennial

Characters and Scenes of Pioneering Days Depicted in Procession and at Dinner On Anniversary.

St. Louis paused yesterday in its daily tasks to honor three men who, in the day's work 100 years ago, started something beyond their boldest dreams.

A march of covered wagons from the historic courthouse to modern Forest Park commemorated the start of Smith, Jackson and Sublette out the old St. Charles Rock Road and the Oregon Trail to the far Northwest. A pioneer dinner at Hotel Coronado commemorated what they started.

They ended, as Senator Hawes pointed out by radio from Washington, a boundary dispute that might have brought war. They proved that the continent could be crossed by covered wagon. They started thousands—350,000—Senator McNary of Oregon estimated—westward along the trail their wheels had traced, and in three years that movement had made the West and the empire beyond the Rockies an integral and indisputable part of the United States.

That movement, as it appeared at the pioneer dinner, entailed much ribaldry and great sorrow. Conspicuously displayed were kegs and bottles; such legends as, "Good-by God, we're going to Oregon." The principal speaker said, "There is not an old family in America that hasn't a dead lying in unmarked graves along that trail." But that human tide, as he and others made clear, transformed a wilderness to smiling fields and shining cities.

"100 Enterprising Young Men."

These were beyond the hopes and fears of the trappers a century ago. Historians judged that they were primarily going about their business, but, personally, going also about adventure. They were drawn together by Gen. W. H. Ashley's advertisement for "100 enterprising young men." They were David E. Jackson, the "unknown" distinguished in battles with the Indians; William E. Sublette, lured from his pool hall in St. Charles, Kentuckian adventurer and business man, who died wealthy; Jedidiah Strong Smith, New Yorker, Methodist converter and confounder of the Indians, most educated pioneer of his time, mapper of the West, who twice killed grizzly bears with a knife and himself was ambushed and slain by Indians.

They knew that they were starting something. They hoped that other covered wagons would follow theirs to counter British trapping inroads south of the Columbia River. Probably they hoped for an American settlement comparable to the British Fort Vancouver. Possibly they even foresaw that the letter which they sent the Secretary of War upon their return, exactly six months after their departure on April 10, 1830, would be included in a President's message.

But they could not foresee that a century later another President should proclaim national observance of a Covered Wagon Centennial, April 10, to Dec. 29, and that their adventure and the opening of the Oregon Trail should be commemorated by thousands simultaneously in a dozen cities centering on yesterday's celebration in St. Louis.

The Pioneers Are Off.

Hundreds stood on the steps of the old Courthouse, Fourth street beyond Market, Chestnut street beyond Broadway. The Sixth Infantry Band played. A silvery dirigible, C-53, from Scott Field, circled against a cloudless sky.

A bull-whip cracked. A bronzed horseman in deerskin jacket and coonskin cap emptied his revolver. Pigeons fluttered aloft, and the head of the covered wagon caravan swung into Chestnut street.

A wagonload of music—the army band. Then "Capt. Sublette," Indians and scouts, rifles ready across their saddles. Ten wagons covered in gray and khaki, led by one that belonged to Gen. Grant. Drivers, picturesque in coonskin caps. Passengers brilliant in hoopskirts and tiny bonnets. And last the two "Dearborn" buggies.

Chestnut street and Twelfth boulevard were heavily lined with spectators as the old-time wagon train filed through the modern city canyon, between shiny automobiles, below a dirigible, before moving picture cameras and radio microphones. An occasional paper shower fluttered from office windows towering above the one-time village of St. Louis. Out modern Olive street and Lindell boulevard, past the old common fields and the farm of canny old Peter Lindell, apartment windows were crowded and sidewalks fringed all the way to Forest Park, which was a forest in 1830.

Two hours after the parade 450 men and women were gathered at the Coronado, eating "beans and venison," chuckling at a hard-boiled pioneer host, shouting the chants of the Oregon Trail, applauding dances of the Arikaras who made that trail hazardous.

"The West was won by the covered wagon and the patient ox team," said the principal speaker, Dr. Howard R. Driggs of New York, president of the Oregon Trail Memorial Association.

"In this hub city of history you have greater wealth than all your banks, industries and railroads put together—the lives of the men who sanctified this soil by deeds which made the history of the greatest country on earth."

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR MISS SUSAN B. BESON

Funeral services for Miss Susan B. Beson, a teacher in the St. Louis public schools for more than 50 years, who died Thursday at the home of her niece, Mrs. M. P. Cayce, Farmington, Mo., were held there today. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery in St. Louis at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Miss Beson, who was 89, resigned from the St. Louis Public School system in 1907. She became a teacher in 1857, when she was only 16. At the time of her resignation she taught English and the History of Art at the Central High School. She previously had taught at various times at Benton, Eliot and O'Fallon schools and at the Old Normal school.

OLDTIME BAR WITH FREE LUNCH FOUND IN RAID AT 319 OLIVE

Everything From Beer to Champagne Seized in "Brokers' and Business Men's Club."

An old-time scene greeted police who visited the "Brokers' and Business Men's Club" on the second floor at 319 Olive street, around the corner from the Old Customs House, yesterday afternoon.

Several men were seated at tables, eating and drinking. There was a regulation bar and free lunch counter. In an icebox, locker and secret compartment were 227 bottles labeled "Canadian Beer," three quarts of "High and Dry Gin," 21 pints of "Glencoe Whisky," two quarts of "Imported Whisky," and a quart each of Scotch whisky, champagne, California sherry and vermouth.

The man in charge, who gave his name as Arthur Naegele, was arrested.

In the rear room of a four-room building at 1913 Cooper street, police reported confiscating 99 bottles of beer, two pints of whisky and a quart of gin. Charles Venegoni was arrested.

DUST STORM IN KANSAS CAUSES DAMAGE TO CROPS

Fields Already Affected by Drouth Swept by High Wind; Road Traffic Blocked.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 11. — A high wind that swept the parched Kansas soil with terrific force yesterday carried much of the soil over into the next county and caused further damage to crops. The wind frequently went above 50 miles an hour.

The wind carried tremendous clouds of dust from the fields. Motorists had much trouble at times along the West and East highways because of the dust. Road crews are removing the dust from the concrete roads in the Kaw Valley.

State agricultural officials fear the wind and continued dry weather are causing a loss of $1,000,000 a day to the farmers of the State. The State and Government wheat report indicated a condition of 78 per cent in the wheat April 1. It was admitted at the board offices that it would not rate nearly so high now.

FOUND SHOT DEAD IN STREET; LOST JOB HE HAD 45 YEARS

Frank Rickert Was Despondent, Says Daughter With Whom He Resided.

The body of a man identified today as Frank Rickert, 61 years old, a bricklayer, 6774 Manchester avenue, was found with a bullet hole in the right temple on Southwest avenue near Ecoff avenue by a motorist shortly after last midnight. The wound was powder burned and a revolver with one empty and four loaded shells was nearby.

Tracing initials in the coat, police found it was made for Rickert who, since the death of his wife in an automobile accident four years ago, made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Pauline Deal. She identified the body in the Morgue.

He became despondent six weeks ago when he was laid off by a terra cotta company, she said, explaining that "he didn't know what to do with himself," as he had worked for the firm for 45 years or since he was 16 years old.

FOUNTAIN PEN SIZE PISTOL

Ballistic Expert Calls It Deadly Short-Range Weapon.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 11.—A fountain pen pistol designed to shoot a tear gas cartridge could be converted into one of the deadliest of short-range weapons by substituting a pistol cartridge for the tear gas cartridge, Detective Henry Butts, police department ballistics expert, has reported to Commissioner of Police Whalen.

The pistol, found on Yee Kim, a Chinese, has a steel wire in the tube designed to split the gas chamber. A .38-caliber cartridge bullet fired by the pistol was split in half lengthwise by the wire at a distance of one foot, the halves of the bullets tore through a board seven-eighths of an inch thick. The cartridge was fired by a powerful spring, the wire making the pistol twice as deadly when a lead cartridge is used.

WILL PLEAD GUILTY IN OESTERREICH KILLING

Otto Sanhuber Goes Before Grand Jury "to Clean the Slate."

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, April 11.—After repudiating a confession that he shot and killed Fred Oesterreich, wealthy Milwaukee manufacturer, eight years ago, Otto Sanhuber, admitted secret admirer of Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich, announced through his attorney today that he would plead guilty to a charge of second degree murder. He immediately went before the county grand jury "to clean the slate" of his knowledge of the slaying.

District Attorney Fitts had said he would ask the grand jury today for indictments in the case. Sanhuber's lawyer then stated he had advised his client not to talk to the jury.

Announcement of Sanhuber's intention to plead guilty followed conferences between his attorney, E. S. Wakeman, and District Attorney's investigators. Wakeman intimated that others besides Sanhuber would be involved in the story Sanhuber began telling the grand jury.

Shortly before this unexpected development in the case, Sanhuber's lawyer had declared that his client had repudiated an alleged confession and would not answer questions before the grand jury. In the confession Sanhuber was quoted as saying he slipped from an attic nook in the Oesterreich home and shot the manufacturer when the latter quarreled with Mrs. Oesterreich the night of Aug. 22, 1922.

Complete investigation, the attorney said, will be demanded of alleged "evil influences" Sanhuber says were exerted over him. Wakeman declared the man, who admitted hiding in attic compartments of the various Oesterreich homes for 18 years that he might be near the woman he said he loved, was "mentally sick and subnormal." The investigation, Wakeman declared, must include persons who allegedly fastened themselves upon the fortune of the widow in asserted "pay offs" for covering up the eight-year-old murder mystery.

Mrs. Oesterreich was asked to appear in the District Attorney's office for questioning, yesterday, but she refused to discuss the case, pleading a "highly nervous condition." Unless she answers Sanhuber's charges that she assisted him in hiding in secreted nooks after the shooting, the District Attorney indicated that "more than one indictment might be returned."

The Oesterreich murder at first was thought to have been committed by burglars. Police, investigating shots heard by neighbors, found the man dead and his widow in a clothes closet, the door of which was locked from the outside. Eleven months later Mrs. Oesterreich was charged with the murder when she attempted to dispose of two small revolvers. She never was brought to trial, however, and the case was dismissed because of insufficient evidence.

BYRD'S FLAGSHIP DUE TO REACH TAHITI TODAY

City of New York Goes 182 Miles in 24 Hours—Storm Damage Repaired.

By DR. FRANCIS D. COMAN, Medical Officer of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition.

(Copyright by New York Times and St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)

ON BOARD THE BARK CITY OF NEW YORK, at sea, April 11.—Due to arrive in Papeete, Tahiti, this evening, he City of New York, Admiral Richard E. Byrd's flagship, with lazily flapping sails is jogging northward through an oily sea.

After a run of 182 miles in the preceding 24 hours, we were at noon yesterday 186 miles from Papeete. Our position was latitude 20:18 degrees south, longitude 151:08 degrees west.

For the last two or three days mild weather has given us an opportunity to recover from the effects of the hurricane. Repairs have been made, cargo has been restowed and the decks and lower rigging are hung with salt-soaked blankets and clothing washed in the rain and drying between squalls in the tropic sun.

Wednesday morning we passed over the line of the Capricorn and toward noon sighted the jagged hills of Rimitara, a small volcanic island of the Austral group.

Today Byrd will go north to Rotorua, where he will visit the Premier, Sir Joseph Ward, and view the famous hot springs.

U. S. ABANDONS INQUIRY INTO BASIL MILES' DEATH

"Not a Shred of Evidence" of Foul Play, Department of Justice Reports.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The Department of Justice has abandoned its investigation of the death of Basil Miles, former diplomat, the examination of more than a score of witnesses having failed to produce any evidence that he died under suspicious circumstances. The inquiry was undertaken at the request of United States Attorney Leo A. Rover.

The department issued a statement late yesterday saying that "not a shred of evidence has been obtained" to "suggest that Miles died of anything but natural causes, or to justify further inquiry."

Miles' widow is now Mrs. H. H. Rogers, wife of the Standard Oil magnate.

EXPLAINS REFUSAL TO LET FIRM SELL STOCK IN MISSOURI

State Securities Chief Says Trans-America Corporation's Charter Permits Branch Banking.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 11.—Fenton T. Stockard, State Securities Commissioner, in amplifying reasons for his refusal to consider an application of the Transamerica Corporation to sell $1,250,000 in stock in Missouri, said the basis for the disapproval came from a provision in the corporation's charter empowering it to become a bank holding company and engage in what is commonly known as branch or chain banking.

Stockard said he understood from the corporation's correspondence that such an action was the intention of the corporation in its proposed sale of stock in Missouri, and as the Missouri law prohibits branch banking, the application, if made formally, would be turned down.

. A. Sprick Says President of Firm Dictated Entries and He Made Them Without Question.

ankruptcy Referee Develops There Is Little to Show for $2,000,000 Got for Worthless Stock.

"Apparently the books were kept that even the bookkeeper who pt them could not understand e entries," said Referee in Bankptcy Coles yesterday afternoon the conclusion of a hearing in nkruptcy proceedings against the okerage firm of W. H. Young & ros., Inc., which through its me office in the Central National Bank Building and 65 anches in 15 states unloaded ,000,000 of worthless stock on e public before it collapsed three eks ago.

"The fact is," added Charles P. illiams, counsel for Francis E. illiams, Federal receiver for the m," that practically all entries the company's books were made so brief and cryptic a manner to give no information whater as to the nature of the transtions."

$3800 Bonus for Bookkeeper.

"I don't know," was the usual ply of William A. Sprick, head okkeeper of the company, when ked what entries on his books ally represented. Sprick, a avy-set, red-faced young man, tified his entries were dictated William H. Young, the 32-yeard president of the firm, and he ked no questions as to their imrt. President "Bill" valued okkeeper "Bill's" services so ghly he gave him a $3800 bonus addition to a salary of $350 a onth.

The hearing disclosed that the rm has little to show for the $2,00,000 taken from the public. As what became of the $2,000,000 one was certain, but it appeared rge amounts of cash and securis had been removed and no efrts had been made to collect acunts receivable standing on the oks and aggregating several ndred thousand dollars.

"Who is Mr. Benny Greenberg?" manded Attorney Williams of itness Sprick.

Doesn't Know $24,000 Debtor.

"I don't know," said Sprick, aditting Greenberg was on the oks as owing the firm $24,325 accounts receivable.

"Benny" himself is likely to be estioned by Williams, inasmuch information has reached the reiver that a handbook operator that name used to try his luck ith the Young brothers, and ade money thereby. Greenberg reported also to have acted in e capacity of collector for an ast Side gambling house which e Youngs patronized.

The "easy come, easy go" attide of the Youngs was further inated in Sprick's testimony that effort was made to collect 142,000 carried on the books as dvances to salesmen.

"Mr. Sprick," said Attorney Wilams, "there have been many runors concerning large transactions your company in Pancho Train ridge Stock."

"I heard about that, but the acunt was carried in the name of D. Hunt, and I dont know any ore than that," replied Sprick.

ays W. H. Young Took Securities.

Sprick testified that President oung, in addition to checking out ash from time to time, removed a rge amount of collateral left with e firm by customers. Sprick said is took place four or five months go, and he added that he does ot know what Young did with the ollateral.

Harold A. Young, the $700-anth "office boy" of the firm, another entertaining witness. e was in charge of the Kansas ity office, while his brothers, Wilam H. and Fred C., made their eadquarters in St. Louis.

"I had nothing to do with the ock sales," he testified. "I nev lived in St. Louis. I've not been ere more than eight times in my fe. I came out here from my ome in New Jersey last July. I nt a day and a half here restg, and then my brothers sent e on to the Kansas City office. y brother, Fred, let me live in s Kansas City home."

$700-a-Month Office Boy.

Harold admitted he was a nomal officer and director of the rm, but denied he was a "boss" ke his brothers. "I was more or a handy man, he said, "looking ter four apartments in Kansas ty owned by the Midwest Holdg Co., a subsidiary. I never did now the business well enough to t promoted, although I was hopg all the time I would."

"You were just drawing a salary nd ornamenting the position?" ggested Referee Coles.

"I guess I was not of much val," conceded Harold. "I was just office boy."

"I haven't got a dime in the d," continued the witness. "I robbed just before I came here nd I haven't anything but the suit wearing."

"I don't know," was the usual reply of William A. Sprick, head bookkeeper of the company, when asked what entries on his books really represented. Sprick, a heavy-set, red-faced young man, testified his entries were dictated by William H. Young, the 32-year-old president of the firm, and he asked no questions as to their import. President "Bill" valued bookkeeper "Bill's" services so highly he gave him a $3800 bonus in addition to a salary of $350 a month.

Doesn't Know $24,000 Debtor.

"I don't know," said Sprick, admitting Greenberg was on the books as owing the firm $24,325 in accounts receivable.

"Benny" himself is likely to be questioned by Williams, inasmuch as information has reached the receiver that a handbook operator of that name used to try his luck with the Young brothers, and made money thereby. Greenberg is reported also to have acted in the capacity of collector for an East Side gambling house which the Youngs patronized.

The "easy come, easy go" attitude of the Youngs was further indicated in Sprick's testimony that no effort was made to collect $142,000 carried on the books as advances to salesmen.

"Mr. Sprick," said Attorney Williams, "there have been many rumors concerning large transactions of your company in Pancho Train Bridge Stock."

"I heard about that, but the account was carried in the name of T. D. Hunt, and I dont know any more than that," replied Sprick.

Harold A. Young, the $700-a-month "office boy" of the firm, was another entertaining witness. He was in charge of the Kansas City office, while his brothers, William H. and Fred C., made their headquarters in St. Louis.

"I had nothing to do with the stock sales," he testified. "I never lived in St. Louis. I've not been here more than eight times in my life. I came out here from my home in New Jersey last July. I spent a day and a half here resting, and then my brothers sent me on to the Kansas City office. My brother, Fred, let me live in his Kansas City home."

$700-a-Month Office Boy.

Harold admitted he was a nominal officer and director of the firm, but denied he was a "boss" like his brothers. "I was more or less a handy man, he said, "looking after four apartments in Kansas City owned by the Midwest Holding Co., a subsidiary. I never did know the business well enough to get promoted, although I was hoping all the time I would."

"You were just drawing a salary and ornamenting the position?" suggested Referee Coles.

"I guess I was not of much value," conceded Harold. "I was just an office boy.'

"I haven't got a dime in the world," continued the witness. "I was robbed just before I came here and I haven't anything but the suit I'm wearing."

Edward I. Siegal, one of the firm's lawyers, was the final witness. He testified he and W. Blodgett Priest, another lawyer for the company, had offices in the Ambassador Building, and that Charles Madison was the firm's chief attorney in Kansas City.

Questioned about the W. H. Young Investment Corporation, Siegal said that was set up by the Young brothers for their personal investments. He said there was a $24,000 mortgage on the Matson farm in St. Charles County, carried on the firm's books at $100,000, although purchased by the Young brothers for about $70,000.

Siegal admitted removing some papers from the Central National Building office prior to the receivership, but he said they were personal papers which President Young had requested him to remove.

Two Brothers Refuse to Testify.

President Young and his brother, Fred, secretary-treasurer, were placed on the stand, but refused to testify on the ground they might incriminate themselves, inasmuch as criminal charges are pending against them.

The wives of William and Fred testified briefly that they owned valuable jewelry, silverware and linens and had bank accounts in their own names, but denied holding any assets belonging to the company. However, they admitted that title to their expensive homes—at 7346 Westmoreland drive, University City, and on Clayton road west of Ballas road—had been transferred to them after the receivership. Prior to the receivership the homes were held in the names of the husbands as well as of the wives.

Anticipating foreclosure proceedings against the homes, which are valued at about $200,000 and mortgaged for about half that amount, the Young brothers and Receiver Williams today entered into a stipulation before Federal Judge Faris whereby the homes will be sold now and the proceeds placed in escrow, pending decision by the courts as to whether the money belongs to the brothers or their creditors.

SUIT OVER JEWELER'S WILL Grandchildren of Julius Steidemann Charge Undue Influence.

Suit to set aside the will of Julius H. Steidemann, former wholesale jeweler, who died Feb. 14, was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Dorothy J. and Oliver J. Steidemann, children of his deceased son, Olive J. A trust fund of $10,000 was created for them in the will, which was dated May 27, 1929, and it is alleged Steidemann was unduly influenced by his son, Erwin, 4019 Magnolia avenue, to whom the rest of the estate, valued at $63,938, was bequeathed. Erwin Steidemann denied he exercised influence or coerced his father in any way. The elder Steidemann lived at 3532 Russell boulevard.

EX-ACTRESS PASSES TRANSPORT PILOT TEST

Miss Louise Ingalls First Woman to Get Rating in St. Louis.

A tall man alighted from a cabin monoplane at Lambert-St. Louis Field yesterday, waved a hand to the pilot, and a minute later the plane was skimming down the field in a professional takeoff.

"Did she pass?" inquired bystanders of the man—Inspector Edwin Fox of the Aeronautics Division of the Department of Commerce.

"You bet she did, and she is a mighty smart little pilot," responded Inspector Fox.

Several thousand feet above the airport Miss Laura Ingalls, former music student and actress, was celebrating an achievement for which she had worked and studied for nearly a year. She had just qualified as a transport pilot—the Government's highest aviation rating—and was celebrating with a solo flight in the high-powered ship.

Fifteenth to Qualify in U. S.

Miss Ingalls is the fifteenth woman in the United States to qualify for transport rating, and the first of her sex to receive the rating after completing a course in an approved flying school. Also, she is the first woman to receive the coveted license at St. Louis.

The flying tests, completed at noon yesterday, included banks, spirals, spins to both right and left, and "spot" landings. The practical tests followed a written examination covering such subjects as meteorology, navigation, the mechanics of aircraft and engines, and air commerce regulations. Miss Ingalls passed the written test with a grade of 95 per cent, the highest of five students, the other four being men.

Miss Ingalls, who is 25 years old, and the daughter of Mrs. F. Abbott Ingalls of New York City, took up flying last summer after eight months in vaudeville. Previously she was a secretary at the Metropolitan Museum in New York, and in preparation for the stage career which she later abandoned she studied music and languages in Paris and Vienna. Her first flying instruction was received at Roosevelt Field, but, while still in the dual instruction stage, she transferred to the Universal Flying School here last June.

Not Afraid of Grease.

Usually attired in white coveralls and beret, Miss Ingalls is a familiar figure at Lambert Field. Extremely vivacious, she entered into the flying school routine with enthusiasm, displaying not the least aversion to the grease and grime resulting from close inspection of ponderous aircraft engines. She received a limited commercial license last September and redoubled her efforts to complete the 200 hours in the air required for transport rating.

Having reached her goal, Miss Ingalls is considering several offers from Eastern aircraft manufacturers and one from a St. Louis concern. As a transport pilot she is qualified to fly planes in passenger and mail service over established airlines, or to engage in other flying activities with full Government approval.

PASTOR CAUGHT IN ST. PAUL LIQUOR RAID IS RELEASED

The Rev. W. F. Diehl of Faribault, Minn., Questioned by Federal Grand Jury.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 11.—The Rev. William F. Diehl, pastor of the St. Lucas Evangelical Church, Faribault, Minn., arrested Wednesday night in a liquor raid, was released yesterday in custody of his attorney after he had appeared before a Federal grand jury which was reported to have returned a no-bill in his case.

The grand jury is expected to present a formal report to the Federal Court today in the case in which the pastor and four other persons were arrested in the raid on a hotel.

The grand jury is said to have heard the Rev. Mr. Diehl's explanation that he was the "innocent victim of an attempt to help one of my congregation sell some furniture." He said he had talked with the hotel proprietors three weeks ago to induce them to purchase the furniture from one of the members of his congregation and that he was at the hotel at the time of the raid to close the deal.

Referring to a traveling bag in which the agents found a bottle, Mr. Diehl said "they opened it and found a package inside, of which I had no knowledge. I did not place it there. They opened the package and in it found a bottle of liquor. I did not buy the liquor or put it in my bag. I did not see anyone else do it. I am not a drinking man."

Lieut. Brow, Flyer, Divorced.

By the Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 11.—Mrs. Mona G. Brow of Edgewood, wife of Lieut. Harold J. Brow, aviator, was granted a divorce yesterday in Superior Court on the ground of extreme mental cruelty. She was awarded custody of her minor daughter and $150 a month for support of the child. Lieut. Brow, now stationed at San Diego, Cal., won fame in 1923 when he flew a navy plane 244.15 miles an hour, shattering the world record. He piloted the first plane from which a torpedo was launched successfully. The Brows were married in 1923.

CONFESSION ADMITTED IN FARM MURDER TRIAL

David Miller, Accused of Femme Osage Killing, Says It Was Forced.

Confessions obtained from Norman E. Tanner and David A. Miller, itinerant woodcutter, of the murder of Miss Pauline Duebbert on her farm near Femme Osage, Aug. 22, were ruled admissible as evidence in the trial of Miller today by Circuit Judge Woolfolk at St. Charles.

Six witnesses to the confessions testified while the jury was excluded from the courtroom. The confessions will be introduced this afternoon.

Taking the stand in his own defense, Miller said he had been starved for four days to induce a confession, which he never signetd.

Tanner, who interrupted Miller's trial yesterday by pleading guilty, is expected to testify as a State's witness today.

Tanner thus reversed his plea of last January, when a mistrial was granted because of the illness of a juror. He previously had confessed. The men were originally tried jointly, but Tanner obtained a severance.

August Meier, cousin of Miss Duebbert, who was wounded seriously during the attack on the pair, identified Miller and Tanner yesterday as the men who attacked them in the wood lot. He said that Miller threatened him and that Tanner stood by his cousin, but was unable to say who did the shooting. In his testimony at the previous trial he gave substantially the same account, except that he failed to identify the two men. Six other winesses told of hearing the shots and of the discovery of the body.

Judge Woolfolk deferred sentencing Tanner until after the trial of Miller, but warned him that his plea of guilty subjects him to life imprisonment or the death penalty.

R. C. A. NEGOTIATING TO BUY COLUMBIA GRAPHOPHONE CO.

Deal Would Give Former Worldwide Manufacturing and Distributing Organization.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The New York Times says the Radio Corporation of America is about to acquire control of the Columbia Graphophone Co., Ltd., of England as an important part of a plan of world-wide reorganization.

The deal would give the corporation a complete international manufacturing and distributing organization in every branch of the home entertainment field, with book assets at $180,000,000.

The Columbia Graphophone Co. has plants in Connecticut, California, Europe, South America and Japan. Financial observers say, however, that its chief value to the Radio Corporation would be its practically world-wide distributing organizations.

MRS. M'CORMICK, IN CAPITAL, PLANS REST BEFORE CAMPAIGN

Says She Will Go to Wyoming Ranch for Vacation; Will See Hoover Today.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—After being whirled into Washington with a flag-waving welcome from her women colleagues in Congress, Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, victorious Republican nominee for the Illinois Senatorship, announced that she would not start campaigning for election until October. She is looking forward to a rest in her ranch retreat in Wyoming, in the Jackson Hole country.

"Just a little log cabin," is the way she described it, adding, "my ranch, not my farm." Mrs. McCormick's home farm in Illinois is a business, not a recreation.

She talked about her appointment to see President Hoover today at 5 p. m.

DUCHESS CRIES 'LIAR' AT WITNESS IN COURT

Former May Etheridge Interrupts Cook's Testimony on Her Suicide Attempt.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 11.—The Duchess of Leinster, known to the musical comedy stage as May Etheridge before her marriage to the premier Earl of Ireland, shouted "Liar" at a witness in her trial today for attempted suicide.

Stanley Williams, a cook, testified they had been living together in Brixton when she was found unconscious a week ago near the gas oven. Williams said he and the Duchess had a quarrel and that he left the flat for five minutes. When he returned he found the Duchess on the kitchen floor and the gas turned on.

"I put her on the bed," he said. "She lay quiet for half an hour, then started like a lunatic. She raved about on the bed trying to strangle herself."

The Duchess jumped from her chair and shouted: "Liar! I did not and he knows I did not."

Reprimanded by the Magistrate, she subsided and begged pardon.

Williams said the Duchess raved for an hour. Then he went to the police station. Here the Duchess again interrupted, saying: "He said good-by to me."

Wililams told the Court he was a chef and had been occupying a furnished room with the Duchess for several weeks.

The Magistrate remanded the Duchess until Monday, but he refused to grant bail until he was satisfied it would be safe. He said he required the evidence of a doctor whom the defense attorney promised to bring later in the day. Two doctors later testified the Duchess had seemed quite rational in the hospital. The Magistrate, however, said that when he had granted bail previously he had not been in the possession of certain information he had now and that he could not grant the application for bail.

The Duke of Leinster was reported in dispatches from Edinburgh several days ago to be planning to file a second suit for divorce against the Duchess. He filed a suit some years ago but this was never pressed.

TWO NEGROES SLAIN, BANK OFFICER SHOT IN HOLDUP

Robbers Killed by Policeman and Guard in Suburb of Fort Worth, Tex.

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 11.—Two Negroes were shot to death here yesterday when they held up the First State Bank of Polytechnic, a suburb, and J. M. Fry, assistant cashier of the institution, was wounded seriously.

The Negroes were identified as Will Tate and George Terrell, both of Fort Worth. They were shot by City Detective H. E. Weatherford, stationed on a balcony above the bank's vault, and John Alsup, bank guard, as they fled from the bank. Alsup was in a drug store across the street. Fry was struck by a bullet fired at the robbers by Weatherford.

Police had advance information on the holdup.

PHYSICIAN IS EXONERATED IN DEATH OF WOMAN

Grand Jury, After Investigation Following Inquest, Returns No True Bill.

Dr. William H. Badger, 5879 Clemens avenue, was exonerated in the death of Miss Victoria Ungerer, 1564 Wellston avenue, March 23, in a no true bill returned by the grand jury yesterday after examining the evidence in the case.

At the Coroner's inquest, where Dr. Badger was ordered held, Mrs. William Ungerer, the girl's mother, testified that she had taken her daughter to the doctor's office on Feb. 24, where he had given her some tablets which he said would remedy her condition. Dr. Badger did not testify at the inquest.

SUSPECT HELD IN NEW YORK SAID TO BE 'PHANTOM GUNMAN'

Morrie Moll Sought in Murder of Los Angeles Man Who Identified Him as Robber.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 11.—Morris Marks, arrested in New York, is thought by Los Angeles police to be Morrie Moll, alias "The Phantom Gunman." Authorities requested that he be held for extradition here to face charges of robbery and for questioning in connection with the murder last Sept. 26 of David Antink, real estate auditor.

The robbery charged, against Moll is the holdup of Antink in 1923, while he was a drug store cashier. Four men obtained $33,000. Antink fought his assailants, wounding one of them, Granville Blair, who was captured and sent to prison. Antink was shot but recovered. Elmer Dowdy, another of the four, is serving a penitentiary term for his part in the holdup. The third gunman, Harry A. Frank, was arrested in Ohio.

Moll was arrested last year in St. Paul, Minn. Antink was taken there and identified him as the fourth robber. While extradition proceedings were under way, Moll was released on $10,000 bail and jumped his bond. Three months later Antink was slain near his Hollywood home. Police say Moll engineered the slaying, if he did not actually participate in it.

Criminal records are said to show that Moll was tried and acquitted of murder in St. Louis in 1925 and in Chicago in 1920.

FRANCES STARR IN RENO TO ARRANGE FOR DIVORCE

Husband, Haskell Coffin, Has Not Signed Settlement and Hopes Actress Will Change Mind.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Frances Starr, noted emotional actress, is in Reno, Nev., arranging to obtain a divorce from Haskell Coffin, portrait painter and magazine illustrator.

"Yes, it is true, but what a pity." Coffin said at his studio here. "She's my only love and there will never be another woman for me.

"I had a Reno letter from Mrs. Coffin and I've had letters from her attorney, a former Judge. They wanted me to sign some sort of an agreement, but I have not done so yet. Perhaps there is hope she'll change her mind. Sometimes women do, you know.

"There's only one possible ground for divorce, and that's nonsupport. For two years I was ill of nervous depression and wound up in a hospital for two months. But I'm making more money now than I ever did in my life, perhaps $100,000 a year, so the economic reason no longer exists."

Miss Starr, who became famous under the management of David Belasco, began her stage career in Albany in 1901. She became a Belasco star in the part of Laura Murdock in "The Easiest Way," which she played from 1909 to 1911. She appeared in the part again in a revival in 1921.

She is 43 years old and Coffin is 52. He has three sons by a previous marriage.

FAILS TO ELECT NEW BOARD FOR NATIONAL AIR TRANSPORT

United Aircraft Group Beaten by Present Directors in Fight for Control.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 11.—The fight for control of National Air Transport, Inc., was settled early today when it was announced the present management had been retained. The contestants were the Curtiss-Wright-Keyes group, which now controls the directorate of the corporation, and the United Aircraft Corporation, which sought to elect a new Board of Directors.

More than 500,000 of the 650,000 shares of the corporation were represented in the proxies filed and ballots cast. With the exception of two or three changes the Board of Directors remains the same as before.

Howard E. Coffin, chairman of the board, issued a statement declaring the "ethics of the United Aircraft Corporation to secure control of the National Air Transport, Inc., through a policy of preventing a quorum at the annual ing were defeated when a ma of the proxies were voted for retention of the present ma ment."

Bond Clothes go to COLLEGE

"Readin', writin' and 'rithmatic" are not the only things to be learned at our leading universities. For example, there is no place like a college campus for a post graduate course in the art of being well dressed. It's our smart "undergrads" that make the styles we all like to be seen wearing.

And so, we've gone to college! Armed with note book and pencil, we've been very regular attendants at four of our largest schools. The fruits of our learning are reflected in the most complete selection of correctly styled fashions we are presenting this Spring. Not the extreme, freakish college clothes that only belong in comic strips. But the conservative, comfortable adoptions of the English-style suits and topcoats that look well on every type of man.

The Bond-tailored two-button suit-coat with broad shoulders, slightly fitted waist, and notched lapels, stands first with most well-groomed young men—and men who want to stay young. It comes in rich worsteds, loomed by Bolton, Dunrobin and Cameron—in plain colors and subdued pattern-designs. Our more loosely draped sack-coat, in roughish tweeds, is for men who demand comfort above all else. And for the "old grad" who may have acquired a slight bulge at the waist line, we have a rare group of hard worsteds, with fine stripes that will make him look more slender.

Speaking of "slender," leads us to remind you that Bond's great 26-store volume—and direct-selling policy—keeps the price of these Fine Clothes mighty slender, too!

CINCINNATI U. S. GRAND JURY RECALLED IN GINGER INQUIRY

New Evidence of Liquor Law Violations Uncovered by Covington District Attorney.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., April 11.—Members of the Cincinnati Federal grand jury have been recalled for a second session to consider evidence pointing to liquor law violations in the sale of liquid extract of ginger. The jury was discharged Tuesday after returning 63 indictments.

Sawyer A. Smith, United States District Attorney at Covington, Ky., yesterday delivered to Haveth E. Mau, District Attorney here, evidence involving several Southern Ohio dealers. Smith said he was unable to prosecute three dealers in Kentucky because the evidence concerned acts committed on the Ohio side of the Ohio River only. The Federal grand jury at Covington indicted 85 persons on similar charges several days ago.

The indictments returned at Covington charged certain manufacturers with sale of poisonous ginger extract blamed for a wave of paralysis in this section.

7000 IN COUNTY SIGN ANTI-SEWER PETITIONS

One Document Asks for Repeal of Law; Another Seeks Legal Intervention.

Two sets of petitions opposing current sewer projects in St. Louis County have been signed by 7000 to 10,000 persons in the eight sewer districts. One petition asks the Legislature to repeal the county sewer law and the other requests Prosecuting Attorney Castlen to take some step of legal intervention in the fight. The petitions were circulated by the Taxpayers' Protective Association.

A taxpayers' injunction suit against carrying out the Overland Sewer District project has been filed. John E. Mooney, president of the association, announced today that it was intended to file similar suits in at least six of the other districts next week, probably excepting the Kirkwood district, where plans have not progressed far. Castlen recently filed a suit in behalf of University City to prevent addition of a small area of that city to the Wellston district.

The petitions were turned in at a meeting of the association at Clayton Courthouse last night, when workers also paid more than $875 on subscriptions to carry on the legal fight against the sewers. Mooney said only about one-third of the petitions had been completed and that a considerable sum of money remained to be turned in.

A meeting of the association will be held at Hancock School, 9427 South Broadway, Luxemburg, Tuesday night. The people of the Lemay Ferry Sewer District will be told then that the association will send a stenographer to the district to record exceptions to the benefit assessments fixed in a recent report of commissioners to Circuit Court.

MASKED MAN TAKES AUTO, ABANDONS IT, STEALS ANOTHER

Holds Up Pair at Garage, Drives Away in Car and in Few Minutes Commits Similar Crime.

Joseph C. Schall, 2349 Tennessee avenue, and his wife were putting their automobile into a garage in the rear of that address at 8:40 o'clock last night when they were held up by a masked and armed man who took a purse containing $7.50 and keys from Mrs. Schall and drove away in the automobile.

A few minutes later the same man held up Mr. and Mrs. James Curran at the garage in the rear of their home, 3953A Shenandoah avenue, and robbed them of $18 and their automobile, abandoning the one stolen from Schall. The Curran car later was abandoned in the 3800 block of Flad avenue.

Theft of a billfold containing $215 was reported by Frank Anderson, proprietor of a variety store at 750 South Fourth street.

Police who went to 5258 Delmar boulevard, where Walter Adams, who has admitted 23 holdups, lived with relatives, found no loot, but arrested Thomas Lawler, 28-year-old ex-convict, when they found the electric wiring had been tapped to give the tenants free electricity.

TOWNSHIP JOB COSTS QUARTER AND TEAR IN TROUSERS

Election Was Tied, but One Candidate Gives Place to Opponent Who Flipped Coin.

By the Associated Press.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich., April 11.—Myron W. Maxwell sits triumphant in the office of Vernon Township Treasurer here today, but it cost him a quarter and a rip in his trousers.

Balloting in the election at which Myron and Clyde Prescott were opposed for Treasurer was dull, and when the judges tallied the returns they found Maxwell and Prescott tied at 10 votes each.

"Flip a coin for the job," ordered the judges.

Maxwell had a quarter and he flipped it. The coin slipped from his hands and bounded into a dark corner. Judges, candidates and spectators searched. Maxwell tore his pants and got no quarter.

Maxwell's opponent then came to the rescue.

"You can have the job," said Prescott to Maxwell. "You've earned it."

THREE-BLOCK KISS COSTS $15

Driver Started in Chicago, Finished in Evanston.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Robert A. MacNeille, out driving with his girl, kissed her. The kissing—this on the word of the arresting officer—started in Chicago and extended on into Evanston. Motor cycle policemen called time.

Police Magistrate Samuel Harrison fined MacNeille $15 and costs, running the expense of the osculation to something more than $4 a block. MacNeille, a University of Chicago student, explained that the young woman whom he called Ruth was his real girl, but the Court was unable to see how that lessened the traffic hazard.

Infirmary Inmate Fatally Hurt.

Miss Josephine Polete, 58 years old, an inmate of the City Infirmary, died at City Hospital today of complications resulting from a compound fracture of the left arm suffered in a fall at the infirmary April 2. Miss Polete formerly resided at 1111 Salisbury street and had been at the Infirmary a year.

$50,000 IN JEWELS MISSING

New York Police Puzzled by Reported Theft in James Butler Jr. Home.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The disappearance of jewels valued at more than $50,000 from the home of James Butler Jr., son of the chain store owner, was reported last night to police. Mrs. Butler discovered the loss at noon when she opened her jewel case.

Police were extremely reticent about the case last night. It was pointed out that it would have been unusually hazardous for a thief to get in and take the jewels, as the servants and the three Butler dren were in the house and all doors were locked. There evidence that a door or window been forced and the employ was said, have been accounted

APPROVAL SOUGHT FOR MISSOURI PACIFIC DEAL

Van Sweringens Request Consent of Public Service Commission to Stock Purchase.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 11.—Approval by the Missouri Public Service Commission of the purchase of practical working control of the stock of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co., by O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, of Cleveland, is sought in a petition filed with the commission late yesterday.

The commission immediately set the application for hearing here April 21.

The application was filed under a provision of the Missouri Pacific Public Service Commission law, which requires approval by the commission before any corporation may acquire more than 10 per cent of the stock of a railroad or other public utility in Missouri. The Missouri Pacific is a Missouri corporation.

The amount of stock being purchased is not disclosed in the application, which merely states that it is desired to purchase in excess of 10 per cent of the stock of the Missouri Pacific. The application was filed in the name of the Alleghany Corporation, a holding company incorporated under the laws of Maryland, with its offices in Cleveland, and which is controlled by the Van Sweringens.

The application contains the reasons usually advanced by holding companies in seeking permission to hold control of public utilities. Acquisition of the stock by the Alleghany Corporation, the holding company, will not be detrimental to the Missouri Pacific according to the application but "will be in the interests of the public."

The holding company would enable the Missouri Pacific to more readily obtain such financial and other assistance as it might require from time to time, it was stated. The application was filed by George C. Willson, St. Louis attorney.

Negotiations for acquisition of the stock have been concluded, it was said, and the shares purchased are being held by individuals, and will be transferred by these individuals to the Alleghany Corporation.

The Alleghany Corporation has an authorized capital stock of 10,000,000 shares. It is divided into 1,500,000 shares of preferred stock, with a par value of $100 a share, of which 500,000 shares are outstanding, and 8,500,000 shares of no par value common stock, of which 4,250,000 shares are outstanding.

W. E. Blair, Motor Expert, Dies.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 11.—William E. Blair, nationally known as an authority on gas engine design, died last night. He is said to have designed the first "V" type motor ever built in America.

MILLIONAIRE SHOWS WOMAN WAS MARRIED

Witness for Nathan Amster Says Alleged Extortionist Had Husband.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11. — An actress friend of Olga Eide Edwards took the stand today in the latter's trial on charge of having extorted money from Nathan L. Amster, wealthy traction magnate, and testified that in 1924 and at other times Miss Edwards told her she was married to a man named Lee Edwards.

Miss Edwards who once lived in Los Angeles has charged that her son, Lee, now 6 years old, is the son of Amster. She was arrested last fall on Amster's complaint that she was making exorbitant demands for money from him, threatening if the money was not forthcoming to "tell the reporters" about the boy. He has admitted paying her some $200,000 over the 13-year period of time since they met.

Brought into the case by the defense but called today as a State witness, Lyle Stackpole, an actress, testified that Miss Edwards had told her in a letter in 1924 of her marriage. Some time later, Miss Stackpole said, she learned of the boy's existence and in 1926 Miss Edwards told her the boy's father was a man Miss Stackpole had met in a theatrical office. She admitted under cross examination however, that she had told reporters Miss Edwards had told her Amster was the boy's father.

Miss Stackpole's mother followed her daughter on the stand and corroborated her testimony.

The State rested its case with completion of testimony by Miss Stackpole's mother and after the customary motion for dismissal had been overruled James D. C. Murray called Miss Edwards to the stand as the first defense witness.

NEW YORK HEIRESS IS BRIDE OF NEWSBOY

Vivienne Huntington Met Him as He Delivered Papers at English Manor.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 11.—Happy as the bride of a 21-year-old British newsboy, Vivienne Huntington, 27-year-old New York heiress, will leave here tomorrow with her husband, Alfred Cecil Durban, on the liner Montrose for Toronto, where they hope to make their home.

Mrs. Durban is the daughter of the late Charles Pratt Huntington, architect of New York, and a cousin of Archer Milton Huntington, New York author. The bridegroom, until his marriage March 13, earned his living selling newspapers outside Folkestone Station. His father drives a butcher's cart.

The marriage was disclosed only with their arrangement to sail. The civil ceremony took place at the Folkestone Registry Office. There was no religious ceremony.

The registry office ceremony was witnessed by only three persons, a fellow newsboy of the bridegroom, a railroad porter and the registrar. The bride's mother was in Switzerland at the time and neither she nor her husband's people knew of the wedding until after the ceremony.

They went to Brighton on a short honeymoon after their wedding, and then returned to palatial Embrook Manor, Cheriton, where the bride and her mother have lived for 18 months. They have remained there since.

How Romance Began.

The bride told her own story of the wedding today, and said that she had cabled "Cousin Archer" in New York ,telling him of the marriage and hoping they would see him. She said that she had money, although less than she expected, and that they would go to Toronto, where her husband hoped to get a post in the engineering business.

She said Durban used to deliver papers at the manor where they live. There were occasional chats at the door and later she began to admire him and could see that he was fond of her.

"I had always said I would never marry a man beneath my station," she said, "but you see what love does.

"We walked out together very secretly many times, enjoying dodging people who were likely to recognize us. Then he told me he would like to marry me.

'No other man in the world could have made me happier. He is most adorable, a perfect darling."

Bride Is Daughter of New York Architect.

Archer Milton Huntington, New York author, cousin of Vivienne Maud Huntington, is a multimillionaire, his fortune being based on an inheritance of $30,000,000 from his mother, the widow of Collis P. Huntington, California railroad builder.

Vivienne is the daughter of Charles Pratt Huntington, noted New York architect, and his first wife, the former Maude M. A. ayly of Camberley, England. Huntington was divorced from his first wife in 1913, and 11 days after the decree became effective married Eleanor Moretti, an actress. He was 48 years old when he died in 1919.

King Alfonso of Spain created him a Knight of the Order of Isobel in connection with his work with the Hispanic Society of America.

GIRL DIES RATHER THAN DISTURB OTHER TENANTS

Takes Liniment by Mistake But Doesn't Think It Serious Enough to Call for Aid.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Because she did not think her error in swallowing liniment was sufficiently serious to disturb other tenants of the building late at night, Miss Clara Sweeney, 19 years old, died early today in her Upper West Side room. She was found by another tenant groping her way along the hall outside an apartment she shared with Alice Kougher, a registered nurse. First aid was administered, but she was dead when an ambulance surgeon arrived.

A note in the apartment apparently intended for Miss Kougher explained that she had swallowed a neuralgia and headache liniment for another medicine. The note said she realized the mistake at once and swallowed probably "not more than enough to make me a little sick."

"I am not alarmed," the note said," but I tried to call a doctor and ask what to do, but there was no one downstairs and I would not call anyone here at this hour unless there was a reason."

Miss Sweeney last was employed as a clerk and left her work four weeks ago because of illness. She had been offered a position since with a large corporation, the nurse told police, but had refused it because she said the girls employed there used too much powder and rouge.

Convicted of Theater Killing.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 11.—Roy Parker, 16 years old, was convicted by a jury late yesterday of manslaughter for the fatal stabbing of William Hayden, 18, in a movie house here last February 18. Parker, who was charged with first degree murder, maintained Hayden was struck accidentally with a knife he was using in self defense. Judge Porterfield of Juvenile Court deferred passing sentence until Monday.

OIL MAN CHARGES GUIDE TURNED HIM OVER TO BANDITS

J. E. Bristow, San Angelo, Tex., Says Interpreter Insisted on Their Staying After Work Was Done.

By the Associated Press.

TEPIC, Nayarit, Mexico, April 10.—Following his release from more than a month of captivity at the hands of bandits who held him for ransom, J. E. Bristow, San Angelo (Tex.) oil and mining promoter, in a report to Mexican military authorities accuses the guide accompanying him at the time of his capture of having delivered him over to the bandits.

The report was made to Col. Figueron, chief of staff to Gen. Pablo Rodriguez, military commander of the district, through an interpreter.

Bristow affirms that T. C. Fields, accompanying him in quest of copper and zinc deposits into the wilds of Nayarit, plotted with the bandit gang headed by Cruz Delgado and then tried to collect the ransom for himself.

All Fields had to say was that Bristow was "Un buen hombre" (a good man), that he had hoped he would be freed without harm, but that he had washed his hands of the entire affair. Fields has lived in Mexico for 38 years. Police and military authorities know him well.

Hired as Interpreter.

Bristow's story is that he hired Fields, who is of French extraction, as his interpreter in far Eastern Nayarit, where he worked for two days at copper prospecting, satisfying himself the deposits which he found were valuable. When he told Fields on March 9 he was ready to leave the guide insisted on remaining another day, saying he wished to get some lead samples for his employer.

Bristow said his guide was often absent for many hours at a time. He consented to remain another day, and just at dark, while his party was sitting around the camp fire, six bandits with rifles surrounded them. Bristow dashed for a small hut where the party's rifles were kept but found them missing.

The bandits disregarded others in the party but went straight for him, signifying he should put up his hands. After conferring with Fields, who served as interpreter, they mounted him on a mule and made off up the mountainside, at the top of which he found Delgado, seated on a rock. Bristow recognized Delgado as a man he had seen two days before in the village of Santa Maria Del Oro.

Agreement to Accept Check.

A ransom offer of 30,000 pesos ($15,000) was made, but Bristow offered 40 pesos which he had in his pocket. Fields argued with Feliciano Flores, second in command of the bandits, and then returned and said the bandits had agreed to accept 800 pesos, for which he would write a check which Fields would take to Tepic to have cashed.

Fields obtained two blank checks, which Bristow was told to fill out, leaving blank the space for names and amounts. The oil man protested but did not dare to refuse, accusing his guide, however, "all you want is to cash these checks for yourself and pocket the money. You will never return to get me out of this."

Fields promised he would return and left for Tepic where the German Consular agent, Hildebrand, refused to honor the drafts. Authorities were notified and the pursuit started which culminated Wednesday with Bristow's release for 3000 pesos ransom, just one-tenth of the amount demanded.

Moved Camp to Canyon.

During Fields' absence in the city, the bandits placed Bristow on a mule and started for quarters on another mountain. They killed and ate a deer and then moved further on into a deep canyon.

Two days later, 75 Mexican soldiers were in the vicinity searching for Bristow, but by careful movements the bandits avoided them, keeping always in motion from place to place, up and down the mountainsides, along the Santiago River.

At last, when the pursuit got too close, the bandits headed for the volcano, where they held Bristow for a few days and then issued an ultimatum of ransom or death. The negotiations were then carried through.

When Bristow reached Tepic late Wednesday night from Ahucatalan, where he had been released, the town turned out to greet him as a returning hero.

With a month's growth of white whiskers, he was clad in overalls and a huge straw sombrero. Although well nigh exhausted, he said he was feeling fit despite the hardships he underwent.

Bristow said that on the whole he was treated well by his captors, and was well fed except when Federal troops got too close. On those occasions he as well as the bandits ate bread and water. Wild turkeys roosted over their heads, but the bandits were afraid to shoot them because of noise from the guns.

Bristow said he had been unable to shave throughout his captivity and for the last eight days could not wash his face because there was no water in the volcano retreat. The kidnapers carried in a little, but allowed him only enough to drink. He said he slept on the ground every night and learned to rest Mexican fashion, covering his entire face and body with one blanket to balk the mosquitos.

One of his closest escapes came one night when five bandits slipped through the lines of the Federal troops to the neighboring town. They returned drunk and bent on the idea of hanging Bristow to the nearest tree forthwith.

Bristow was unable to plead his case in Spanish, so he argued for his life by the universal sign language and by tracing pictures in the volcanic sand. Delgado then took up his defense and finally talked the intoxicated bandits out of the hanging.

Bristow and his son, Obie Bristow, who came from Oklahoma with the ransom money, will leave shortly for Mazatlan, from where they will return to the United States.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 11.—The fight for control of the Freeport Texas Co., which has been under way for some time, was won by the Williams group of Richmond, Va.

The following members of the board were elected: George Gordon Battle, New York; Elmer G. Deifenbach, New York; Ralph C. Holmes, Houston, Tex.; Charles B. Holladay, Wilmington; Eugene L. $350,000,000 REPUBLIC STEEL CONSOLIDATION COMPLETED

Third Largest Firm in This Industry Organized by Cyrus Eaton at Cleveland.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., April 11.—Completion of the formation of the new $350,000,000 Republic Steel Corporation and its new officers and directors were announced here today. It becomes the third largest firm in the steel industry of this country. Tom M. Girdler is chairman of the board and E. T. McCleary president. Other officers are: Benjamin F. Fairless, Harry T. Gilbert, R. J. Wysor, Rollin S. Hall and William T. Witherow, vice presidents; Richard Jones Jr., secretary and John U. Anderson, treasurer.

The officers and directors are nearly all affiliates of Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, who engineered the merger several months ago, and who now is leading the fight to prevent the merger of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. The new Republic company was formed by combining the Republic Iron & Steel Co. with the Central Alloy Steel Corporation, Donner Steel Co. Bourne-Fuller Co. and Witherow Steel Corporation.

The company has plants in Youngstown, Cleveland, Warren, Niles, Canton, Massilon and Elyria, O., Chicago and Moline, Ill., Pittsburg and Beaver Falls, Pa., Birmingham, Ala., Buffalo and Brooklyn, N. Y., Gary and Muncie, Ind., Detroit, Mich., Hartford and Unionville, Conn., and Hamilton, Ont.

STATE CONTROL OF UTILITIES IS DEFENDED AT CONVENTION

Speakers Before Academy of Political Science, However, Admit System Has Defects.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—While admitting defects in the present method of State regulation of public utilities under public service commissions, speakers at the semi-annual meeting of the Academy of Political Science today defended the commission method and urged its retention.

William E. Mosher, professor of political science and managing director of the school of citizenship and public affairs at Syracuse University, and Henry C. Spurr, editor of public utilities reports annotated, in praising the commission method suggested its defects could be overcome by larger appropriations, enlarged scope and an increased personnel with higher pay.

Randall J. Le Boeuf, of the Niagara-Hudson Power Corporation, condemned the suggested substitution of a "contract method" of regulation.

Opposing proposed Federal regulation of electrical utilities as savoring of "absentee landlordism," Lewis Goldberg, Massachusetts Commissioner of Public Utilities, said he thought best results could be obtained "by basing valuation on the amount of money honestly invested by the stockholders in the utility and by having an elastic or variable rate of return.

Martin J. Insull, president of the Middle West Utilities Co., declared continuation of the present system of regulation of operating companies, wtih freedom for holding companies was in the best interests of the public.

BILL TO REORGANIZE POWER BOARD REPORTED TO SENATE

Couzens, Author of Measure, to Call It Up for Final Consideration Next Week.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The Couzens bill to reorganize the Federal Power Commission by establishing an independent body instead of the present group of Cabinet members, was reported favorably to the Senate today from the Senate Interstate Commerce Committe.

Senator Couzens (Rep.), Michigan, announced he would call for final consideration of the measure in the Senate early next week.

The bill would authorize the new commission to employ its own assistant personnel, except for field investigations, and would remove all executive authority from the office of executive secretary.

The measure was the basis of extended investigation by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, in the course of which the condition of Power Commission affairs were criticised, and the resignation of F. E. Bonner, executive secretary, was demanded on the floor of the Senate.

FREED ON EVIDENCE ON WHICH ANOTHER GOT 10-YEAR TERM

Dewey Goebel Acquitted of Bank Holdup Despite Testimony of Confessed Participant.

Dewey Goebel, tried for participation in the $10,000 Hamilton State Bank robbery of March 5, 1926, on the testimony of Frank Silsby, former St. Louis gangster who admitted taking part in the holdup, was acquitted by a jury in Circuit Judge Hamilton's court yesterday. Goebel's friend and associate, Lester Barth, was convicted last month on similar testimony and sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary.

Goebel's alibi, that he was in the Maplewood city jail when the bank was robbed, was supported by the Maplewood police record book which showed that he was arrested at 11:30 p. m., March 4, and released at 2 p. m., March 5. For the State, former Chief of Police Caldwell of Maplewood declared the entry was a forgery.

Although members of the jury refused to discuss their deliberations, it was understood they were swayed particularly by the court's instruction that the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice should be considered with great caution. Three ballots were taken in less than an hour.

Alibi a Great Surprise.

Goebel's alibi came as a surprise to the State. Silsby, promised immunity, had testified that he drove the robber's car while Barth, Goebel and three other men robbed the bank, and described meetings at which the robbery was planned and the loot divided at the home of Mrs. Marie Payton, 2033 January avenue.

Goebel admitted he was at the Payton home drinking home brew the night before the robbery, but declared he was arrested as a suspect in Maplewood on his way home and put in the holdover. The Maplewood 1926 report book was introduced with a notation of the arrest over the signature, "Officer Hall."

In rebuttal, the State brought out that Special Officer A. B. Hall died two years ago, and that the record might have beeen written by someone else who signed Hall's name for him. Caldwell declared the writing was not Hall's and added that no one on the force would have used the title "Officer" for a man who was a special officer or patrolman. Goebel, he declared, was never in the Maplewood holdover during his four-year term, which ended in 1927.

Same Alibi as Sheltons'.

Police records have been used for alibi purposes before and have been declared to be forgeries. A notable case was that of Earl and Bernie Shelton, East St. Louis gangsters, who offered a page from the East St. Louis police blotter which showed their names among the last five entries on Sept. 27, 1924, when a Kincaid (Ill.) bank was robbed.

Silsby boasted in a serial narrative of his life of crime, published last year, that he paid a Missouri Sheriff to fake such an entry to provide an alibi in another county. Testifying for the State at previous trials he declared the story to be true, but refused to identify the counties involved.

Otto Hammerle, a clerk for the Polar Wave Ice and Fuel Co., 3327 Virginia avenue, was foreman of the jury. The other members were: Ernest Bloss, plumber, 5354 Murdock street; Vernon Dees, Century Electric Co., 3523 North Seventh street; Albert F. Doering, a foreman, 2114 Withnell street; George F. Fitzwilliam, clerk, 4718 Adkins street; Raymond B. Fulhorst, bread salesman; Harvey W. Gutke, bookkeeper, 4247 Hartford street; Fred Hoefel Jr., salesman, 4950 Bancroft street; Albert H. Holdsworth, clerk, 3622 Morganford road; Elmer W. Kortum, clerk, 6030 North Broadway; Courtlen F. Lovelace, meat cutter, 2905 St. Vincent avenue, and Edward Nolte, a foreman, 4918 Quincy street.

WOMEN SUING FOR $800,000 LOST THROUGH BROKER

Defendant Is Head of New York Exchange, Though Man She Dealt With Is in Prison.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 11.—A woman who says she was swindled of $800,000 by a broker, who at that time was a member of the New York Stock Exchange, is endeavoring to recover her lost fortune, plus compound interest from 1923, by suing E. H. H. Simmons, president of the Stock Exchange, for $1,225,000 damages, it was disclosed yesterday. The broker named in the suit, brought in Supreme Court, is Herman Booth.

The plaintiff is Mrs. Harriet Ba diris. Although she began her suit June 20, 1928, 10 months after Booth's expulsion from the Exchange and six months after he had been sent to prison to serve a sentence of 10 to 20 years, the existence of the suit did not become known until yesterday, when attorneys for Simmons filed a motion for a bill of particulars.

ample of the profitable business large operators in making nonncelable leases to the Govern-n that rental values were inflat-

nal discussion.
Although assessed valuation for xation is not usually regarded an accurate measure of market lue, yet it is interesting for comrison. These 14 Postoffice stans upon which first mortgage nds of $770,000 were issued, are essed at $265,799 for both land
d improvements.
These properties are owned by ion, an Indiana corporation with neral offices at Indianapolis, of hich Raymond D. Brown is present. Brown has operated extenely in other sections of the untry in leasing Postoffice buildgs to the Government.

Promoter's Appraisal $1,183,000.

The St. Louis Postoffice Corpor-ion bought them in 1927 from e Audrey Realty Co. of St. uis of which Eugene Freund is esident. All but two of the buildgs were erected by Freund who several years had been special-ng in leasing postoffice stations the Government. Freund would t disclose the purchase price said it was "more than the ount of the bond issue."
A printed circular describing the nd issue said the properties had en appraised at $550,000 for the ound and $633,000 for the builds, a total valuation of $1,183,- aiser was.

Federal Rental $67,560.

some of the buildings, now un-

tal gross income from all sources
$82,920. After deducting op-come available for interest and

The interest requirement the first ar at 5½ per cent was $42,250, aving an excess of $18,112. Out this $15,000 of the bonds had to uries increasing $1000 each year the next nine years. Thus, at end of the eleventh year the nal maturity date, the amount utstanding, less sinking fund for hat year, would be only $550,000.

In this period the balance of the

These properties are owned by the St. Louis Postoffices Corporation, an Indiana corporation with general offices at Indianapolis, of which Raymond D. Brown is president. Brown has operated extensively in other sections of the country in leasing Postoffice buildings to the Government.

Promoter Leases Post Offices To Government in Six Cities

Raymond D. Brown, Indianapolis, Said to Have Received Contracts While New Was Postmaster-General.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Raymond D. Brown, head of the corporation which leases 14 postal stations to the Government in St. Louis, is an Indianapolis (Ind.) financial promoter, among whose enterprises is the active buisness of financing, building and leasing postal stations to the Government in various cities throughout the country.

Inquiry at the Postoffice Department here today elicited the information that, in addition to his St. Louis string, Brown owns and leases Postoffices to the Government in Chicago, Indianapolis, Boston, Mass.; Baltimore, Md., and Atlantic City, N. J. It was stated that all of them had been financed by the issuance of bonds through investment houses with which Brown is connected.

Former Postmaster-General Harry New, who is also from Indianapolis, told the Post-Dispatch correspondent, in response to questions, that he knew Brown, and that contracts had been awarded to Brown while New was Postmaster-General. He added, however, that Brown had been leasing buildings to the Postoffice Department for years before New was made head of the department. He said he had found Brown "a very satisfactory man to deal with," and had never known him to be active in politics.

It is stated at Postmaster-General Brown's office that Raymond Brown is not related to the Postmaster-General.

aided by the fact that in nearly all cases the buildings were erected especially for postoffice use on sites approved by the Department. It is not likely that the Department would want to move except in case of radical change in the character of the neighborhood.

The usual form of postoffice lease contains clauses permitting the Government to cancel on 90 days' notice in case the Post Office Department erects its own building, and in case the building becomes unsuitable and the lessor is unable or unwilling to furnish suitable and sufficient additional space at satisfactory rental. These clauses were eliminated from these leases, making them of the so-called non-cancelable type.

Cancellation Clause Cut Out.

Freund said that in all the leases he negotiated with the Government he insisted that the cancellation clauses be eliminated. He said that in all but two cases the buildings were erected and equipped with fixtures especially for post office use and that they could not be changed for other use without considerable expense.

The 14 stations owned by St. Louis Postoffices Corporation and included in the $770,000 bond issue are the following:

Anchor Station, 2840 Franklin avenue; Arsenal Station, 2826 South Broadway; Benton Park Station, 2607 Texas avenue; Chouteau Station, 4102 Manchester avenue; Field Station, 4540 Olive street; Meramec Station, 3135 Meramec street; Park Station, 7118 Oakland avenue, St. Louis County; Preetorious Station, 3501 South Jefferson avenue; Produce Station, 424 North Third street; Soulard Station, 1417 South Broadway; Tower Grove Station, 3612 Hartford street; University City Station, 6633 Enright avenue, St. Louis County; Wade Station, 5249 Natural Bridge avenue; Wellston Station, 1903 Hodiamont avenue.

There are about 25 other Postoffice stations in St. Louis and suburbs under lease to the Government, some by individuals and some by syndicates. Postoffice inspectors in St. Louis handle all leases in Missouri, Arkansas and Iowa. They advertise for bids, and make recommendations to the department at Washington.

EXTRA TROOPS TO JERUSALEM

Jewish, Moslem and Christian Festivals at the Same Time.

By the Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, April 11.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—British troops from Egypt have arrived here to maintain order and take all precautions Sunday, which is the second day of Passover, the day when the Moslem Nebi Musa festival processions start as well as the day scheduled for Christian Easter processions. The entire police force, including members of the band, also has been ordered mobilized.

To avoid any possible collision, the Government has issued certain regulations for those going to the wailing wall on Sunday.

MUSEUM IN VIENNA ROBBED

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, April 11.—Priceless historical objects, were taken yesterday by thieves who broke into the Vienna Army Museum. They stole the keys to the fortress of Venice and the golden keys of the City of Milan, which Marshal Radetzky presented to the Emperor of Austria after capturing the cities in 1848 and 1849.

Many jewel-studded decorations and trinkets also were taken, including 100 decorations struck off by Empress Maria Theresa, and presented to famous Austrian generals.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Mrs. Theodore J. Hoover, wife of the President's only brother, and State Regent of the California Daughters of the American Revolution, arrived here yesterday to attend the convention next week. Her husband, dean of Stanford University School of Engineering, has been in the capital attending the fiftieth annual convention of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

HEAD OF BRITISH TRADE BOARD GLOOMY ON BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Says Feeling Is General Bottom Has Not Been Reached, But Advises Against Despair.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 11.—William Graham, president of the Board of Trade, in addressing a dinner of the British Chambers of Commerce last night, said that the feeling was general that the bottom of the business depression had not been reached, but that none should give way to pessimism or despair.

Graham said that the country again was on the verge of reaching the dismal point where there were 1,500,000 men out of work.

He insisted that although there were undoubted difficulties and undoubted weaknesses there also was a great underlying strength in the economic system of the country.

The accumulated savings of millions of comparatively poor people in Great Britain are approximately $10,000,000,000, he said, and while the industrial system may have been under a great strain in the last few months it was far from being broken.

RULING ON DUAL PROSECUTION OF LIQUOR SELLERS IS SOUGHT

U. S. Supreme Court Case Involves Both Prohibition and Internal Revenue Laws.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Attorney-General Mitchell yesterday asked the Supreme Court to decide whether the Government may prosecute sellers of illegal liquor under both the prohibition enforcement and internal revenue laws.

The question arose in a case brought against Anthony Lafranca, proprietor of the Delmonico restaurant in New Orleans, La., convicted under the Federal prohibition law. The Government failed in the Circuit Court of Appeals when it attempted also to prosecute him under internal revenue laws for failure to pay taxes imposed on retail liquor dealers.

HOOVER TALKS TO ARGENTINE PRESIDENT BY TELEPHONE

Executives Thus Open Service Over Distance of 6000 Miles.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—President Hoover sat at his desk yesterday and exchanged greetings and best wishes with President Yrigoyen of Argentina in his palace at Buenos Aires by means of the recently inaugurated radio telephone service between North and South America, a distance of 6000 miles.

President Yrigoyen, because of a sore throat, was unable to talk over the telephone at the institution of the service last Thursday, when Mr. Hoover spoke to the Presidents of Uruguay and Chile.

President Hoover recalled the long, tedious journey by boat and train which took him to Argentina for his last conversation with Yrigoyen, and contrasted that with the ease with which this one was made possible.

Recalling with President Hoover their conversations during his visit President agreed that the new telephone service between the nations would be "an additional factor in the expansion of communication between our nations."

GERMAN PARTIES COMPROMISE ON 50 PER CENT BEER TAX

Levies on Department Stores to Be Increased Slightly; Hindenburg Intervenes In Dispute.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 11.—Beer disappeared as a troublesome issue within the Government parties today owing to President Von Hindenburg's intervention and protracted party negotiations.

The Bavarians accepted an increase in the beer tax of approximately 50 per cent, instead of the 75 per cent demanded by Finance Minister Moldenhauer and agreed to indorse a slight increase in turnover and department store taxes to make up the difference.

The Bavarians balked on the 75 per cent tax Wednesday, a deputy saying that beer was necessary for the nourishment of Bavarians. President Von Hindenburg then summoned the Bavarian leader Fritz Schaeffer, for a conference.

The Government's tax bills now appear certain of passing in the third and final reading tomorrow or early next week.

24 U. S. VESSELS ARRIVE AT SOVIET PORT IN 3 MONTHS

More Trade at Odessa Than in All of 1929; Ships to Be Increased.

By the Associated Press.

ODESSA, U. S. S. R., April 11.—The striking growth of Soviet-American trade was indicated here today by the arrival of the twenty-fourth American vessel which has entered this port with American goods in the last three months.

These vessels, owned by the American Export Steamship Corporation, which has a yearly contract with the Soviet Government, in the three months have taken back to European ports more Russian merchandise than was exported from Odessa in the whole of 1929. Because of the increase of business the company has increased the number of vessels calling at Odessa monthly from three to eight.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, April 11.—The Russian Automobile Construction Trust, which some time ago entrusted the planning and designing of a huge automobile factory and an entire Socialist industrial center near Nijni Novgorod, to the Austin Engineering Co. of Cleveland, O., announced yesterday it had found the Austin company's project for a Socialist town entirely unsuitable to Communist conditions of life.

BLAINE TO PRESS FOR POSTOFFICE LEASE INQUIRY

Senate by 35 to 25 Vote Barred Any Payment for Rental of Building in St. Paul, Now in Litigation.

'FRAUDULENT,' GLASS SAYS OF THAT DEAL

Congressman Maas Criticises Postmaster-General Brown, Who He Says Is Aware of Situation.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Senator Blaine (Rep.) Wisconsin announced today that he would press for immediate consideration of his resolution providing for a special Senate inquiry into charges of fraud in connection with Post Office leases throughout the country. Objection by Phipps (Rep.) Colorado, blocked action yesterday, but the early adoption of the resolution is assured.

By a vote of 35 to 25 the Senate yesterday adopted an amendment to the postal appropriations bill providing that no part of the $18,000,000 appropriated for postoffice rentals during the next year shall be paid on the St. Paul commercial postoffice, investigation of which led to the general charge of fraud. Postmaster-General Walter F. Brown had insisted that the St. Paul rental, amounting to $120,000 a year, be appropriated, although it is being withheld pending settlement of a suit in the United States Court of Claims.

Representative Maas (Rep.), Minnesota, whose inquiry into the St. Paul lease drew attention to the general stiuation, declared yesterday that Postmaster-General Brown had "deliberately attempted to mislead the Senate." Alluding to Brown's statement of Wednesday that he knew very little about the St. Paul lease, Maas asserted that the Postmaster-General's knowledge of the lease was "far more intimate" than he had professed.

He said that Brown had sent Assistant Postmaster-General Coleman to St. Paul to inspect the building and the conditions under the lease, and that "Coleman, with Brown's knowledge, held a hearing at which only witnesses for the building owners were called to testify." he added that Brown also had sent Representative Sproul (Rep.), Illinois, a letter to be inserted in the Congressional Record, stating that the value of the St. Paul property was $678,000, whereas the report of post office inspectors in Brown's own files placed its value at no more than $405,000 and other official estimates had put it much lower.

During the Senate debate on the amendment, Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia, said he regarded the leases as grossly fraudulent, and every member of the Senate Appropriations Committee regards it as fraudulent." It has been shown that after the original lease was executed, containing a clause providing for cancellation on 90 days' notice, the owner, a Chicago promoter, retained the late James Good to have a noncancelable clause inserted. It has been stated that Good received a fee of $10,000 for that service. Subsequently Good became Hoover's Western campaign manager, and then Secretary of War in Hoover's Cabinet.

One of the things which the Senate investigation will endeavor to ascertain is the identity of the attorney now representing the Chicago promoter in his negotiations with the Postoffice Department for other leases. The name of a former high official under the Coolidge administration has been frequently mentioned in that connection.

A temporary surface of macadam, which has been laid over filled-in portions, will be replaced when the ground has permanently settled.

ACTION PLANNED TO OUST TWO NEGROES FROM WHITE DISTRICT

Home Owners in White Plains, New York, Section Object to Physician and Dentist.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Agitation against Dr. Erroid B. Collymore, Negro dentist, who recently moved into a white residential section in White Plains, took concrete form yesterday when home owners in South Lexington avenue retained an attorney to oust the Negro.

Dr. Collymore's friend, Dr. A. M. Williams, Negro physician, who also has purchased a house in the district, was the subject of a meeting of white neighbors in De Kalb avenue at the home of C. P. Parkinson, where means of inducing him to move were discussed.

Earl Hite, attorney, said yesterday he did not intend to take immediate legal action against Dr. Collymore, but hoped to get him to agree to leave. He said his clients feared depreciation in real estate values. Both Negroes reiterated yesterday that they intended to stay. The special police patrol which has guarded their homes the last few nights was withdrawn last night, but the regular policemen on duty were instructed to watch the place.

Nationalists Fight Police When Former Are Prevented From Garlanding Convicted Prisoners.

SANDALS, STONES THROWN AT GUARDS

Officers Then Charge Crowd With Clubs but Fail to Disperse It—One Nine-Month Sentence.

By the Associated Press.

BOMBAY, India, April 11.—Twenty-two persons were injured in rioting outside the courthouse here today when several Nationalist volunteers, who yesterday offered passive resistance during a police raid on National Congress headquarters, were sentenced.

A large crowd attempted to get at some of the prisoners, as they were removed, to hang garlands on them. The police fought them off and the Indians changed from passive resistance to a shower of sandals and stones.

Ten police, of whom three were Europeans, were injured. The police then charged the crowd with their clubs. There were 12 casualties among the Indians. The crowd continued to throng the neighborhood, a predominantly Hindu locality.

Among those sentenced were Abid Ali, who got nine months, and Mehr Ali, charged with abetting incitement of violence and breach of the salt laws and was sentenced to four months' simple imprisonment.

Eight Additional Arrests.

Eight Nationalist volunteers from the Villeparle camp were arrested this morning for violations of the salt laws.

Yesterday's raids resulted in the destruction of pans which had been set up in the Congress Hall for the illegal manufacture of salt. After today's court proceedings, the provincial congress committee issued the following statement:

"A way has been found by which it will be possible to give a heartier welcome to the police on their next friendly visit. The pans already are being re-erected and effective measures to avoid surprise by the police. We feel confident that on their next visit it will be difficult for the police to break the pans before they break the bodies of the offenders to pieces. We hope the police soon will try this experiment."

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

In Praise of Warden Rudolph.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

RABBI THURMAN'S attack upon Warden Rudolph certainly was unwarranted. Warden Rudolph deserves to be commended for successfully handling the first prison riot which did not result in a loss of life.

He is not responsible for the overcrowding at the penitentiary, but he has run the institution without the aid of law breakers. If a prisoners' welfare organization had been permitted, as in Auburn and other penal institutions where riots have occurred, the results of the recent mutiny would have been far more disastrous.

Perhaps if Rabbi Thurman knew the "never works" and "smart alecks" as well as Warden Rudolph knows them, he would realize that they have no use for religion, spiritual teachers or advisers, except to use them to obtain favors for themselves. I have known spiritual advisers who would sneak letters out of an institution for inmates who would flatter them upon their soul saving ability.

Rest assured, Rabbi Thurman, the 85 per cent of innocent inmates who followed the leaders of the mutiny would rather accept the rigid discipline handed out by the Warden than suffer manhandling by their fellow inmates.

The Warden and all who assisted him in quelling this rebellion without loss of life deserve the thanks, appreciation and respect of all law-abiding citizens.

"Iron Man" and "Louis Beretti."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I WANT to congratulate the Post-Dispatch on its selection of continued stories, such as "Iron Man" and "Louis Beretti."

These stories were the best I've ever read in their class.

I am also with you in the fight against prohibition as it is not a fit law and it is demoralizing our country.

We now have open defiance not only of the prohibition law, but laws that really should be enforced.

LEE BOONE PROSE.

The Library's Early Closing Hour.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I FREQUENTLY go after working hours to a branch of the public library near where I reside, but find I hardly get interested before it is time to close the building. It seems to me the present closing hour at night, 9 o'clock, is too early for many people, who could stay on a few hours longer.

This could easily be arranged by ceasing the issuance of books at the present time, 9 p. m., but having one attendant remain on duty for at least an hour longer and permitting those who prefer to read later to do so. By a system of alternation, or else allowing the one in charge to come that much later in the day, this should not work too great a hardship on the attendants.

I have frequently noted the air of disappointment of many readers when told it was closing time, that is when 9 p. m. came around. And personally it makes it rather inconvenient, as I have to go back home and under not as good conditions as available at the library, continue my reading. Another factor is that many people not employed or who cannot afford to use their electricity use the libraries for that very reason.

A Tip to Tourists.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NOW that summer is almost right around the corner, everybody takes the old car out of the garage and begins to tune her up for the tourist season. To the traveler who wants to take his car with him wherever he goes and also wishes a bit of recreation, there is no better one than a brief trip on a packet boat on the Mississippi River.

All the regular excursion packets on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers advertise that they transport your car and you on their trip. As the writer has done this with his own car, he can guarantee a complete rest from the strain of touring by taking a trip on the river.

RIVER LOVER.

They Want a Change.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I THINK your paper is doing a great public service in fighting this menace, prohibition. That a large majority of fair-minded people want a change in the eighteenth amendment cannot be denied. Out of some 20 families in my block one got a ballot from the Literary Digest. He is bone dry, and the only dry in the block that I know of.

Conserve the Constitution by removing this mistake, prohibition.

CITIZEN.

ST. LOUIS' GREATEST ASSET.

In the opinion of Director Klein of the Kansas City Coal Service Institute, "coal is the greatest asset St. Louis has ever had." Other fuels can be, and are, used to better advantage for special purposes; but as an industrial utility coal surpasses them all. In our metropolitan district we consume more than 7,000,000 tons of coal annually, which, in money, means $36,000,000. Further, Mr. Klein asserts, "coal can be burned smokelessly, and if civic authorities are helpless to prove this, it behooves the coal industry to do it."

Such assurance ought to be comforting to the coal people. Theirs has been a "sick industry" for a long time, and still is. But if coal is the superior product which Mr. Klein says, and if it can be burned smokelessly, the natural question is, why has not that fact been established? The civic authorities may have been clumsily inefficient in their efforts to perfect a smokeless coal, but what about the coal industry? Surely the coal operators have the largest material interest in the proposition of making coal smokeless; of producing a commodity for industrial consumption that will eliminate competitors, not merely in the item of price, but on the score of desirability.

The coal industry has been charged with lacking the initiative, energy and resourcefulness which have accomplished so many miracles in other industries. One tires, perhaps, of hearing the automobile industry cited as the prodigy which has deleted the word impossible from its dictionary; but, nevertheless, that is the spirit in which it has conquered. And never was there a more impressive example of that spirit than that which the world is now watching—the conscription of Edison's genius to the task of finding a new source of rubber to meet some distant day of need. There may be only one Edison, but there is an abundance of scientific talent available, which, properly equipped, might reasonably be counted on to discover a practical smokeless process for burning coal. If the coal industry has undertaken to find such a process by scientific research, and with resolution similar to that of Edison's rubber quest, the fact has escaped the publicity it merits.

Certainly coal is a vital commodity. Coal is power. Coal is life. A city with an inexhaustible supply of coal in its backyard is wonderfully fortunate. A city so circumstanced has the lever with which Archimedes said he could move the world. But the coal industry must modernize coal. It must make coal a twentieth century product. It must snap out of its "it-can't-be-done" complex and do it.

LUDENDORFF AND HINDENBURG.

Gen. Erich von Ludendorff, one of the old school of German monarchists, and, likewise, militarists, adds another chapter to his volume of post-war mistakes in the criticism directed toward him by the German Officers' Bund for what they term his "gross libel" of President von Hindenburg. Obviously distracted by the popularity of the President, who has shown himself an intelligent public servant and one sanely devoted to his country, Von Ludendorff announces that "for four years Hindenburg has done all I told him to do," and that it was "Hindenburg who betrayed the Kaiser and delivered Germany into the enemy's hands."

Von Ludendorff, like the late Von Tirpitz, is essentially a man of war, of the most unrelenting type of war. He is the unperceptive soldier who would substitute the severities and injustices of martial law for the freedom of a civil government. In condemning him the German Officers' Bund exhibits a sense of human values and, we hope, indicates the manner of the new Germany.

THE ARTISTRY OF KIDNAPING.

They had quite a party up there in the mountains of Western Mexico when J. E. Bristow, the oil man, arranged to pay his ransom. Incidentally the bandits graciously accepted $1500 when by sharper bargaining they might have had $15,000. After the negotiations were ended a feast of turkeys and wine was prepared by Chieftain Cruz Delgado and his men, healths were exchanged and Mr. Bristow was sent merrily on his way homeward with pleasant vivas ringing in his ears. Obviously, kidnaping in Mexico retains some of the good old romantic flavor.

As much cannot be said for American kidnaping. We have in mind the case of Jakie Hoffman, St. Louis gambler, who was captured by gangsters in St. Louis recently. He was placed in a windowless room and fed nothing but ham sandwiches or some such unimaginative fare. His guards were grim roughnecks who understand nothing of the amenities of life. Their conversation was confined to grunts and abusive epithets, with the result that Jakie had a very uninteresting time of it.

Robin Hood and all other bandits who have made names for themselves in history did things in the grand manner. They were not mere cash-and-carry thugs, but men who, having chosen banditry as a profession, gave it a certain charm and dignity. Not much of a case can be made for kidnaping. Under the best of circumstances, it has its drawbacks. But once it is done, let it be surrounded with as much pleasing ceremony as possible.

And now they're saying that $1,000,000 was spent to nominate Mrs. McCormick in the Illinois senatorial primary. We refuse to believe it because we remember distinctly somebody told us that, as soon as they got the ballot, the women would purify politics.

MUSSOLINI, ARCHEOLOGIST.

Premier Mussolini, who wanted to put Caligula's galleys among his Roman souvenirs, has stopped the draining of Lake Nemi after more than a year of work and expenditure of about $100,000. The first barge proved to be only a rotted hulk, with none of the treasure on board which legend had described. Divers, who might have checked up on the situation before the huge project was begun, say the second galley is equally uninteresting. The vessels had been rotting away at the bottom of the lake for 1900 years. For the last five centuries they had been ravaged by the grappling hooks of fishermen who found the sale of antiques a lucrative sideline. Caligula, who is said to have sunk the galleys as a joke on certain friends he had invited aboard, seemingly was canny enough to remove the most of his trophies and ornaments before playing his prank.

Not only was the archeological venture a failure, but it destroyed for generations the beauties of Lake Nemi, a picturesque and historic spot known to the ancients as the "Mirror of Diana." Only mud and a few pools remain where calm blue water once reflected the trees along the shores, and most of the trees themselves have fallen into the swamp created by the drainage. It will take 15 years for the lake to fill again, engineers estimate, and far longer for the trees to be replaced. It was a choice between antiquities and natural beauties when the project was commenced, and both have lost. Not even the legend of buried treasure remains to add mystery to the lake.

A WEAK SUBMARINE AGREEMENT.

The submarine agreement reached by the five Powers is lamentably weak. It provides that a merchant ship may not be sunk until passengers and crew have been placed in safety, and stipulates that the ship's boats may not be regarded as places of safety in dangerous seas except when land or another vessel is in proximity. This sounds well, but it doesn't mean anything. In the first place, the submarine commander himself remains the judge of what constitutes safety. In the second place, if he violates the vague language of the agreement, what can be done about it? The agreement contains no penalty for violation, no machinery by which an erring submarine commander can be punished.

At the 1921 conference, all the Powers signed the Root convention which never became effective because France failed to ratify it. The Root convention contained the same restriction on submarine warfare as the present agreement, but it added a clause making offending submarine commanders liable to trial for piracy. The conferees at London could not be persuaded to accept the piracy clause for reasons which indicate their complete insincerity in the whole proposal. For one thing, it was argued that a submarine commander guilty of terrorism would probably be acting under orders from his Government. Why, then, should not the Government itself be punished? Second, that any effort to try the commander for piracy would invite reprisals against prisoners by an enemy Government. What a flimsy excuse that is!

Of course, looking at the problem realistically, all efforts to humanize the submarine are discouraged by the physical nature of that weapon. Even if submarine commanders were willing to do so, they could not follow the rules of war at sea prescribed for standard-sized ships. Essentially the submarine is a worker in the dark against enemies of disproportionate size. It must deal its stab in the back and run to safety. It could never tow a merchantman to port as its prize because, to begin with, it could never capture the merchantman without disabling it. Thus, if rules are to be adopted for submarine warfare, it is futile simply to attempt to apply the old rules used before the submarine was invented.

The London conference had the opportunity to come to the submarine problem with a fresh point of view and to formulate powerful restrictions on its use. It failed to do so. It failed even to formulate an agreement as strong as the Root convention of 1921. Certainly, the public cannot be blamed for regarding the five-Power submarine agreement, as the Post-Dispatch correspondent in London puts it, "with a good deal of cynicism."

MR. HOOVER'S METHOD.

As experienced a political observer as Frank R. Kent of the Baltimore Sun thinks Mr. Hoover showed sound judgment in saying nothing about the tariff bill. That, of course, is a matter of opinion. But to declare, as Mr. Kent does, that anything Mr. Hoover might have said would be futile seems to us a pretty big assumption. Nobody can say positively what the consequences would be of something that was not done. This much may be said: The country has seen the results of Mr. Hoover's silence on the tariff bill. And it is permissible to conclude that, if he had reaffirmed the position he took in his message, if he had reiterated his stand for a limited revision, the record could not have been worse and might, conceivably, have been better.

In his memoirs as a journalist Solomon Buckley Griffin of the Springfield (Mass.) Republican somewhere observes that "the art of politics is getting results." One man has one method, another a different method. The affable McKinley employed gentle suasion. Roosevelt the big stick. Wilson had his technique. So did Cleveland. They got things done. Perhaps Mr. Hoover will yet win that verdict. He has not won it yet. He has lost control of the Senate, and the party that was swept into power two years ago by an unprecedented majority is entering the congressional campaign this year on the defensive.

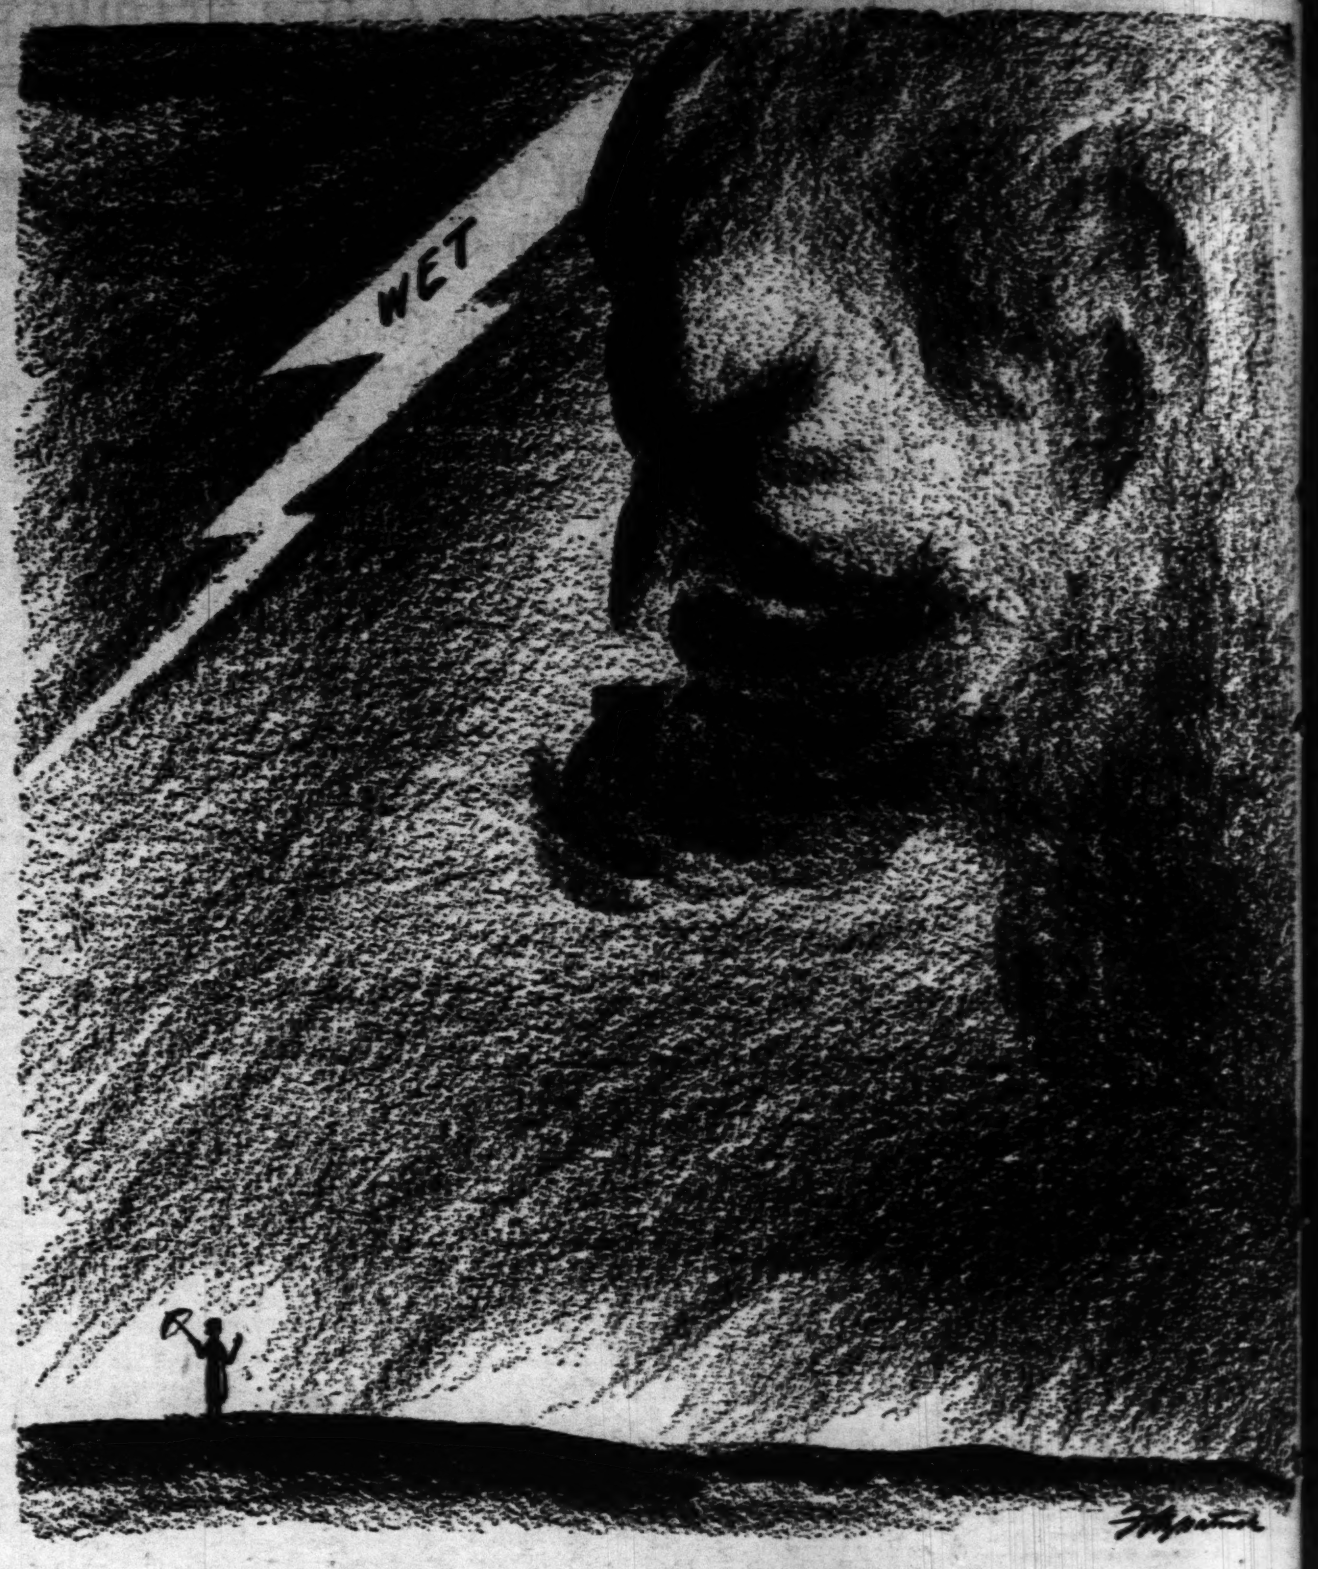
A course that has got nowhere, that has adversely changed the psychology of the whole political situation, cannot be called good politics or successful leadership in the accepted meaning of those terms.

THE GREATER ST. LOUIS PLAN TAKES SHAPE.

After almost a year of careful planning, the proposal for establishment of a metropolitan government to unite St. Louis and St. Louis County as the single community they really are is nearing completion, and it has become possible to get a general picture of the scheme.

Greater St. Louis would be established as the municipality of the whole area, and it would have a population well over 1,000,000, but neither the present St. Louis nor the suburban towns would lose their identities. The old-fashioned county government would be abolished and in the outlying, unincorporated section a new sort of simple town government would be set up under a commission of three. Tax rates would be adjusted and shifted to meet the changed requirements without materially raising the tax burden, but the functions of government would be greatly extended, particularly in the county, where the need for that is great. For the city, the big advantage would be the provision for orderly growth and development of the community—an advantage which may not be readily apparent to everyone now, but which is a great civic need just the same.

To say that the Greater St. Louis plan, as it is being unfolded, is perfect would be ridiculous, but no one yet has found a serious fault with it. The time is at hand for the fullest public discussion of the subject. Either adoption or rejection of the merger proposal will have a far-reaching effect on the community, and its proponents are convinced that adoption will mean the beginning of a new era for the metropolis of the Mississippi Valley. There is no doubt that many desirable reforms are contemplated in the scheme and no backward step has been found in it. Citizen advice has been sought at every turn, and numerous representatives of both city and county have approved every phase with gratifying unanimity. The detailed plan will be made public soon in connection with the enabling constitutional amendment.



NO TIME FOR A PARASOL, MRS. McCORMICK.

Illinois and the World Court

Winning of Illinois Senate nomination would be more impressive if Mrs. McCormick had made campaign of real significance; her main issue was fight on World Court formula, which is backed by administration; dodged questions at home, particularly prohibition; needed Chicago votes too badly to declare herself a dry.

From the New York World.

MRS. McCORMICK'S victory in Illinois would be more impressive if she had made the sort of campaign which many of her friends no doubt expected her to make when she announced her candidacy for the Senate. Mrs. McCormick is a woman of intelligence. She is both more interesting and more able than the thoroughly mediocre Mr. Deneen, whom she has now defeated for the Republican nomination. If she is elected to the Senate she will be more useful than Mr. Deneen has ever been. In this sense her victory is a gain. But it is a victory plainly won after a campaign so shabby that it lacks real significance or importance.

So far as we have been able to discover, Mrs. McCormick made her campaign almost exclusively on opposition to the Root formula for the admission of the United States into the World Court at The Hague. She dodged most issues nearer home than Holland. She dodged especially the question of prohibition, though there is a great deal of evidence to show that the people of Illinois are aggressively interested in this question. Mrs. McCormick needed votes in Chicago too badly to declare herself a dry. She was not bold enough to declare herself a wet. So she evaded the problem of defining her position and apparently permitting one side to believe, if she could only say what she really thought, she would oppose the law, and the other side to think that she would favor it.

This was not a particularly creditable performance, but it was no worse than Mrs. McCormick's handling of the question on which she chose to fight her campaign, namely, her opposition to the Root formula. Mrs. McCormick is entitled to believe, if she does believe, that the Root formula does not adequately protect American interests and that the World Court itself is worse than useless. But in her effort to win votes she went beyond this to revive the old hobgoblin of Great Britain's six votes in the League of Nations as evidence, presumably, that American participation in the World Court would bring us under British domination. This is a perfectly good way for William Hale Thompson to fight his battles in Chicago, but it certainly cannot measure up to what many of Mrs. McCormick's friends must have expected of her.

What the effect of her victory in the primaries will be, so far as the question of the World Court itself is concerned, we have yet to see. It is now more than a year since the Root formula was approved by the International Committee of Jurists appointed to consider it. It is more than six months since 50 nations which are signatories to the court treaty authorized the approval of the protocol which embodies the Root formula. This action was entirely satisfactory to the Government of the United States. President Hoover has said that the Root formula goes even further than the Senate's reservations in the protection of American interests; that under this formula "the doubt about advisory opinions has been completely safeguarded," and that in these circumstances our adherence to the court cannot possibly be regarded as "the slightest step toward entry into the League of Nations."

The fact remains that at the end of a year in office Mr. Hoover has given the country no effective leadership on this question and has made no real effort to bring it before the Senate. All that Mr. Hoover has ever said about the question of action on the Root formula, so far as we remember, is that he would send the protocol to the Senate with a special message "at some time when it is convenient to deal with it."

This convenient time has never come. Mr. Hoover has let the issue drag along. Friends of the court have begun to believe that he has no great interest in it. Now comes a primary election in Illinois in which Mrs. McCormick has once more proved that the tail of the British lion is good for votes when it is twisted in Chicago.

The handful of irreconcilables in the Senate will certainly declare that Mrs. McCormick's triumph is their triumph; that the plan for American membership in the World Court is dead, and that Mr. Hoover does not dare revive it.

Surely the President will be forced to accept this challenge when it is thrown at him and to move at once for action on the protocol. To that action both he and his party are deeply pledged. He cannot afford to wait for what he has called a convenient time.

Mr. Dyer's Rare Statesmanship

From the Montreal Star.

THERE is a gentleman named Dyer serving as a more or less humble Congressman in Washington whose name should be preserved in the annals of legislative bodies all the world over. Some years ago Mr. Dyer introduced a bill making it an offense punishable under Federal law to transport a stolen motor car across a state line. Neither he nor his colleagues apparently thought the matter out very carefully, and the bill became a law. There were 2122 convictions under the Dyer law last year, a large number of them for such minor offenses as joyriding, and one-third of the time of the Federal bureau of investigation was taken up in the chasing of such offenders.

There is nothing very remarkable in the fact that a piece of half-baked legislation does not work the way it was supposed to; it happens everywhere, not excluding Canada. The really remarkable thing is that the author of the law in question admits that he was all wrong. This year he has introduced another bill to repeal his previous effort.

The name of Dyer will never survive as a great lawgiver, but it ought to be immortalized as that of a member of an elective body dependent on votes for re-election who has been willing to admit that he made a fine, big blunder and to do penance therefor in the most effective way. Here is one popular representative at least who is not, by his own admission, infallible.

There are 97 rooms, 28 with baths, a

Of Making Many Books
JOHN G. NEIHARDT

STRANGE BEDFELLOWS. By Don Herold. (Farrar and Rhinehart, N. Y., $3.)

WHEN Don Herold chose this highly suggestive title for his book of "crazy-quilt memoirs," he realized keenly the danger of being misunderstood by sophisticated people. "But if you read that into the title," he remarks, "it shows what kind of mind you have." Just the same, it is on record that Mrs. Herold objected to the title. "I am afraid, honey," said she, "that the public will get the impression that you are a philanderer, a roue—that it will think this is the story of your amours." Don, however, by his own confession, is one of those robust, outdoor he-men, and once he is convinced of the eternal rightness of his position, not even his wife can move him, as the retention of the title proves.

Ever since Don was born "one evening shortly after supper," he has been noting that this is a world of "ridiculous juxtapositions"—so much so that, according to his now mature judgment, "a man has to look a little cockeyed at the whole kaleidoscopic mess in order to see rhyme or reason in it." "That, if any, is the purpose of the book," he explains, the title being quite metaphoric.

Don Herold's fun is of the utterly irresponsible sort that certainly has its uses at times as an escape from chronic perplexity.

The volume is tastily bound in bed-ticking, and Don advises collectors that "a limited number of copies of this book have been bound in zebra (the nearest thing in leather to bed-ticking)." He is willing, if importuned, to part with this excessively rare edition at the rate of $200 per copy.

DOWN THE TIBER AND UP TO ROME. By Harold Donaldson Eberlein, Geoffrey J. Marks and Frank A. Wallis. (Lippincott, New York. $3).

Last year, Messrs. Eberlein and Marks, well known for their various travel books, and Mr. Wallis, artist, descended the Tiber in a collapsible rubber canoe seven feet long and three feet wide. The distance from the head of navigation at Orte, where the voyage began, to Rome, where it ended, is only 195 miles; but the region is rich in historical associations and natural beauty, which were duly appreciated by the voyagers, and the result is a more than ordinarily pleasing travel book. The many drawings by Mr. Wallis, made along the way, contribute greatly to the volume's charm.

THE PERSONALITY OF A HOUSE. By Emily Post. (Funk and Wagnalls, N. Y., $4.)

Having established herself as an authority on polite social usage with her book on Etiquette, Emily Post now presents an exhaustive work on the principles and practical methods involved in making the home a place of comfort and beauty. She deals with the interior decoration of both new and old houses, and, unlike some writers on the subject, she does not assume that everyone who appreciates beauty in the home is necessarily wealthy. Accordingly, housewives with moderate means, as well as those who need not think of cost, should find the book an excellent guide for the exercise of ingenuity and taste in beautifying the home.

SEEING ENGLAND AND SCOTLAND. By E. M. Newman. (Funk & Wagnalls, New York. $5).

This is the fifth volume in the author's "Traveltalk" series, the former volumes having dealt with Egypt and the Holy Land, Italy, Russia and Germany. The author has taken into consideration the tastes and interests of various types of travelers, presenting many phases of life, scenery, art, history and architecture. Now that the best season for touring England is approaching, this glorified guide-book should be of special interest to many.

THE ALIEN IN OUR MIDST. Edited by Madison Grant and Charles Stewart Davison. (Galton Publishing Co., Inc., New York. $3).

Contains articles on the perils involved in immigration by many representative Americans from the early Colonial period to the present day. The subtitle, "Selling Our Birthright for a Mess of Potage," suggests the character of the book, as does the following quotation from Thomas Jefferson on the fly leaf: "The mobs of great cities add just so much to the support of pure government as sores do to the strength of the human body." It seems a bit late to publish a volume of this sort.

THE AIR-TOURIST'S GUIDE TO EUROPE. (By Captain Norman Macmillan Ives. (Washburn, N. Y., $3.)

Thoroughly well described by its title.

In the current number of "The Hound and Horn," published quarterly at Portland, Me., there is a penetrating study of the late Stuart Sherman's criticism from which the following is taken: "If sound criticism must always be radical criticism, if stringency impatience, and a certain harshness are the very spirit of its method — then Sherman was not a first-rate critic. He accepted too warmly much that was hopelessly mediocre in literature; and fought shy too cautiously of much that was dangerously first-rate."

THE LOG OF THE CORIOLANUS. By Norman Matson. (Vanguard Press, New York. $2).

Norman Matson first won wide attention with his story of child life, entitled "Day of Fortune." This was first published in England, where it was received with enthusiasm by many of the better critics. Previously he had published "Flecker's Magic." In "The Log of the Coriolanus" he tells the story of his cruise among the Cape Verde Islands with a crew of natives, he being the only white man aboard.

HEAD OF BROWN UNIVERSITY TALKS TO ST. LOUIS ALUMNI

Dr. Clarence A. Barbour Says Enrollment of 2000 Allows School to Operate Efficiently.

Dr. Clarence Augustus Barbour, president of Brown University, Providence, R. I., described the school's progress to about 20 alumni at a dinner at the University Club last night. The university has limited its enrollment to 200 students, he said, in order to preserve its maximum efficiency, pointing out that colleges throughout the country are being forced to adopt similar measures because of the influx of students.

Dr. Barbour, who became head of the university last year, is addressing alumni associations throughout the United States.

New York Day by Day
By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 11.

THOUGHTS while strolling: Radio artists who go in for Valentino sideburns. Those fake twin sisters who dress alike and coyly glance back as they pass. L. M. Gianinni, the banker. A Lexington avenue barber shop offers a "free manicure." Elsie Ferguson in a mink coat going into a Child's.

Marc Connolly, a Pittsburg, Pa., boy, who made good in the city. Rarely see a picture of Mrs. Grover Whalen. Noonday crowds spending the luncheon hour in parks — reading and munching chocolate bars. A linen shop displays sheets embroidered with quotations. Funny, how beauty experts are almost as homely as columnists.

Children don't seem to have croup any more. Amelia Earhart up in the air again—but on a bus top. An Ole Clo' Man who plays tunes on a concertina to attract trade. Mme. Binney, who revived the corset. What's become of the phrase: "That's priceless!" Mansions all unboarded for summer.

The sun beams. Birds chirp. And girls are in summer ginghams. Pale-looking people who patronize vegetarian cafes. A certain glamour somehow to theatrical hotels. Joe Leblang, the cut rate king. He furnishes a room where dramatic critics may write reviews.

The newsboy evangelist of West Forty-second street. The spread of continuous burlesque. George White always skips along as though on his way to a general alarm fire. Fly-blown shops with glass jars of candy on display out front. Greeks who wear flamboyant shirts. And oil their hair.

Mugs about the Garden who talk in husky monosyllables. Women with baskets on their heads—going to Paddy's Market. Combination fish stands and pool halls. Inarticulate children who stand about darkened hallways and seem unable to play. Old men with dry nervous coughs.

The Aphrodite Hat Cleaning Salon. Faces that peer out from the curtained windows of drab boarding houses. Wall paper of spotty gray-green. The smell of boiled cabbage and lysol. Soiled white poodles. Nothing heightens squalor so much as a gas house.

A NEW wrinkle in theatrical ballyhoo is to be tried out shortly. The manager of a star is to exploit her without using her name on billboards and in newspapers. His lithographs will use instead her picture, without caption, and the name of her play. On the program she will be listed merely as The Star.

A MAN about town, who was forced to sit in a courtroom and hear love sizzling letters read to 12 perfect strangers in the jury box, begged a friend to sit with him through the trying ordeal. After the first missive, featuring much mumsie-wumsie talk was read, the friend inquired: "Did you actually write that?" He bowed his head in assent. "Good-by, then," said the friend — and scooted.

THEATRICAL hotels have stopped "on the cuff" patronage. It has been a custom to carry along players "at liberty" until they secure new engagements, but jobs are too scarce these days. More than $250,000 in debts are outstanding among inns catering largely to performers. Thus the "cash in advance!" policy.

ONE branch of the theater, however, is said to be unfailing in settling personal debts. Vaudeville acrobats are especially prompt, it appears.

THE vaudeville curse is: "May all your children be acrobats!" Yet they are perhaps the cleanest living and most religious of all entertainers.

Repairs Following Christmas Eve Fire Completed; New Ventilating System Installed.

By the Associated Press.

Since the fire the Chief Executive has maintained his offices in the State, War and Navy Building.

The arrangement of the executive offices has not been changed. A new ventilating system to maintain even temperatures and humidity, summer and winter was installed during the repair work.

FORT WORTH, TEX., SELECTED FOR NATIONAL BALLOON RACES

Contest to Start May 25; Twelve Teams Expected to Enter.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., April 11.—The National Elimination Balloon Race will be held at Fort Worth, Tex., May 25, William Ganson Rose, manager of the Gordon Bennett International Balloon Race, announced here yesterday. The international race starts here Labor day.

At least 12 teams will enter the Fort Worth eliminations, Rose said. They will compete for the Litchfield trophy as well as the honor of competing in the Bennett race.

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 11.—Jack H. The proposal was turned down two weeks ago when it was found the races would cost the city $15,000, he said.

PARK MAY BAR TOY SAIL BOATS

Drivers Who Stop to Watch Them Tie Up Auto Traffic on Sunday.

Congestion of automobile traffic on the Forest Park drives surrounding a small lake east of the Municipal Theater may make it necessary to prohibit sailing of model boats in the pond on Sundays, Park Commissioner Pape announces. The congestion arises because automobile drivers pause to watch the boats or park their machines nearby.

Persons interested in the sailing of model boats have asked the Park Commissioner to remove bulrushes and overhanging branches which interfere with the boats. Pape said, however, that he could do nothing because the lake is under the jurisdiction of the State Game and Fish Department, which uses it for fish propagation.

WILBUR URGES LOCAL GROUP PLAN IN CHILD HEALTH WORK

Interior Secretary Opposes Direction of Efforts From National Organization.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11. — A unification of the local forces interested in child health was advocated last night by Secretary of the Interior Wilbur in addressing the White House conference on Child Health and Protection, of which he is chairman.

There are two general methods of working for the care of the child, he said. "One visualizes a great national organization reaching out, spreading its tentacles into every part of the country and telling people what to do," he explained. "The other visualizes the local forces coming together in a united effort and doing a job in accordance with local possibilities."

"I say quite frankly that I belong to what may be called the county seat group—the local crowd —not the national crowd," he continued. "I have a feeling that we will never develop a real democracy unless we develop it with a local significance and interest."

EDISON THANKS GOVERNORS FOR AIDING BOYS' CONTEST

Inventor Announces Examination for Second Scholarship Will Be Held July 29.

By the Associated Press.

FORT MYERS, Fla., April 11.—Thomas A. Edison yesterday expressed his gratitude to Governors of the various states for their willingness to select "brightest boys" to compete for another scholarship he is offering to stimulate scientific study.

He added he would assemble the boys selected at his laboratory in West Orange, N. J., July 29 and give them an examination to determine the national winner.

"I will pay his expenses for four years at any recognized technical school in the United States which he may select," he said. "I wish all boys who wish to enter this contest would submit their applications to their State Board of Education through their school principals."

COMPROMISE ON BANK TAXATION DISCUSSED

Equalization Board to Announce Decision Tomorrow on Security Assessments.

The city Board of Equalization tomorrow will announce its decision on whether it shall seek to compel local banks to pay taxes on the Government securities which they hold through subsidiary holding companies. The banks, in their assessment returns, have availed themselves of the tax exemption afforded them by the holding company plan, which the State Supreme Court upheld in 1923.

Increases in the banks' returns from $16,705,020 to $58,395,300, which would afford more than $1,000,000 additional taxes to the city, state and schools, have been proposed to the Board of Equalization by Charles J. Dolan, its counsel. If the board seeks to put the increase into effect, the banks will take the matter to court, citing the 1923 decision.

This prospect of a prolonged court contest was discussed before the board yesterday by P. Taylor Bryan, counsel for the St. Louis Union Trust Co. and its subsidiary, the St. Louis Realty and Securities Co. Bryan said the latter company's present holding of Government securities, about $1,900,000, was smaller than it was at the time of the 1923 ruling. He declared it unfair to require the banks to take the same issue to court again.

Dolan replied that the city would undertake to show the Court the effect of the plan which it approved in the 1923 decision, to demonstrate that the city and State were being deprived of a large amount of taxes, and to seek a reversal of the Court's former ruling.

An executive session of the board was held at which a possible compromise, on the basis of amended returns to be filed by the banks, was discussed. No agreement was reached. As has been told, banks are not taxed on stock held in other corporations, but they are taxed on Government securities which are held as part of their capital and surplus. Other corporations than banks are not taxed on Government securities. The banks, therefore, form the "inside" holding companies, which hold the securities and are not taxed on them, while the banks are not taxed on the stock of the holding companies.

Attorney Dolan has declared, in the discussions with bank executives that the banks are "evading" taxes, while bankers have preferred to say that they are "avoiding" or "decreasing" taxes.

22 PERSONS HURT IN COURT HOUSE RIOT IN BOMBAY

president of the all-India Congress party of Lahore, a group of civil disobedience volunteers yesterday manufactured salt in the heart of the city from mud carried from a nearby marsh. The salt was auctioned off in packets. The police did not interfere.

Motilal Nehru, father of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, and Mrs. Motilal Nehru were among the volunteers.

The incident called forth a communique from the Government of the united provinces reading:

"It is understood that no actual offense against the India salt act was committed at Allahabad. No salt was manufactured from earth or other saline deposits.

"A liquid solution was brought in bottles from which, after boiling, a deposit of already manufactured salt was extracted. There was nothing genuine about the affair."

Gandhi Says Health Is Excellent But He Must Slow Down.

By the Associated Press.

JALALPUR, Bombay, India, April 11.—Mahatma Gandhi, who yesterday had to curb his salt-making because of high blood pressure, asserted today his health was excellent, "except that I have received a warning from kindly nature that I must hasten slowly if I don't wish to court a breakdown."

He said that if his health permitted he would concentrate his attention on Gujerat, which he said has not given his movement of civil disobedience its deserved support.

Accompanied by Miss Maniben Patel, daughter of Vallabhai Patel, who was speaker of the Legislative assembly, Gandhi proceeded to Karadimatwad, where he announced a conference of women would be held at Dandi Sunday.

The women will consider possibility of concentrating their civil disobendience campaign there on the picketing of liquor shops and foreign cloth shops. He asked the woman to spin native cloth and he startled his audience by declaring that if the supply were exhausted they must go naked.

Gandhi gradually is dispersing his camp of volunteers at Dandi, sending the devotees over India to preach the doctrine of civil disobedience and passive resistance.

In a letter to a friend, Gandhi refers to the arrest of civil disobedience leaders in the Gujerat district, and said the inhabitants should now be urged to carry on without leaders. He repeated his instructions that volunteers should not surrender their contraband salt "even if their wrists are broken."

"Whether all can do this or not only experience can show," he added, "but faith can move mountains. The people may weaken if they like but they should not abuse or injure officers and should go to jail cheerfully.

"Our object is to prevent as far as possible our salt from getting into the possession of the Government, and to distribute it to every house and village."

At Patna, four men have been sentenced to prison for violating the salt laws in the Saran district. Narayan Prasad Singh, former member of the Legislative Assembly, was sentenced to one year's simple imprisonment.

Meanwhile, collection of illicit salt in parts of Gujerat is continuing. The social boycott of Government officials in several areas is growing more intense. It is reported that in some cases they have been denied necessaries, and supplies are being rushed to them.

Gets Year for False Report That 700 Policemen Resigned.

LUCKNOW, India, April 11.—Banwari Lal, member of the Indian National Congress and one of Mahatma Gandhi's volunteers, was sentenced today to one year's rigorous imprisonment. He was charged with spreading rumors to the effect that 700 policemen had resigned and that a native regiment refused to obey orders when asked to act against Gandhi.

Flood in Korea, Reservoir Bursts.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, April 11.—A dispatch to Rengo News Agency from Seoul today said several hundred houses were flooded at Kintei, Zenra Hokudo province, in Southwestern Korea, when a reservoir burst. The reservoir was said to have been the largest in Korea. The dispatch did not mention casualties.

Injury Develops After Months.

When Edward Matthews, a gardener of 4165A Blaine avenue, was taken to City Hospital yesterday from Shaw's Garden, was found suffering from a fractured right hand and injuries to the back, he explained that his team of mules ran away in the garden several months ago, throwing him to the ground. He thought nothing of his injuries at the time, he said, but they forced him to quit work yesterday.

BROKER TO RE-ENTER EXCHANGE AT A GOOD PAPER PROFIT

Buys Seat for $424,000 Three Weeks After Selling at $415,000, but Prices Rise.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Earle W. Hance, partner in the New York Stock Exchange firm of Prentice & Slepack, three weeks ago sold his seat on the Exchange for about $415,000. The buyer was Phillip Leavitt.

Rest and retirement were splendid for a few days, but they didn't mean a thing to a confirmed broker when the tickers in the last two weeks began to record 5,000,000-share days and stocks began to go upward.

Yesterday Stock Exchange bulletins disclosed that Hance had applied to buy a seat from Sidney M. Sternbach for $424,000. At first glance Hance would appear to have lost $9000 by relinquishing his seat but in the last few days memberships have greatly advanced in price and are reported to have sold as high as $492,000 early this week.

PIECE OF ENGINE BLOWN THROUGH WALL AT LAUNDRY

100 Employes Driven From Building at 4020 Olive by Steam; Autos Damaged.

A hole 4 by 8 feet was torn in the brick wall in the rear of the Colonial Laundry, 4020 Olive street, yesterday, when a cylinder head was hurled from a steam engine by an explosion thought to have been caused by a defective piston.

Two automobiles parked in the alley in the rear were slightly damaged. Damage to the building was about $400. One hundred employes were driven from the laundry by steam. No one was injured.

RADIO STUDIO, ASSAILED FOR PROGRAM, SHOT UP

Owner of KTNT, Muscatine, Ia., Tells of Exchanging Fire With Three Men.

By the Associated Press.

MUSCATINE, Ia., April 11.—Police in Iowa and Illinois towns along the Mississippi today were asked to arrest three men who fired on Norman Baker, operator of Radio Station KTNT, a few minutes after he had signed off at 1 a. m. today, according to Baker's report.

Police here broadcast the request after Baker reported the attack, which was verified by C. E. White, keeper of the toll bridge, who said he witnessed the shooting from his shanty less than 100 feet from the studio.

White said he saw flashes of fire as of a shotgun exploding and heard four loud reports an instant later at the back of the building where Baker and Harry Hoxey of Girard, Ill., were conferring in a room in the broadcasting station.

Hoxey told police he ran to the window on hearing the shots and fired at the three men whom he could dimly see, wounding one of the men. The wounded man's two companions took him around the building, supposedly to a waiting automobile and escaped.

Bob Hunter, policeman and first officer to arrive, said he saw blood stains on the grass where the wounded man had fallen. Hoxey and Baker both have legal permits to carry weapons. Baker is head of the Baker Institute, a cancer hospital here. He also owns the radio station.

Ten minutes before the shooting, Baker had called the night sergeant at the police station and reported three suspicious strangers loitering about the hospital.

Shortly after the shooting, Baker telephoned to the office of the Associated Press in Chicago and told of the incident. He later sent a long telegram attacking Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association for the latetr's current editorial comment condemning the KTNT station as a quack institution.

The editorial in question will not be in the hands of the public until tomorrow, but excerpts from it were printed in newspapers Wednesday.

OPEN VERDICT IN KILLING OF MAN BY STREET CAR

Police Testify That Truck in Which He Was Riding Was Stalled on Track.

An open verdict was returned by a Coroner's jury today in the death of Fred Osberg, 53-year-old janitor of 501 Pine street, who died of injuries suffered early yesterday when a truck in which he was riding was struck by a street car of the Jefferson avenue line at Jefferson avenue and Accomac street.

The only testimony at the inquest was that of police officers, who said that George McDaniels, 5082 Claxton avenue, driver of the truck, and Fred Rast, 2418 Cass avenue, a passenger on the truck, told them that at the time of accident the truck had stalled on the northbound track and they were trying to remove it when the street car crashed into it, pushing it for 75 feet. McDaniels suffered a possible fractured pelvis and Rast a possible skull fracture. They are at city hospital. Motorman Thomas Harrick, 1816 Ohio avenue, and the conductor, George Muse, 1515 South Thirteenth street, did not testify.

AUTO PLAYS BLIND MAN'S BUFF IN WILD MARKET STREET RIDE

Motorists Exchange Seats During Trip in Which Car Hits Buildings, Runs on Walk.

A small closed automobile with two men in the front seat traveled a general westward course in the 2200 and 2300 blocks of North Market street yesterday afternoon, scattering pedestrians as it crossed the sidewalk twice and striking a building and two parked cars before being stopped by police.

A pedestrian fell flat in terror as the careening car crossed the walk in front of 2203 North Market. As the wheels narrowly missed him, he rose and fled. The car then struck a truck in front of 2243, continued west, crossed the sidewalk, and ran into a building at 2304. It backed away into a parked automobile.

Police arrested Arthur Stark of 3619 Blair avenue and Oliver Lehman of 2505 Dodier street. At City Hospital physicians said Stark was intoxicated and Lehmann had been drinking. Police said the pair exchanged seats during the ride.

PLASTERER GETS TWO YEARS FOR KILLING EX-CONVICT

John Bongard Found Guilty of Homicide for Shooting Crato Gentry.

A sealed verdict finding John Bongard, 39-year-old plasterer, guilty of manslaughter and fixing his punishment at two years in the penitentiary was opened today before Circuit Judge Taylor.

Bongard, who was tried yesterday, shot and killed Crato Gentry, an ex-convict, at the home of William P. Hennessy, 736A South Broadway, last Nov. 26. He pleaded self-defense. He had gone to the house to get a pistol with which he had wounded Hennessey in a previous argument.

After his arrest Bongard was released on bond, but on Feb. 27 he shot and wounded James Squires, a plastering contractor, and his landlord, at 5361 Loughborough avenue. He faces trial on a charge of assault to kill because of this.

$7,000,000 HARBOR PROJECT

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Adoption of a $7,000,000 project for improvement of harbors at Los Angeles and Long Beach, Cal., without further local co-operation was recommended today by Gen. Brown, chief of Army engineers.

The recommendation, contained in a report to the House Rivers and Harbors Committee, called for the construction of a detached breakwater 12,500 feet long. Gen. Brown held that "the provisions of local co-operation already carried out may be considered sufficient to justify the United States in assuming the entire cost of the breakwater construction now proposed."

PORTRAITS IN SEPIA BY YAGO ON DISPLAY

Spanish Artist Tells How He Won Success Through Exhibit He Didn't Sponsor.

A three-month spree of modernism at the Noonan-Kocian gallery gave way yesterday to an exhibition of portraits in sepia by the Spanish artist, Rafael S. Yago, distinguished for his consummate development of that unusual method.

There are no broken fingers, no weird noses, no grotesque postures in these portraits. Plenty of analysis, perhaps, but not carried to the extreme of analytical geometry. All the figures look human. More, they look extraordinarily life-like, with a combination of softness and clarity, not to say brilliance, arrived at by a technic which fooled some of the experts. And the way Yago, who is here to do several portraits, arrived at the method was surprising.

Ten years ago, he related, a Spanish Academician and critic, interested by an oil painting which had won a prize at the National Exhibition in Madrid, dropped in at his studio. The critic, Don Rafael Domeneon, looked over his work in oils and pored long over a portfolio of about 30 colored pencil sketches of women, studies for a large and highly colored painting of a scene before a bull fight.

Fame Takes Him by Surprise.

A month later Yago opened a newspaper to an account of a "remarkable show by young Madrid artist." The artist was Yago. Bewildered and growing furious, he hurried to the gallery. There were his 30 pencil sketches. The critic and a friend of the artist had taken them from his studio.

"Commissions began to come in," he related. "I scarcely knew what to do—how much to ask, or even whether I should accept them. I had been working for years in oils. I had won a scholarship and half a dozen prizes in that medium. So I called on the critic and said: 'Here, you started this. Now tell me what I am to do about it.' "

In the display is one of the sketches put on display without the artist's knowledge in 1919. It is a woman's head in blue, called "Blue Penciled," which shows the roots of his mature method but lacks some of its sureness and clarity. More finished is another of the same date, "Gitana," which seems to convey the whole story of the Spanish gypsy.

Sepia a Tricky Medium.

Yago was out for a while after the portraits were hung, and in his absence half a dozen debates about his technic arose among the first throngs. He had used, for the most part, a French paper of a tint like Roman gold, but there were differences, and the rich and subtle variety in the drawings seemed beyond any brown that came from the cuttle-fish. Some were puzzled by a softness of contour, which artists asserted had been achieved by rubbing.

"You cannot rub sepia without losing all freshness," elucidated Yago. "You can set down with the pencil only what is to remain, and there you are in a tight place, for any timidity in the artist will certainly show in the drawing's lack of strength." And he pointed to his recent portrait of King Alfonso, who had been able to give him only three sittings instead of the customary four.

His colors, too, are virtually all in sepia, with a surprising variety achieved by balance and contrast. The same golden paper, even the same white mat, thus appear to differ in different works. That faculty is carried to its ultimate in a "Study in Gray," a homely and virile type of Spanish peasant, which Yago found in the caretaker of the Art Association quarters in Havana.

Laymen see in this work a particularly interesting character study, but artists observe that detail, freshness and a most impressive strength were achieved without recourse to white or black.

Artist's Wide Range of Subjects.

This virility is surprising to those who have heard of Yago as a masterful interpreter of women. That mastery is displayed in every feminine type, as indicated in the range between the "Gitana," the seriousness and poise of Mrs. James Russell Forgan of Chicago, formerly Miss Ada Johnson of St. Louis, and the vivacity of Miss Eppes Hawes. But, from his self-portrait, the portrait of the Spanish Ambassador and others, he might as well have been called an interpreter of masculinity, and the wonder and wistfulness which he caught in portraits of children might entitle him to be called an artist of childhood.

"The sketches for the bull fight painting were all of women," he explained, "and for a while all my commissions were for women's portraits. Finally a Madrid critic wondered, in print, if I could do a man's portrait. So I did these. In Chicago I drew one child, and then I had a dozen more to do. I thought I would never again have an adult sitter.

"So those things get started. But anyone who can do one right can do them all."

Sam A. Baker Under Treatment.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 11.—Former Gov. Sam A. Baker was taken to a Macon (Mo.) osteopathic sanitarium yesterday for treatment. Baker has suffered for the past year of a paralytic stroke, but his condition has shown some improvement lately.

SOME SIDEGLANCES ON TAKING OF CENSUS

Enumerators Look In on Many Scenes and Get Variety of Replies.

Federal census enumerators in the St. Louis district are finding themselves in peculiar situations, what with a tendency on the part of some citizens to resent questioning and their interruption of spring housecleaning.

Spring renovation was on in one apartment when the census taker called. "Come on in if you can crawl under the ladders," invited the woman who answered the bell. To the question, how much rent do you pay, she replied, "Forty dollars, and it'll probably go up now that the landlord has put in hardwood floors."

"Just let him raise," interrupted the husband. "If he thinks he can get more than $40 out of me he has another think coming. There are too many places with 'for rent' signs."

The landlady was trying to find an occupation for an elderly woman, who resided with her. "She doesn't do a single thing," she explained. "Do you have to put down something?"

The enumerator assured the landlady it was desirable.

"Well, then, call her a 'boarder,'" she suggested. "That covers her activities completely."

"Where was your father born?"

"In the Ozarks," answered the girl.

"I mean what state."

"Oh, I don't know that. I'm lucky to know as much as I do about it."

What is the son's occupation, the enumerator wanted to know of the mother. A worried expression came to her face. "That's what worries me," she said. "He not only hasn't an occupation yet but he can't make up his mind what he wants to do. Better just call him a student. I do wish he'd decide on something!"

"Married?" asked the enumerator.

"Not any more," answered the young woman in the gingham house dress. "My husband and I are parted."

"Divorced you mean?"

"Yes," she said, smiling. "But we're still friendly."

The lady of the house, so the roomer who answered the door explained, was busy washing clothes in the basement. Couldn't she answer instead? After "passing" four questions hand running she decided to bring up the lady of the house. In a few minutes the lady of the house, large and red-faced from the work over steaming tubs, popped into the room. "What's going on here anyway?" she demanded. "Who are you to be asking such personal questions?"

The enumerator, a small man, was calm. "The United States Government, ma'am. That's all."

"I couldn't raise anybody downstairs," the enumerator told the woman who lives on the second floor. "If you'll tell me how many there are, I'll leave places for them and come back tonight."

"Oh, they're home all right. There's probably three or four down there right now. They don't ever answer the doorbell. Seem to like to hear it ring and then watch people go away. Most peculiar family I ever saw. 'Odd' doesn't begin to describe them.

The elderly woman was plainly ill at ease. "Shall I give my full name?" she asked the enumerator. Assured that the full name would be acceptable, she still hesitated. "I have five names and some people call me by this and some by that," she explained.

"Use the one most people call you by," suggested the enumerator.

"All right," she said somewhat relieved. "There's more room for names in the family Bible than there is on your blank."

The radio question doesn't always get an affirmative answer—even when there is something in the house which passes for one. "No sir, we haven't got a radio," explained the man at one house. "There's a box in the other room with a few dials on it, but nobody with any sense of honesty could call the thing a radio."

SEVEN ST. LOUIS CONVICTS, ONE A WOMAN, SEEK PAROLE

Mabel Winder Sentenced for Grand Larceny to Have Hearing Next Week.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 11.—Thirty convicts in the Missouri penitentiary will be given hearings here before the State Penal Board on Monday and Tuesday, on their applications for parole. The applicants include six men and one woman from St. Louis.

The woman to receive a hearing is Mabel Winder, who has served 10 months of a two-year sentence from St. Louis, for grand larceny.

Other St. Louis convicts to appear before the board are: Harry Adler, who has served six years and one month of a 40-year sentence for robbery; Virgil Burrows, two years for attempted robbery, served 10 months; Thomas Strawbridge, seven years for robbery, served three years; Ollie Limpert, five years for burglary and robbery, served 10 months; Herman Rancigile, five years for robbery, served nine months; Eugene Daneggia, five years for robbery, served nine months.

CANDY MAKER OWES $68,392; ASSETS $2190

James M. Barbakos Files Schedules in Voluntary Bankruptcy Proceedings.

James M. Barbakos, candy merchant, who filed voluntary bankruptcy proceedings recently, lists assets of $2190, against debts of $68,392, in bankruptcy schedules filed in Federal Court yesterday.

Of the amount owed, $11,742 represents secured claims, the remaining $55,691 representing unsecured claims, chiefly for merchandise. With the exceptions of $5 "cash in pocket" and $14 "cash in bank," the assets consist of stock in trade.

James and Peter Barbakos, brothers, came here from Greece about 20 years ago and opened a candy store at Hamilton avenue and Delmar boulevard. Peter Barbakos returned to Greece about six years ago.

The Hamilton-Delmar store was abandoned several years ago and stores at 719 Washington avenue and 705 Locust street were closed recently.

TO TRY BOONVILLE INMATE FOR HERCULANEUM MURDER

Jefferson County, Mo., Prosecutor Files Habeas Corpus Writ for Joe Muehlman's Release.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 11.—Prosecuting Attorney Charles W. Green of Jefferson County filed an application in the Missouri Supreme Court yesterday for a writ of habeas corpus for the release of Joe Muehlman, of St. Louis, from the State Reformatory at Boonville, in order that Muehlman may be tried in Jefferson County on a charge of murder.

Muehlman is one of four indicted for the murder of Virgil Romine, in the latter's restaurant at Herculaneum, Mo., in January, 1927. The other defendants are Mamie Woolem, Louis Taylor and Redford Browning.

Confessions by Taylor and his former sweetheart, Mamie Moolem, exonerated Walter Hess and Alvin Craig of Festus, Mo., who had been convicted of the murder, on circumstantial evidence and sentenced to serve 10 years each in the penitentiary.

He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity, and a recipient of the Ames Fellowship in political science.

LOW PRICE OF RUBBER CUTS DOWN PRODUCTION

BATAVIA, April 11.—The Department of Agriculture of Java, in a review of rubber production by natives in the Dutch East Indies, expresses the opinion that the present low prices give no reason to expect there will be any sharp increase in production in the near future.

Should there be any material advance in prices, however, a large part of the areas now untapped will probably be brought into production. The department considers that the only possible course for European estate owners to follow is to reduce production costs. Compared with 108,500 tons exported last year, the department estimates the potential production for the present year at 150,000 tons.

TREE PLANTED AS MEMORIAL TO HOUSTON'S INTERPRETER

HOUSTON, Tex., April 11.—A slim young live oak tree sways in the Gulf breeze on Battleground Road near here, a memorial to Moses Austin Bryan, who translated to Gen. Sam Houston the dull words of surrender whch Santa Anna said at San Jacinto to free Texas from Mexico.

The tree was set out at the direction of Lewis R. Bryan, the patriot's son, the Memorial Tree Committee of the Sons and Daughters of the Republic of Texas announced. The Sons and Daughters are making a campaign for planting a tree as a memorial to every man who fought the army of the "Napoleon of the West."

As a boy, Bryan came to Texas from Missouri to act as private secretary to his uncle, Stephen F. Austin, then a member of the Legislature of Coahuila and Texas. He was present at the signing of the declaration of independence and when the Texans took to arms he bore in boyish hands the long rifle of the pioneer. When, at the end of the conflict, the vanquished Santa Anna was brought in, Bryan acted as interpreter between the Mexican General and Houston. He thus was first to hear the acknowledgment of defeat. In 1842 he marched with soldiers again, this time in the campaign of the Rio Grande, and was a Major in the Confederate army for the four years of the Civil War.

Four Japanese women, sent as envoys of Japan to express appreciation for the aid extended by the United States after the earthquake of 1923, will visit St. Louis Sunday morning. They will arrive at 6:55 o'clock and will depart at noon for Washington where they will be received by President Hoover and officials of the State, War and Navy Departments.

The visitors, consisting of the four envoys, two other women and a Japanese newspaper man, will be entertained by the Foreign Trade Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce and the St. Louis Chapter of the American Red Cross. They will be met by a committee representing the city and civic organizations.

Breakfast will be served at Hotel Coronado. Each envoy will be presented with a replica of the medal awarded Col. Lindbergh by the City of St. Louis. A sightseeing trip will be taken after the breakfast.

The envoys are: Miss Yoshiko Sato, daughter of Baron Tatsujiro Sato; Miss Yoshiko Matsudaira, a cousin of Princess Chichibu; Miss Sumiko Tokuda, daughter of an army officer; and Miss Kimi Ashino, daughter of a former professor at the Naval College at Tokio. All speak English. They are accompanied by H. Yokoyama, Tokio newspaperman; Mrs. H. Matsudaira and Miss K. Nakamura.

CHICAGO ENGINEER TO ODESSA

ISTANBUL, April 11—Col. Warren Roberts, chairman of the Roberts & Schaefer Co. of Chicago, will leave here for Odessa, where he will begin construction of $4,000,000 in coal mining apparatus in Southeastern Ukrania for which the Soviet Government contracted last year.

Roberts said that about 50 American engineers would direct the surface construction, requiring two years. The Russians will do their own underground constructing, costing another $4,000,000. Roberts has been studying Turkey's industrial situation.

ALLOWED TO APPEAL AFTER PLEA OF GUILTY

Gift Shop Bootlegger Alleges One Year Prison Sentence Is Excessive.

Truman Ruler, proprietor of a gift shop at 6248 Delmar boulevard, who was sentenced Wednesday to a year and a day in the Leavenworth penitentiary for selling liquor on his plea of guilty, was permitted to appeal yesterday on the ground that the punishment was excessive. He was released under $5000 bond.

Federal Judge Davis, who sentenced Ruler, recently held when sitting in Kansas City as a Judge in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals that a similar sentence imposed on a St. Joseph bootlegger for selling less than a pint of liquor to prohibition agents was excessive. The intent of the Jones law, under which both sentences were passed, was to reach the higher-ups and not minor first offenders, he said at that time.

Ruler was indicted for selling two bottles of gin to prohibition agents. Another indictment, returned a year ago, was dismissed when he pleaded guilty to the second charge. In the first case Ruler said he left his store to buy the liquor for a prohibition agent who introduced himself as a fellow lodge member.

SHOOTING STAR'S FAREWELL

Indian Medicine Man Dies Refusing Pale Face Aid.

By the Associated Press.

SHAWANO, Wis., April 11.—Refusing "devil medicines" of the white man and depending upon incantations of his tribesmen to cure him, Che-qua-kif-ka-tuppi (Shooting Star), aged chief medicine man of the Menominee Indians, is dead.

All the rites of a half dozen brother medicine men failed to safe the life of the chief. He would have nothing to do with the reservation doctors or hospitals. Che-qua-kif-ka-tuppi was one of the few remaining Menominee Indians to know and practice the dances of his forefathers at festive gatherings. Famous in his youth as an athlete, the medicine man was reputed most fleet-footed of his tribe. He could run faster than a deer, tribesmen said.

DAILY ROUGHAGE IS AN ESSENTIAL IN ANY DIET

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Effective Relief for Congestion. Also Adds Iron to the Blood.

Do you suffer from constipation? Are you one of those who have tried one "vest pocket cure" after another and still have no sense of permanent relief? If so, this is big news to you! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is natural, effective relief for both temporary and recurring constipation. It is the original—and today is included in the diets of millions of people who formerly suffered from constipation.

When roughage is missing from food, constipation is the consequence. The soft foods we eat today seldom include enough roughage. The simple necessity, then, is to see to it that sufficient roughage is included in our food.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the bulk that your system requires.

In addition, it is rich in iron. Scientific research proves that nearly all this iron is absorbed by the system, building red blood and bringing the glorious color of health to the complexion.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed. Your money will be returned if you are not satisfied. Be sure to include it in reducing diets as a preventive for both constipation and anemia.

There are so many ways you can eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN and enjoy it. In any form, it is appetizing. It is delicious with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over cereals and soups and notice the added flavor. Many people soak it in fruit juices. Excellent in cooked foods. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. It is served in hotels, restaurants and dining-cars. Ask for it! PROTEST ON REMOVING SHIP GUARDS IN CHINA Vessels' Owners Inform Britain Piracies Are Still Too Numerous.

By the Associated Press.

HONGKONG, April 11.—Proposals of the British Government to remove military guards from merchant vessels operating in Chinese waters have been received with protests from Hongkong shipping concerns.

Too many piracies occur every year to make the step a wise one, the shippers argue, even though native guards are substituted by the shipping firms themselves.

Ever since British shipping became an important factor commercially in the waters of Southern China, the Government has supplied all vessels flying the British flag with an armed guard, usually a squad or two of soldiers. Special detachments have been kept in Hongkong ready for guard duty aboard ship at a minute's notice.

The owners point to the piracy of the steamer Anking last September. During this incident, two foreign officers were killed together with a Chinese member of the crew, because there was no guard aboard except a few armed natives. The captain and third officer were wounded, while the pirates carried off seven passengers for ransom.

The incident stirred the foreign officers along the China coast and yet it was only four months later, at Singapore, when the owners of a vessel and its foreign officers came to grips over the subject and the latter came off second best.

The ship was leaving Singapore for China with a heavy passenger list of plantation laborers, rich after several months' work in the Straits Settlements and likely plunder for pirates.

When sailing time came, the foreign officers demurred at lifting anchor and getting underway without a guard and made representation to the owners. After much wrangling a guard was provided, but the ship had been delayed some five hours in sailing. This piqued the owners to such an extent that they demoted all the officers and had them removed to smaller ships.

The number of piracies of importance committed last year reached the amazing total of 600. Most of the victims were large Chinese junks carrying cargo from and to coastal ports. Only 11 large steamers were attacked.

FINES FOR SHORT GASOLINE MEASURE ARE SET ASIDE

Prosecution Agrees to Disregard Cases Involving Less Than a Pint.

Sentences for short measure imposed against three gasoline filling station attendants in Police Court March 5 were reversed yesterday by Provisional Judge Hoffmeister in the Court of Criminal Correction, after the State agreed to disregard cases involving less than a pint of short measure.

Those discharged were: John Grieser, attendant at 7813 Virginia avenue; Morton Wood, owner of a station at 22 North Grand boulevard, and Arthur McDonald, arrested at a filling station at 7601 Michigan avenue. Grieser and McDonald had been fined $50 each and Wood had been fined $25. Home-Made Planes and Their Builders

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

YOUTHFUL airplane builders standing by their home-made planes. They are: Thomas Page, 8024 Frederick street; Albert Beutell, 1055 Garth avenue, and Raymond Dreifke, 5466 Plover avenue.

3 Boys Who Built Planes Are Ready to Fly in Them

Machines Already Tested on Ground Were Constructed in Basements of Homes—Have Motorcycle Engines.

Unperturbed by the fact that they have never been up in an airplane, three boys in the West Baden neighborhood, all under 18, have completed these home-made monoplanes and plan to take to the air "'most any day."

Trips on the ground about a field at the El Dorado subdivision, near Bellefontaine and Trampe roads, have constituted their journeys thus far, but the triumvirate, Albert Beutell, 1055 Garth avenue; Thomas Page, 8024 Frederick street, and Raymond Dreifke, 5466 Plover avenue, feels confident they will fly "about 70 miles an hour." Experienced pilots who have examined the planes say that they will fly, the boys explain.

The ships, parasol monoplanes with the weight below the wings, represent a year's patient work, most of it done in the basements of their homes. Superficially, the planes are alike, but each has certain characteristics representing the inventive skill of its owner.

Powered with discarded twin-cylinder motorcycle engines, put in shape by Page, the engineer of the trio, and composed of spruce wood fuselages, the plants present a trim appearance.

Weighs 200 Pounds.

Page's plane, typical of the others, weighs about 200 pounds. It has a 22-foot wing spread and its open cockpit affords room only for the pilot. It possesses the conventional stick, rudder and ailerons, but brakes are missing, and the only instruments consist of gas and spark controls.

"We say we have a workshop," Page explained, "but it consists mostly of a lathe. We got the motorcycle engines cheap, one for $5$, and converted them, putting in new pistons, valves and cams. We made our own fittings, cutting them out of steel with a chisel and hack saw. We covered the fuselages with unbleached muslin, which we treated with airplane dope. Except for the cost of the engines, spruce, muslin and dope our materials didn't cost us anything. We made our propellers. We just pick up what we can. We haven't got the money to buy planes and know we have to make them ourselves."

The designers figure their motors will give them 40 miles on a gallon of gasoline and will use about a gallon and a half an hour.

"No, we've never been up in a plane," Page said, but only because we haven't had a chance to take a flight. But we've done a lot of watching out at the flying field and some of the pilots who saw one of our ships said it would get off the ground all right.

Can Steer Straight Course.

"I know they will fly. We have been taxing them about the field, just to get used to steering so we will know how to handle the controls when we take off. They use to wobble about a good deal but now we can steer a straight course and will take off most any time. Of course, the first time we try to fly, we will not go up very high. Just high enough to level off across the field."

"It just takes time and patience," Beutell interjected, "and we have plenty of both.

"No, they weren't so hard to build. Lots of other fellows have been building planes. We read a lot of aviation magazines and got books from the library.

"Some day, we expect to be regular aviators, but this is the only way to get started."

Page and Beutell built their planes from their own plans, they said, while Dreifke constructed his from plans he saw in an aviation book.

Built Autos First.

Page and Beutell, known more informally in the neighborhood as "Tom and Al," have been working together for more than four years. They always have been interested in motors. Three years ago they built a couple of automobiles out of motor cycle engines and bed spring frame.

"They really ran, too," Tom said.

And they have built literally scores of model airplanes, ranging from paper contrivances to finished products that have participated in contests at Forest Park.

The boys, however, have an ambition transcending their present aim to become aviators, flying their own planes. Some day they hope to form a company, making and selling planes for less than $500. Already Tom is working on a new principle of engine construction, while the others have an idea or two concerning design, particularly about landing gears.

INDIANS ABANDONING OLD HEADGEAR FOR GANDHI CAPS

Home Spun Cloth Made Popular as Result of Nationalist's Movement.

By the Associated Press.

BOMBAY, India, April 10.—One result of Mahatma Gandhi's "National week" is the extraordinary number of white khaddar (homespun cloth) caps which have suddenly sprung into view on the heads of Bombay's Indian population.

Even the merchants who previously wore the familiar round felt headgear have been obliged to wear the so-called Gandhi caps on entering the cotton, bullion or stock exchanges.

Enthusiastic demonstrators have set a number of bonfires of foreign cloth.

Tired Eyes Need Care.
Of all muscles of the body science tells us that the muscles of the eye are probably the most active. They are at work all day. Any irritation of the membrane by dust and abrasives interferes with their proper functioning. Tired, drooping muscles at the corner of the eye develop wrinkles and crowsfeet. Iris is sold in two sizes in sterile flasks with eyecup, 50c and $1.00, at all Walgreen Drug Stores and at drug and department stores everywhere.

OFFICIALS SEE ROBOT TRAFFIC POLICEMAN

Device That Automatically Reacts to Flow of Vehicles Is Demonstrated.

A robot traffic policeman which directs complicated traffic with an electric brain was demonstrated yesterday before a group of city and county officials in the Automobile Club, 4228 Lindell boulevard.

Watching the system work on a miniature intersection laid out on a table top, the onlookers saw red and green lights switch off and on according to the flow of traffic, rather than in the arbitrary manner which entirely disregards traffic—the kind automobile drivers in and about St. Louis are familiar with.

A. P. Wiedemann, demonstrator for the Automatic Signal Corporation of New Haven, Conn., manufacturers of the "electro-matic vehicle-actuated traffic dispatching systems," explained the light changes by means of "impulses" which run from a figurative set of "toes" to the "brain," which is about the size of a mail box.

These "toes" are rubber plates in the pavement 100 feet from the intersection. When an automobile passes over the plate a signal to the control box changes the light from red to amber and then green if the light is against the driver. In case a stream of traffic is crossing through the intersection, the light remains red until the last car has passed the plate on the cross street and then remembering the waiting car, changes in order to permit it to pass.

Provision can be made for pedestrians by pedestrian intervals and by the push button arrangement. The push button gives the walker a means of interrupting a steady stream of traffic. Electromatic systems have been installed in many Eastern cities, including Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

POST-DISPATCH ACKNOWLEDGES $177 CHRISTMAS FUND GIFT

Festival Donation From Wabash Employes Brings Total to $13,142; Check Mislaid.

The Post-Dispatch today acknowledges the receipt of checks for $177 from employes of the Wabash Railroad as their contribution to the 1929 Christmas Festival in the Coliseum Christmas morning for needy children of St. Louis.

Application of the Wabash donations raises the total amount contributed by friends of the Christmas Festival to $13,142.83. Belated acknowledgement of the contributions of the railroad employes is due to the fact that the checks were mislaid and were received by the cashier of the Post-Dispatch only recently.

For 30 years, through sponsoring the Christmas Festival, the Post-Dispatch has offered itself to the community as the channel through which the city's generosity may flow to those who otherwise would not enjoy a share of holiday cheer.

Smith's wounds were received Tuesday afternoon in Baxter Springs, Kan., when he and three other men, alleged accomplices in the Carterville robbery, were cornered in a house by officers.

How Doctors Build Up Thin Weak Folks to Normal Weight

Yeast for Keen Appetite, Good Digestion. IRON for Rich Red Blood and Strength

Combined in Pleasant, Easy-to-Take-Tablets

If you drag through life thin, weak, nervous, with poor appetite and weak digestive powers, it is a sign your system lacks certain elements necessary to perfect health and strength. Elements found in Yeast and Iron are frequently just the ones needed.

If you envy healthy, hearty, tireless, robust men and women, start today to get the Yeast and Iron, which may make you feel, look and act like a new person. They are combined in pleasant tasting tablets known as IRONIZED YEAST. At all druggists.

Good Appetite and Good Digestion Your First Needs

Doctors prescribe Yeast as one of the quickest and best possible ways to promote a good appetite and good digestion. The Yeast first makes you want to eat hearty meals and then puts your digestion in such good order that you can assimilate what you eat.

Doctors advise Yeast even when the appetite is unimpaired, if you are run-down, nervous, weak or constipated. You have often heard that it is not what you eat but what you digest that builds weight and health.

In other words, if you are enabled to eat heartily, and can digest all you can eat, you will soon increase in weight, strength, energy and physical appearance.

When you have taken Yeast and Iron in the form of IRONIZED YEAST for a short time, your appetite should improve and be that of a healthy, hard-playing youngster, with equally good digestive powers.

Brewer's Malt Yeast for Quick Results

The best form of Yeast is that known as brewer's yeast. This is the kind used in making malt and which makes malt so beneficial. It is richer than most forms of Yeast. It should also be combined with blood-enriching Iron. In this form, many say, it is far more effective than unmedicated yeast—gives results quickly. In IRONIZED YEAST this brewer's yeast is the kind used. These pleasant little tablets give you all the Yeast you need to build weight and health.

What Doctors Say About Yeast

Below are extracts from reports of hundreds of well-known physicians from all parts of the country. For professional reasons their names are not given. Note their preference for brewer's yeast.

"Brewer's Yeast fine as a weight builder."

"Brewer's Yeast more active; I find it gives quicker effect."

"Prescribe brewer's yeast and took it myself when in bad health. It built me up. I gained 15 lbs."

"Brewer's Yeast combined with Iron is excellent for weight building and enriching blood."

"For weight-building, Brewer's Yeast combined with Iron is better than either remedy alone."

"Brewer's Yeast increases weight. I have taken it myself with pronounced tonic effect. It is even more efficient when combined with Iron."

And now that we know that much quicker benefits are obtained when the Yeast is combined with Iron, IRONIZED YEAST offers you an even better way to build up than the unmedicated brewer's yeast. IRONIZED YEAST is 2 tonics in 1, Brewer's Yeast and Iron.

Iron Brings Rich Red Blood

Iron is added to the Yeast in order to make the good effects of the Yeast more pronounced—to bring results more quickly by strengthening the blood.

Nature depends upon the blood to take the foods you have digested to the parts of the body where it is needed to carry out its part of the weight-building processes. Iron has been prescribed for generations by physicians all over the world.

Why You Need Yeast and Iron

If you are thin, weak, rundown, tired; if you are nervous or a poor sleeper; if your stomach is weak; if you are constipated; if impure blood has caused skin blemishes; if you have one or all of the above symptoms, start at once to build up weight and strength with Yeast PLUS Iron. Get IRONIZED YEAST from any druggist today.

Get It on Money-Back Guarantee

Prove without losing a penny that IRONIZED YEAST will give you the strength and health and weight you need.

We could easily offer free samples, but experience has shown that the only way to get best results is from a full-size treatment. So we DO BETTER. We give an absolute guarantee that IRONIZED YEAST will help you.

Get a full size treatment of IRONIZED YEAST from any druggist today. Take regularly as directed on bottle. If after this generous trial you are not delighted with your new weight and health, your money promptly refunded by manufacturer.

Mounted District Formed 40 Years Ago to Provide Field for Police Horses

Old-Timers Sentimental at Passing of Forest Park Station—How St. Louis Got First Auto Speed Cops.

EVEN policemen, the old-timers, at least, turn slightly sentimental in thinking of the day, not far distant, when the Mounted will become a memory.

Of course, the district will continue. But its name may be changed. And anyhow it won't be the old Mounted, because the red brick building on a hilltop south of Clayton road in southeastern Forest Park, which for 37 years has fostered the tradition of the Mounted, is to be replaced by a modern structure nearer the center of the district, farther south. In the 1930-31 police budget $200,000 was set aside for the new station. The present building cost $46,500.

But to the old-timers that weathered building represents the Mounted District. They tell of the days when the district embraced virtually all the city west of Grand boulevard and some territory east of it in the south end of the city; when a man rode horseback five or six miles to his beat; when horses floundered almost "belly deep" through the mud of unpaved streets. The iron horse weathervane in the tower of the red brick building, they say, is not more iron than were those men and those horses.

Beginning of the Mounted.

Forty years ago a mounted police station in Forest Park was a dream of Dr. William R. Faulkner, who as superintendent of police property had charge of the department's horses, stabled in the old Fifth District at Twenty-ninth and Market streets. Dr. Faulkner, known in whispers as the "czar of the Police Department," wanted pasturage for his horses and shorter rides to beats for the men.

So he dropped a word to the Mayor and a word to the House of Delegates (now the Board of Aldermen)—and the thing was done. The city set aside 40 acres in Forest Park for a new station and a pasture. Dr. Faulkner himself designed the two-story building, with its commodious stables below and its offices and storage loft upstairs.

On a summer's day in 1893, the mounted police of the Fifth, with sabers clinking and helmets agleam, paraded out Lindell boulevard to their new home. Dr. Faulkner led proudly in a storm buggy.

Thereafter, the "czar" was wont, on pleasant afternoons, to sit outside the station, tilting his chair against the wall and puffing happily on a pipe. He had his Mounted District.

Leaving "Black Maria."

His nephew Police Inspector William R. Walton, who drove the storm buggy in that parade, recalls that the one regret of Capt. William O'Keeble and his men in moving was the enforced desertion of "Black Maria," a horse-drawn omnibus for prisoners, built with a high driver's seat in front in the style of a Western stage coach. Each morning "Black Maria" hauled prisoners from the various districts to the three police courts; and each afternoon "Black Maria" hauled some of them to the Workhouse. But "Black Maria" soon gave way to the "skidoo car," known also as the "red devil."

That was in 1902, and already the Mounted District was changing. It was shrinking, ceding portions of its domain to new disrticts. It had fewer horsemen, more foot patrolmen. Forest Park itself was becoming less a forest and more a park.

The young bloods who had plagued mounted policemen by whipping along Lindell boulevard at a spanking trot were experimenting with those new-fangled horseless carriages. So the police Department bought a one-cylinder St. Louis, painted red, trimmed in brass, and sporting a red flag to show its authority. Patrolmen William R. Stinger (now field captain of police) and James Cooney (now desk seargeant at the Newstead Avenue Station and, incidentally, father-in-law of Mayor Miller of the Mounted became St. Louis' first speed cops.

Distinction to Get Arrested.

The skidoo car was the pride of the Mounted. Capt. Stinger's memory is that "it would do at least 40 miles an hour." "Only the rich owned cars then," he recalls, "and the young sports considered it a real distinction to get arrested for speeding. They used to bait us and try to get us in a race. The speed limit about that time was eight miles an hour in the park and 15 elsewhere."

Occasionally, when a speeder was overhauled, the policemen would say, "Twenty-three for you to the station," and if the speeder had difficulty in cranking his car, they might add, "If you can."

In its heyday the Mounted District had about 90 horses and about 80 men, according to Lieut. Patrick J. Hussey, then a mounted patrolman, who has been at the Mounted since it was built, except for an interval of four years. Now it has 34 horses and 18 mounted men. It has six mounted beats—two in Forest Park, three south of the park, and one east of Fourth street. Three men cover a beat in three eight-hour shifts.

Bank Robberies Rare.

"In that time," remembers Lieut. Hussey, "we didn't have to bother much with holdups or bank robberies; they were rare. Most of the arrests were for drunkenness, fighting, gambling and the like. We had to watch the fast buggies, of course, and we rescued people when the River des Peres overflowed, just as we do today. And there were a lot of runaways. The regulations required a mounted officer to chase a runaway and try to catch the horse's bridle. I broke my shoulder trying that 25 years ago. But we stopped most of them. Often we arrested men for discharging firearms within the city; they were usually hunters killing quail and squirrels in the many uninhabited districts.

"Horse thieves? Sure. I remember when Sergeant James Hickman stopped a suspicious-looking rider on Manchester road. The fellow slid from his horse on the off side, jerked out a pistol and winged the sergeant. He ran across a field and escaped."

Captains of the Mounted.

Lieut. Hussey names the captains of the Mounted as follows: William O'Keeble, Peter Reynolds, George T. McNamee, James Hickman, Martin O'Brien, Albert Schwartz, Robert M. Hanna, P. J. Gafney, William R. Stinger, Calvin J. White and Maurice Mulcahy.

It was Schwartz, then an army cavalryman, who drilled the Mounted Police in the early days. Now Lieut. Hussey, his pupil, carries on the tradition. For two weeks each spring and two weeks each fall, the Lieutenant directs drills thrice weekly on the parade grounds west of the Mounted Station.

Lieut. Hussey calls the Mounted the Father of Police Districts: out of its amplitude were carved four of the present districts and portions of three others. Even now, with its 14 square miles, it is the largest of the city's 14 districts. The red brick station is surrounded by but 24 of its original 40 acres.

'I suppose eventually the police horses will have to go for the sake of efficiency, just as the old station is about to go," says the Lieutenant, shaking his head sadly. "I won't like that."

PRISON SENTENCE FOR TWO FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION

Attorney for Men Convicted at Springfield, Ill., to Appeal, Alleging Illegal Search.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 11.—Tony Milyonico of Collinsville was fined $1000 and sentenced to one year in Springfield city prison and Phillip Abbaco of St. Louis was fined $500 and sentenced to six months in prison by a Federal Judge yesterday for violation of the liquor law. They were found guilty several weeks ago.

Attorney H. M. Bandy took steps to carry both cases to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Bandy contends the search leading to their arrests was illegal.

A motion for a new trial was argued for John and Peter Verna of Collinsville, two of six defendants reqently found guilty of liquor law violations. Bandy said the Government called one of the defendants, Sebastian Koch of Collinsville, to testify against his will.

MARKET WOMEN CARRY WILD RUMORS IN HAITI

Lacking Newspapers, Populace Accepts Most Fantastic Stories.

By the Associated Press.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, April 11.—The foreigner here is astounded by a huge mass of wild political rumors which float about unceasingly. When the Hoover investigating commission was here, its members were amazed at the torrent of baseless reports which came into headquarters daily. Careful study shows they originate in the meeting places of the illiterate market woman. It works this way:

A woman—and women carry Haiti's goods to market and sell them—carries a basket of something on her head into the city for sale. On the way she trades news with similar women bound on similar missions. Arriving here, these women go to the public market houses, and exchange news with their customers.

By the time the women from the mountains are ready to start home they have started many wild rumors throughout the city, and are carrying home fantastic reports, chiefly about the work of the "ins" at the presidential palace and what the "outs" are going to do about it.

The most absurd reports imaginable were broadcast over the land about the activities and results of the Hoover commission. With no newspapers of general circulation, the people were unable to receive the real news, except from prominent men who happened to be in the capital.

Haitians of education and standing admit the situation, but consider it futile to attempt to rectify it. So long as there are market women, there will be the endless waves of valueless rumors rolling in and out of Port-au-Prince.

CHILDREN TO SPEND EASTER WITH BRITISH KING AND QUEEN

Only the Prince of Wales Will Be Absent; Ruler Goes Horseback Riding Daily.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 11.—Easter, like Christmas, generally is a season when the British King and Queen gather their family around them. Only the Prince of Wales will be absent at the gathering at Windsor Castle over the holiday.

The Duke and Duchess of York spent considerable time at Naseby Hall, in Northamptonshire, which the Duke rented, but they have now returned to London and will go to Windsor within the next few days. The Earl of Harewood, who, before his accession to his father's earldom was the Viscount Lascalles, and his wife, the Princess Mary, will arrive early next week.

The Duke of Gloucester and Prince George already are at Windsor. Teh King is riding almost daily in the great park of the castle. The King and Queen, while at Windsor, usually entertain small, week-end parties. They will resume this habit now, as the 10-day period of court mourning decreed out of respect to the late Queen Victoria of Sweden closes on Thursday.

GREATER ST. LOUIS PLAN IS OUTLINED TO CITIZEN GROUP

One Municipal Corporation Would Unite County and City, Prof. T. H. Reed Explains.

ALL AREAS TO BE REPRESENTED

Amendment and Charter Expected to Be Made Public Next Month—Missouri Vote in November.

A general description of the etropolitan government it is prosed to set up for St. Louis and t. Louis County was given to the ouncil on Metropolitan Governent, a citizen group, at luncheon t Hotel Statler yesterday by Prof. homas H. Reed, the expert enaged by the city and county hambers of Commerce to direct he merger planning.

The detailed plan is in process f preparation, together with a roposed enabling constitutional mendment. The amendment and he projected metropolitan charter re expected to be made public by ext month, following which iniiative petitions will be circulated o that the amendment can be voted on by Missouri at the Novemer election. Upon its passage, the harter and merger proposal would e laid before the people of the ity and county for separate aproval early next year.

Reed emphasized the practical nanimity with which the various committees of the Council on Metropolitan Government, which represents both city and county, have acted in considering the phases of he scheme. In substance, his decription of the proposed central overnment follows:

City and county would be united as one municipal corporation, probably to be called the City of Greater St. Louis, with a population exceeding 1,000,000. The present county would be abolished as such. Neither the present city of St. Louis nor the existing suburban municipalities would be changed, but the means of any future local annexations desired would be implified. Several new suburban unicipalities might be formed.

For Outlying Community.

All territory in the present county arear remaining unincorporated would be formed into a new sort of municipal corporation under authority of the metropolitan charter. This outlying community, no name for which has been suggested, would be governed by a board of three commissioners. Since its eeds would not be complex, the oard's powers would be simple, he chief one being authority over local roads. The authority, however, would be more definte than of the present County Court. This outlying community would be supported by a fund derived from the Greater St. Louis Government, amounting to the equivalent of a 10-cent tax rate on property within its area, but its people could, if they desired, vote a direct tax upon themselves. Police protection would be afforded by the rural highway patrol proposed for Greater St. Louis.

A council of 11 would make aws and appointments of major efficials in Greater St. Louis; six of its members would be elected from the city and four from the county, all by districts, and its chairman at large. It would appoint a "public service director" metropolitan manager, a plang commission, a director of public works and a park and recreation board. The metropolitan comptroller and treasurer might be elected, but it might be well to consolidate these offices with the corresponding ones of the present city as a matter of efficiency and economy.

Functions with which Greater St. Louis would start business would e: Planning control, administran of health work, charities and orrections; construction and mainenance of all sewers; construction and maintenance of major thoroughfares, estimated to cover 2220 miles, including 270 in the city, 125 n suburban towns and 1825 elsewhere in the county; administration of parks and recreations, including outer parks; issuance of public utility franchises, but with local police powers retained by the municipalities; ownership and operation of the water supply system; uniform regulation of traffic; policing of the outlying area; advisory supervision of the police and fire departments and building regations of the municipalites; provision of public library service; conduct of registration and elecions; administration of metropolian as distinct from municipal finances. In addition, a reform of nor courts in the county would provided.

GREATER ST. LOUIS PLAN IS OUTLINED TO CITIZEN GROUP

One Municipal Corporation Would Unite County and City, Prof. T. H. Reed Explains.

ALL AREAS TO BE REPRESENTED

Amendment and Charter Expected to Be Made Public Next Month—Missouri Vote in November.

A general description of the metropolitan government it is proposed to set up for St. Louis and St. Louis County was given to the Council on Metropolitan Government, a citizen group, at luncheon at Hotel Statler yesterday by Prof. Thomas H. Reed, the expert engaged by the city and county Chambers of Commerce to direct the merger planning.

The detailed plan is in process of preparation, together with a proposed enabling constitutional amendment. The amendment and the projected metropolitan charter are expected to be made public by next month, following which initiative petitions will be circulated so that the amendment can be voted on by Missouri at the November election. Upon its passage, the charter and merger proposal would be laid before the people of the city and county for separate approval early next year.

Reed emphasized the practical unanimity with which the various committees of the Council on Metropolitan Government, which represents both city and county, have acted in considering the phases of the scheme. In substance, his description of the proposed central government follows:

City and county would be united as one municipal corporation, probably to be called the City of Greater St. Louis, with a population exceeding 1,000,000. The present county would be abolished as such. Neither the present city of St. Louis nor the existing suburban municipalities would be changed, but the means of any future local annexations desired would be simplified. Several new suburban municipalities might be formed.

For Outlying Community.

All territory in the present county arear remaining unincorporated would be formed into a new sort of municipal corporation under authority of the metropolitan charter. This outlying community, no name for which has been suggested, would be governed by a board of three commissioners. Since its needs would not be complex, the board's powers would be simple, the chief one being authority over local roads. The authority, however, would be more definte than of the present County Court. This outlying community would be supported by a fund derived from the Greater St. Louis Government, amounting to the equivalent of a 10-cent tax rate on property within its area, but its people could, if they desired, vote a direct tax upon themselves. Police protection would be afforded by the rural highway patrol proposed for Greater St. Louis.

A council of 11 would make laws and appointments of major officials in Greater St. Louis; six of its members would be elected from the city and four from the county, all by districts, and its chairman at large. It would appoint a "public service director" or metropolitan manager, a planning commission, a director of public works and a park and recreation board. The metropolitan comptroller and treasurer might be elected, but it might be well to consolidate those offices with the corresponding ones of the present city as a matter of efficiency and economy.

Functions with which Greater St. Louis would start business would be: Planning control, administration of health work, charities and corrections; construction and maintenance of all sewers; construction and maintenance of major thoroughfares, estimated to cover 2220 miles, including 270 in the city, 125 in suburban towns and 1825 elsewhere in the county; administration of parks and recreations, including outer parks; issuance of public utility franchises, but with local police powers retained by the municipalities; ownership and operation of the water supply system; uniform regulation of traffic; policing of the outlying area; advisory supervision of the police and fire departments and building regulations of the municipalites; provision of public library service; conduct of registration and elections; administration of metropolitan as distinct from municipal finances. GREATER ST. LOUIS PLAN IS OUTLINED TO CITIZEN GROUP tions would be exercised immediately. Certain definite arrangements, for instance, would be required before taking over the county sewer districts, and before Greater St. Louis would acquire the existing public and private water systems desirability of doing so would be determined. Schools, the judicial circuits and the police departments would not be consolidated.

"I'm talking of a simple, modern, concentrated form of government for Greater St. Louis," Prof. Reed said, "in which responsibility and power will be located in definite hands; a representative government, in which the people of every section will have a spokesman; a successful government, worthy of support, which can gradually expand into other fields. This is not a revolutionary measure but an evolutionary one. One of the great achievements will be that it will break the deadlock that has existed, making it possible for St. Louis to grow but guaranteeing that every community desiring to retain its identity permanently may do so. We propose a constructive measure which gives the opportunity for development."

In answer to a question from the floor, Reed said the Greater St. Louis government would lay its own taxes and make the budget for its own functions, but the present county tax rate would disappear and some of the functions now supported by the city tax rate would come under the metropolitan rate. While a report has not been completed on finances of the metropolitan plan, Reed related the following recommendations: Continuation of separate Assersors and Collectors for city and county areas, but creation of a Metropolitan Board of Equalization to equalize assessments for purposes of Greater St. Louis taxes only, leaving local and State taxes under local assessments; collection of municipal taxes in the county on the same bill as other taxes; provision of modern budget and accounting methods; improved code of "fair, speedy and effective procedure" for condemnation and special improvement assessments.

Probate Judge Hodgdon of the county, long an opponent of county annexation by the city, asserted at yesterday's meeting that county people would oppose any plan that did not give them equal representation with the city. Reed called his attention to the disparity of population and declared that if the county should assume that attitude, "we'll just be out of luck." Robert A. Roessel, chairman of the City & County Metroplitan Development Committee, who presided, stressed the fact that there had been no secrecy in working out the merger plans. This obviously was in answer to criticisms from Circuit Judge Lashly of the county who has been an annexation opponent.

MR. LAUER SAYS . . .

"CAN YOU STAND THE TRUTH?"

We believe you can. We believe you want the truth.

There was a time when nearly all storekeepers thought they had "to spread it on thick" when they were describing their goods. They knew that their statements were discounted anyway. This was an unsatisfactory system to the customer and the store.

At our store we tell the truth and nothing but the truth about our furniture, and that means that we may not claim so much for the lower priced lines as others claim for similar goods.

We probably lose a few sales by this policy but we really believe that honesty is the best policy and by "best" we mean "most profitable."

CONFEREES AGREE ON COTTON TARIFF OF 7 CTS. A POUND

Additional 10 Cents on Manufactured Goods Fixed After Heated Debate on Measure.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The Senate duty of 7 cents a pound on long staple cotton, now on the free list, was agreed on today by the congressional conferees on the tariff bill. House Republicans on the committee yielded, it was announced, after a warm debate. The House bill retained long staple cotton on the free list.

The duty would apply to cotton of a staple one and one-eighth inches and over. To compensate cotton textile manufacturers for the duty on the raw product the Senate bill would provide an additional levy of 10 cents a pound on all cotton goods made from the long staple.

Action on Silver Deferred.

Chairman Hawley of the House Ways and Means Committee said the Hous tariff conferees had requehted the Senate conferees to pass over the question of placing a 30-cent tax an ounce on silver until the question could be studied further. Hawley said the conferees did not have adequate information before them. Hawley added that it was estimated the duty would result in an income of $30,000,000 to the Government.

The heart of the tariff bill—the agricultural schedule—was accepted by the Congressional conferees yesterday virtually as rewritten upward by the Senate.

While the House-bill carried general increases in farm rates, the Senate boosted these still higher in scores of instances. Only rarely did the House conference group hold out for its lower duties. A few of the House duties agreed on exceeded those of the Senate.

Cuban Sugar Row Passed Over.

A discussion of the controverted Cuban raw sugar levy, reached at the morning session, also was passed over in deference to pledges that the House would be permitted to vote on the item.

The House has raised the Cuban sugar levy from 1.76 to 2.40 cents a pound. The Senate pared this down to two cents.

Taking up the less controversial rates in the sugar schedule, the conferees compromised on a duty of $2.50 a ton for sugar cane, now dutiable at $1 a ton. The House bill provided $3 and the Senate $2.

Senate farm rates approved at the first of the two daily sessions carry much higher protection for cattle, milk, cream, live and dressed birds, oats, cherries, lemons, alligator pears, mangoes, wheat unfit for human consumption, canned oysters, soya bean oil and oil-cake meal and other similar products, vinegar and dates.

Compromise On Cheese.

The House duties were accepted in the case of frozen halibut, canned clams, grain screenings, and pineapples in crates.

A compromise rate of 8 cents a pound but not less than 40 per cent was fixed for cheese and cheese substitutes. Compromises also were reached on Brazil nuts, the duties being 1½ and 4½ cents, respectively, on unshelled and shelled, compared with one cent on both now in effect.

Rates agreed on at the afternoon session, compared with the present law, follow:

Flaxseed, 65 cents a bushel, now 56 cents; hay, $5 a ton, now $4; straw, $1.50 a ton, now $1; onions, 2½ cents a pound, now 1½; canned tomatoes, 50 per cent, now 15 per cent; green peas, 3 cents a pound, now 1 cent; dried beans, 3 cents a pound, now 1¾ cents.

Edible nuts not specially provided for, including pignolia and pistache nuts, unshelled, 2½ cents a pound, and shelled, 5 cents a pound, both now 1 cent.

Seed Schedule Changed.

Alfalfa seed, alsike, clover seed and red clover seed, 8 cents a pound, now 4; sweet clover seed, 4 cents a pound, now 2; rye grass seed, 3 cents a pound, now 2; bent grass seed, 4 cents a pound, now 2; black-eyed cowpeas and chick peas, 3 cents a pound, now 25 per cent; mushrooms, 10 cents a pound, and 45 per cent, now 45 per cent; celery, lettuce and cabbage, 2 cents a pound, now 25 per cent; crude horseradish, 3 cents a pound, now 25 per cent; sauerkraut, 50 per cent, now 35 per cent; crude chicory, 2 cents a pound, now 1½.

Cocoa and chocolate in bars weighing 10 pounds or less each, 4 cents a pound, now 17½ per cent; turnips and rutabagas, 25 cents a pound, now 12 cents; broomcorn, $20 a ton, now free; lupulin, $1.50 a pound, now 75 cents; anise, caraway, cardamon and all unground spice seeds free, now from 1 to 10 cents a pound.

IMMIGRATION CURB DEBATED IN SENATE

Bingham Assails Harris Bill as Tending to Antagonize Latin Americans.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Senator Bingham (Rep.), Connecticut, today argued that the effect of the Harris bill, which would place all Central and South American countries on a quota immigration basis, would be to produce hard feelings in the countries affected.

Bingham voiced his opposition as the Senate today resumed debate on the measure, adding that the restriction would not affect America's labor. Proponents of the bill had asserted that labor from Mexico was adding to the unemployment situation in the United States.

Senator Couzens (Rep.), Michigan, interrupted Bingham to ask whether he had considered hard feelings that might be engendered in South America when he voted for higher tariff rates.

Bingham responded that the South Americans would prefer to lose several million dollars' worth of trade yearly than to bear the injury to their self-respect which would result from the bill's passage.

Quoting immigration figures supplied by the Pan-American Union, the Connecticut Senator declared that of 18 South American republics none sent more than 500 emigrants, and from nearly the average immigration was less than 300. Practically none of the immigrants were laborers, he added.

Would Exclude Filipinos.

Attorney-General U. S. Webb of California urged before the House Immigration Committee the exclusion of Philippine immigration from the United States on the ground of race incompatibility. He said the Negro problem, as an example, was no nearer settlement than it was a century ago.

At a hearing on the Welch bill to restrict Philippine immigration, the California official asserted that the Negro population was growing and crowding out the white race.

He said it was his opinion that if the Negroes had possessed the ability and mental capacity of the Japanese, that section of the United States below the Mason-Dixon line would now be entirely populated by Negroes.

Returning to the subject of Filipinos coming nito California, Webb contended that the United States was under no obligation to provide for its subjects in the Philippines other than on the islands themselves.

Neither Citizens Nor Aliens.

He described Filipinos not as citizens nor as aliens, but as a people who are under this country's protection and owe obedience to its laws without participating as citizens.

The California Attorney-General said the gates of the United States had been opened so wide that more Asiatics had been admitted than could be absorbed readily, and that the dominance of the white race could be preserved only by excluding the parent alien stock so that absorption could be effected.

Unlike territories such as Alaska, the witness contended, the Philippines Islands can be sold and he gave it as his opinion, that if a fair price were offered, it probably would be a wise step.

HOUSE COMMITTEE AMENDS VETERANS' CONSOLIDATION BILL

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Opponents of President Hoover's proposal for consolidation of governmental veterans' agencies succeeded in the House yesterday in striking from the Williamson measure a provision to authorize the chief executive to eliminate and redistribute functions of the various organizations.

Led by Congressman Gasque of South Carolina, ranking Democrat on the Expenditures Committee, supporters of the Pensions Bureau, which handles Civil and Spanish-American War veterans' affairs, by a vote of 96 to 63 put through an amendment removing a section of the bill which they said would permit abolition of the agency.

Opposition to the measure developed unexpectedly in the House Tuesday after Chairman Knutson of the Pensions Committee said the proposal was conceived in the Veterans' Bureau, even though it was sponsored by the American Legion and other World War veterans' organizations.

ORSATTI WILL BE LOST TO CARDINALS FOR SEVERAL WEEKS, DOCTOR SAYS

BONE IN OUTFIELDER'S ANKLE FRACTURED, EXAMINATION SHOWS; HOMER PEEL OUT WITH MUMPS

By J. Roy Stockton.

Ernest Orsatti, Cardinal right-fielder, suffered a fracture of the fibula when he was injured sliding to third base in a game with Rochester at Bradenton, it was disclosed today when Dr. Robert F. Hyland, the club surgeon, examined X-ray photographs of the ankle. Dr. Hyland said the ankle would be put in a plaster cast and that Orsatti would not be available for duty for several weeks.

Another loss in the outfield department was suffered when Homer Peel was found to be suffering from the mumps and was ordered to bed for several days.

Indisposition of Orsatti and Peel, following the trading of Wally Roettger to New York, leaves Manager Street with George Watkins and Ray Blades available for duty in right field or for reserve pending arrival of George Fisher, the new acquisition.

Gabby Street and his Cardinals returned home this morning after six weeks of spring training in Florida, more confident than ever that they would be among the outstanding contenders for the 1930 National League pennant. News of the trade which brought Eddie Farrell, utility infielder, to St. Louis roster and the statement by Sam Breadon that he would make every possible effort to obtain the great Burleigh Grimes from the lowly Boston Braves were cheered by the Red Birds.

Manager Street ordered his athletes to report at Sportsman's Park for a workout at 1 o'clock on the diamond where the Browns will be met tomorrow and Sunday in the annual abbreviated spring series.

"Farrell will give us the infield protection we have needed," Street said this morning. "I expect to go through the spring series and start the season with the infield I was using during the exhibitions in the South. Frisch will be at third and Adams at second.

"We know what Frisch can do at second and we can shift back to the old arrangement any time. Frisch doesn't have to go through a course of training to return to second and Andy High, whenever we need him, will be ready and eager to go to third.

GOOD RESERVES

"With Frisch and Adams in the game we will have two good infielders as reserves. High is a great little hitter and also will be available to bat for somebody in a pinch. You know he can hit right-handers and left-handers and will be a valuable man for us."

Street, as previously told, plans to use Jess Haines and Sylvester Johnson on the hill in tomorrow's game with Bill Killefer's team and if either makes an especially good showing he will draw the starting assignment against the Cubs in the opening game of the season.

Gabby had planned early in the spring to send Bill Hallahan against Hornsby and Co., in the season's inaugural, but he decided later that it might be dangerous. With a packed stand—the money changers hope this will be the condition Tuesday—a bad inning might throw Hallahan back into his state of mind of 1929 when he dreaded the news that he was to pitch. After the opening day game the crowds won't be so large and Hallahan will be more at ease.

Clarence Mitchell also has been considered as a probable starter against the Cubs in the opening game. He always has been effective against the Bruins and this spring his arm has been stronger than usual. He has not been handicapped by the arm soreness which bothered him in 1928 and 1929.

Street said he would consider it a great break if Burleigh Grimes could be obtained from the Braves. Street conferred with Bill McKechnie at Bradenton several weeks ago on the possibilities of a deal, but at that time the Braves didn't have any players who would have helped the Cards. Efforts were made to sell Gus Mancuso to Boston, it was rumored, but the deal fell through.

THE GRIMES CASE

Prospects for obtaining Grimes probably are not good. Barney Dreyfus undoubtedly traded Grimes to the Braves because he was a holdout, and if that was his reason and he wanted to punish the pitcher he undoubtedly stipulated that for a year at least Grimes was not to be traded to a pennant contender. So unless Grimes is sent to Cincinnati, Philadelphia or Brooklyn, he probably will linger in Boston for the season.

Grimes would be a great help to the Cardinals. He is the hardest working pitcher in the business and serving in the relief role he would save many games for the Cards.

If the Braves are not bound by an agreement to keep Burleigh in the second division, the Redbirds could outbid other rivals. Promising infielders, outfielders, pitchers and catchers could be plucked from minor league farms and given in a trade for Grimes without weakening the Cardinal machine.

Deny Grimes Deal.

BOSTON, April 11. — The Braves arrived home from the spring training wars today with the last nine games in a row lost. Battered from right to left through Dixie, Manager Bill McKechnie still is uncertain of his opening game lineup and needs catching strength badly.

Both McKechnie and President Emil Fuchs scoff at reports that Burleigh Grimes will be traded soon, saying that he will add class to the hurling staff.

MAPLEWOOD AND JENNINGS WIN COUNTY GAMES

Maplewood and Jennings were returned the winners in the County League baseball games played yesterday. Maplewood, although held to one safety, defeated Hancock, 8 to 5, while Jennings, with Kercheval allowing only one safety, stopped Normandy, 4 to 0. Hartman was the Hancock twirler, who yielded only one hit, only to be defeated mainly through his wildness and errors by his mates.

Reinecke, twirling for Maplewood, also turned in a fine exhibition, stopping the Hancock batters with five swats.

In Jennings' victory, Kercheval was the whole show, the only hit off his delivery being a single by Orr. He walked three batters. Van Hee, twirling for Normandy, was found for three safeties.

The Kirkwood-University City game at Heman Park will be the feature this afternoon. Massa will twirl for the Delmar team, while Keil will be on the mound for Kirkwood. During the past week University City has engaged in several nonleague games, defeating Granite City Monday and tieing Soldan, 1-1. The winner of this game will be conceded a good chance for the county championship.

In other games today, Ferguson will go to Clayton, and Ritenour will play host to Wellston.

MUNICIPAL COURSE GREENS TO BE OPENED ON SUNDAY, APRIL 20

Fred W. Pape, Park Commissioner, stated today he planned to open regular greens on the 18-hole Municipal course in Forest Park probably a week from Sunday, depending, of course, on weather conditions. He stated that he had gone over the course very recently and found the greens in fine condition but did not consider they had a sufficient stand of grass on them to justify him in opening them for he said if they were opened now there wouldn't be any greens by the middle of the summer.

Billiard Ball Driven 296 Feet on Airplane Runway by C. C. Peterson

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

The lower photo shows Pete's cramped position in stroking, a condition which reduced the power of his stroke.

Uneven Surface Retards Speed of Ball Driven by "Most Powerful" Stroke in Billiard World.

CHARLEY PETERSON, St. Louis billiard expert, temporarily at least, settled a question which has caused considerable discussion in billiard and engineering circles for some time past. The question was "How far can an expert drive a billiard ball along a smooth, straightaway surface, outdoors?"

Peterson answered this question by driving a ball 296 feet on two of the 1600-foot runways of the Curtiss-Steinberg Airport near Monsanto, Ill. Peterson drove an ivory ball a measured distance of 296 feet against a cross wind on one runway, but was unable to better the mark with the wind behind him on another.

Peterson states that the question first was brought up 30 years ago and that never before was a test made. Engineers told him, he said, that, considering the resistance of the concrete walk and the comparative unevenness of the surface that the best distance he could hope for would be 240 feet.

The question of how far "Pete" could drive the ball aroused such interest that more than 400 persons submitted guesses as to the distance he would attain on his trial. The lowest guess was 39½ feet. Two guessers came within one foot—E. Waterfield naming 295 and R. Kott guessing 297.

Peterson has one of the most powerful strokes known to the billiard world, developed to its peak by specializing in "fancy shots." In executing some of these Peterson is called upon to employ far more force than is required by even the longest of angle shots known to the game.

In making his test on the runways at the airfield Peterson had to stroke from a stooping position. Standing erect at a table he would be enabled to get far more power into the drive. The runway, too, was extremely rough, checking the ball materially.

Power of stroke on a billiard table is tested by the number of cushions a player can drive the cue ball. At Waco, Tex., Willie Hoppe, then world balkline champion, touring with Peterson, touched 11 cushions with a drive on a small table equipped with fast cushions.

The same year, in St. Louis, Peterson and Hoppe arranged a billiard driving match to settle the question of supremacy. The test was held in Peterson's theater on a standard size table. Hoppe drove the ball nine cushions and to within two feet of the tenth, on his best effort out of three trials. Peterson drove 11 cushions.

WILSMAN SCHEDULES BOXING SHOW AT OVERLAND, APRIL 23

It was announced last night by George Wilsman, matchmaker for the Overland Athletic Club, that his next amateur boxing show would take place next Wednesday night, April 23, at the Knights of Columbus hall, 2400 Woodson road, in Overland, St. Louis County.

Matchmaker Wilsman is seeking an opponent for Farrell Moore, slugging Tower A. C. fighter, who owns the Mississippi Valley Athletic Association welterweight championship. Moore is a very aggressive fighter and his style never fails to please the spectators. He is an idol among Overland ring fans.

The scrapper Matchmaker Wilsman is anxious to pit against Barney McCarthy's protege is Bill Finnegan, one of the stars of the South Broadway A. C. team, who put up a close fight with Moore several weeks ago in Dupo, Ill.

BROWNS' OUTER DEFENSE BELOW PAR; PITCHING STAFF STRONG

By James M. Gould.

With their final out-of-town exhibition game scheduled at Springfield, Mo., today, the Browns, their opening-day line-up decided, are due home late tonight. The two-game city series, tomorrow and Sunday, will serve as an interlude before the Ball-Killefer hopes of 1930 get into league action Tuesday against the Tigers at Detroit.

It may take a month of the regular campaign before a correct line can be obtained on the Browns—a real prediction made as to where the club figures to finish.

As the team stands now, with Blue, Melillo, Kress and Hale in the infield and Manush, Schulte and Gullic in the outfield, two of the four departments of play can be discussed intelligently. As a whole, the infield ranks with that of any other club in the American League. Blue not only is a near-perfect defense man on first, but his hitting, throughout the spring, has been the most consistent shown. Melillo, in perfect health, can be depended upon for his full share on attack and defense, while Kress seems due for his best year—and he was mighty good in 1929. The fans will note quite a difference in third-base play for Hale, who will be stationed there, is a natural third-baseman. O'Rourke really belongs at short. Also, it is believed Hale will outhit O'Rourke and be able to play every game if called upon. Last season was the first in his career that O'Rourke played all the way through.

Outfield Rates Low.

So far as the infield goes, therefore, Manager Killefer may well be satisfied. The outfield, though, does not rate well with other combinations. With all his high hitting-averages, no one ever dared call Heine Manush a good fielder. The loss of several close games last year may be directly traced to the bad defense work of the former Tiger. There's no fault to find with Schulte's defensive play but plenty with his batting. For a chap built as is Schulte, his hits should be more powerful and decidedly more frequent. As for Gullic, in right, he is at present an experiment. Killefer believes Ted will come through the test splendidly but he is an experiment, nevertheless.

Thus, the outfield must be considered below par, lacking in some sections strong defensive play and, in others, weak on the offense.

As for the catching, Rick Fefrell and Clyde Manion should be able to furnish the club with a brand of receiving which will be greatly helpful. Another catcher, other than Hungling, who seems sure to be sent out, could be used, but the burden of the receiving will fall on Ferrell and Manion.

Have Real Hurling Staff.

When Manager Killefer thinks of his pitching, he is able to smile without the aid of a cracked lip. There is little question that, as a whole, the Browns' staff of hurlers rates higher than that of any other club with the possible exception of that of the world champion Athletics. Gray and Crowder, the two veteran right-handers, both are in fine fettle, and Walter Stewart, the agile southpaw, can now be rated as a regular starter. A year ago he was recovering from a winter illness and was decidedly underweight. This year he seems able to take his regular turn. He is, in addition to his pitching skill, a splendid fielder. It appears that Blaeholder, who won 14 and lost 15 in 1929, will not be available for duty in the early stages of the [illegible]—if at all. But Killefer has Coffman, Ogden, Kimsey—all of them vastly improved—with Holshouser, an added starter as additional help in the regular work.

For reserve, the Brownie pilot can count on the sometimes brilliant Badgro and the always efficient McNeely in the outfield. Badgro is a great spring workman, and if McNeely could hit as well as he does everything else, he would be a regular without question. As extra infielders, Frank O'Rourke and Joe Hassler are available. Both fine fielders but neither a whale with the stick.

BEAR FENCERS GO TO CHICAGO FOR DUAL MEET

A team of six swordsmen representing Washington University departed this morning for Chicago where they will oppose the Chicago U. fencers in their second annual match.

Last year the Chicago team defeated the St. Louis fencers, but under the coaching of Joseph Fiens the Bears have made great progress in the intervening months and a reversal of the score is quite possible.

Capt. Bob Mutrux will lead the Bears team which includes Bob's brothers, Ed and John Mutrux, Arthur Bromberg, Ted Leon and Ed Woods. Bob and Ed Mutrux will appear in both foils and Epee events; Bromberg and Woods in the saber events and Ted Lyons in all three divisions. John Mutrux will be a reserve in the foils.

The meet will be held tomorrow evening at the Chicago U. Gymnasium.

AL SCHWEITZER'S ELKS BOXING AND WRESTLING CARD GOES OVER BIG

More than 800 members crowded Elks Hall last night to view the combniation boxing and wrestling program, the first held under the auspices of the new exalted ruler, Al Schweitzer. Four ring events, a battle royal and two wrestling features made up the card, on which some of the best local athletes were named.

All the bouts resulted in draws, having been announced as "exhibitions," but Jackie Horner suffered a cut on his face as a result of his three-round contest with Eddie Goldberg. Other three-round bouts on the card were: Peewee Kaiser vs. Joe Ghnouly, Paul Steadman vs. Peewee Terry, and Costello vs. Tomasso.

George McDowell of St. Louis University wrestled Billy Scharbert of East St. Louis and George Tragos and Jimmy Londos appeared in a 15-minute exhibition.

CHICAGO STADIUM TO HAVE NEW PRESIDENT

Leslie Mann, Veteran Big Leaguer, Says Baseball Now Is "Smarter" Than Ever

Veteran Picks McGraw, Mack and Rickey as Three Brainiest Managers of the Game.

Increased Thinking by Modern Pitchers Is Real Reason for Decline in Base-Running Art, He Claims.

BOYS' ORGANIZER

LESLIE MANN.

By Damon Kerby.

When the lively ball came into the big leagues, inside baseball flew out the window, in the opinion of many baseball students, but Leslie Mann, once a Cardinal, who spent more than 15 years in the National League, is not one who subscribes to that popular opinion. As a matter of fact, Mann believes that the standard of inside or smart baseball is becoming higher each season.

The former big leaguer, who wound up his playing career two years ago under John McGraw, is in St. Louis in the interests of the National Amateur Athletic Federation, of which he is national director, engaged in promoting baseball for boys and young men. He addressed Municipal players at the Soulard Community Center last night on the technique of baseball. The major leagues are back of his project to the extent of putting up $10,000 this year to aid in carrying on the work.

"Baseball to me has three eras," said Mann, in discussing the smart players of the past and present to a reporter yesterday. "There was the era that ended in 1913, which extended back to 1903; the era from 1913 to 1923, and from '23 to the present. I'm qualified to speak on all three, for there were still enough players of the 1903-13 era hanging on when I broke in to give me a line on the general play in the majors, and since then I have been an active and an observing participant.

"My impression of the early era is that the players, as a general rule lacked the fine co-ordination necessary for baseball greatness. There were some exceptions—Mathewson, Wagner—but the average ballplayer in the majors didn't have it. There was an improvement in the crop, as a whole, from 1913 to 1923, and a still more pronounced advance from 1923 to the present time."

What about the decline in base stealing?" Mann was asked. "Doesn't that show that players are not playing as smart a game as they did before the lively ball came in?"

"It's not a lack of smartness that causes less base stealing today; instead, it is the increased intelligence on the part of the pitchers" replied Mann. "They have perfected motions to keep the runner hugging first base. Dick Rudolph, my teammate with the Braves in 1914, was one of the first pitchers to give serious study to that problem. He used to practice for hours, in the clubhouse, in the hotel room at night, anywhere, on a half-balk to deceive the baserunner. Since then many pitchers have followed Rudolph's lead.

Mann, a graduate of the Springfield, Mass., Y. M. C. A. College, has kept notes on plays, players and managers since he entered the majors. With his notes as a background, Mann was asked to name his choice as the greatest manager in the history of baseball.

"That's a hard one, but I'll name the three greatest from the standpoint of brains—McGraw, Mack and Branch Rickey of the Cardinals. But that isn't saying that all three were successes. Two were, of course, and the third, Rickey, would have been equally successful—if he could have handled men. He has the greatest intellect of anyone connected with baseball. Players were dominated by that intellect and refused to think for themselves. I know because I played under Rickey for three years.

"Speaking of Rickey, talking is one thing that he can do," said Mann. "I'll never forget one time down at Orange, Tex., on a spring training trip, when Branch made a talk on our little catcher, "Pickles" Dillhoefer, who had died during the winter. When Rickey finished his talk several of his own ball players were crying. When a manager can move a bunch of ball players to sympathetic tears by sheer eloquence he must be good.

About McGraw.

"About McGraw. Don't let anyone tell you that he is not the 'master mind' on the field that he used to be. McGraw still directs every move his players make. And McGraw is a better manager today than he was 15 years ago, or 10 years ago. His system shows it.

"I never played in the American League against Connie Mack, so don't know so much about his style of play, from first hand knowledge, but I have talked with him enough in the past 15 years to realize that he has one of the greatest baseball minds in the history of the game. You can't leave him out when you start talking about the greatest managers."

DOXEY VICTOR OVER DALY IN AMATEUR BOUT

In a special return bout, Frank Doxey, Olympian A. C., reversed a previous decision when he defeated Joe Daly of Springfield, Ill., last night in the feature of a boxing program at the South Broadway A. C. Doxey piled up the lead on points in the first two rounds. Daly rallied in the final session but his flurry was too late to gain the verdict.

Steve Marre of the Sherman Park Community Center didn't go on in his scheduled bout with Johnny Miles of the South Broadway A. C., and the 600 customers present missed what would have been the seventh of the fight series between Marre and Miles. The latter took the judges' decision over Charles Schober, also of the South Broadway A. C.

WASHINGTON AND CALIFORNIA IN CREW RACES AT SEATTLE TODAY

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 11.—The eyes of the rowing world were turned today toward Lake Washington, picturesque body of water at the northern edge of Seattle, where the famous crews of the Universities of California and Washington were to battle for Pacific Coast supremacy for the twenty-second time.

Nearly 100,000 persons, the greatest crowd ever to witness an athletic event in the Pacific Northwest, was expected to watch one of the most colorful and dramatic spectacles in the West. Many began locating advantageous points of view on the shore of the lake early today for the event which was scheduled for this afternoon. Others were preparing to board boats and airplanes for closer views of the races.

Clear skies and fair water were forecast. Although only a light north wind was predicted, the weather observer said it might reach a velocity of from 14 to 16 miles an hour which would slow down the time of the shells and make it unlikely that new records would be established. The course runs north and south with the boats traveling northward.

The freshman race was scheduled for 3 o'clock (Pacific Standard time). The junior-varsity for 4 o'clock and the varsity an hour later (7 p. m. St. Louis time).

Experts gave California the edge in the freshman two-mile event, Washington the advantage in the three-mile junior-varsity race, and called the blue ribbon classic—the varsity three-mile battle—a toss-up.

Both crew camps were optimistic but only Russ Nagler, California freshman mentor was willing publicly to announce confidence in his combination to win. Head Coaches "Ky" Ebright of the California Bears and Al Ulbrickson of the Northern Huskies both predicted close races in the varsity and junior-varsity events.

Cleveland Plays Beaumont; Soldan Opposes Central in High School League Openers

The City High School League baseball season will open tomorrow afternoon with a double-header at the Public School Stadium. The first game at 1 o'clock will be between the championship Cleveland nine and Beaumont. Soldan battles Central in the second contest, starting at 3 o'clock.

Coach Bert E. Fenenga of Cleveland expects his team to make a good showing provided Marcus Benecke can stop the Beaumont batters. Fenenga has been giving his charges a good deal of hitting practice, and has developed some good sluggers in Joe Ernst, Gene Poteet, Kenneth Bieber and Earl Hahn.

John Vessels will do the catching for the champions, replacing Andy Kumas, who has a split finger. Vessels is an in-and-outer in his play, but he has been hitting the ball hard in practice. The infield will be Bieber at first, Hahn at second, Ted Schlueter at short and Roy Paglusch at third. Paglusch is the lead-off batter.

Either Harry Vierheller or Al Michely will be in left field, with Poteet in right and Ernst in center. Ernst and Bieber are the only veterans on the team. Alois Wessling may get a chance on the mound if Benecke fails to last the distance.

Hannagan Will Pitch.

The lineup that will represent Beaumont is Bob Klabitz, first; John Guhman, second; Bernie Walsh or Woodfin Selby, short; Harold Klein, third; Earl Fay, left; Art Methany, right; Dan Meyers, center; Herb Bohringer, catch, and Harry Hannagan, pitcher.

Kalbitz, Walsh, Guhman, Klein and Bohringer are the letter men on Coach Victor Kirk's team.

With Bob Lahey and Paul Patton groomed to set the opposing batters down in order, Coach Harry White thinks that Soldan can be counted on as a contender. Keith Walker had been scheduled to do the receiving, but he was ordered to rest a few weeks by the doctor and Preston Williams will be behind the plate.

The Soldan infield will consist of Howard Butts, first; Bill "Red" Jones, second; Lee Handley, third, and Capt. Wilbert Siesennop, short. In the outfield will be Barney Passer, Bob Gardiner and Oscar Machens.

Ineligibility has caused Coach Roland Neumann to make changes in the Central lineup, but it is probable that the Midcityans will be represented by Elmer Boeding, pitcher; John Finley, catcher; Ralph "Bud" Yourtee, first; Clem Wright, second; Joe de Luca, third; Clarence Love, short; George Straith, left; Pete Kelleman, center, and Herman Pfeifer, right.

SAN FRANCISCO BEATS CHICAGO BLACKHAWKS IN FAST HOCKEY GAME

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—In a fine exhibition of offensive play, the San Francisco Tigers defeated the Chicago Blackhawks, 4 to 3, in a fast ice hockey game here last night.

The Blackhawks, runners-up to the Boston Bruins, winners of the recent National League race, entered the contest heavy favorites.

The Tigers upset the dope after trailing 1-0 by driving the puck into the invaders' net three times in the third period.

Chicago scored twice in the last few minutes of play, but their rally came too late.

BEARS' PITCHERS SHOW GREAT PROMISE BUT LOSE TO WISCONSIN, 5 TO

WILD HEAVE BY GEHRING GIVES VISITORS BREAK IN ELEVENTH

An unexpectedly large crowd of probably a thousand persons turned out to watch the Washington University Bears in their first baseball game of the season yesterday afternoon at Liggett Field on the Washington U. campus, only to see the Bears go down to a 5-to-4 defeat at the hands of Wisconsin University in a game that went 11 innings.

It may have been the warm spring afternoon and the free gate that brought so many people out to the game, but it was certainly exciting baseball that held the crowd until the last man was out in the eleventh. And if there were present some who came out to get a line on Washington U.'s prospects for the season, they certainly cannot be down-hearted today, even though the Bears lost.

Fine Pitching Prospects.

In Robert Jordan and Orville Paul, who made their debuts in varsity competition, the Bears have two young pitchers who are destined to win many games on the hilltop. Jordan allowed 11 hits until relieved for a pinch hitter in the ninth, but he did not grant more than two hits in one inning, and on several occasions he tightened up when another hit might have brought on a deluge of runs. Paul, who doesn't admit that having only one arm is a handicap, pitched the last two innings and was charged with the defeat, but he gave a convincing exhibition of pitching, nevertheless. In the tenth he turned the Badgers back on two weak infield grounders, one of which he himself fielded with his bare hand, and on a strikeout.

Losing control momentarily at the beginning of the eleventh, Paul walked Wener, the first man up. Winer then dumped a grounder toward third base, and Gehring, undecided whether to make the play at second or first, hesitated and then threw wild to first. Ellerman forced Wener at third, and it appeared that the Bears might choke the rally, but Mittemeyer connected with one of Paul's fast balls and shot it down the third base line and into left field, while Winer raced over the plate from second with what proved to be the winning run.

In the Bears' half of the eleventh Jablonsky opened with a deep single to short, but was forced at second on an attempted sacrifice by C. Smith. Vandover, batting for Paul, struck out and Meyer grounded weakly to third to end the game.

Sausselle Hits a Homer.

The Bears made all their runs in the fourth inning, the first being scored when Ted Sausselle drove a liner to deep center which he stretchd into a home run by some fast base running. The home run upset Pitcher Poser of the Badgers for the moment and before he could get his bearings the Bears had bunted three more runs across, In deliberately bunting the ball to the rattled pitcher Coach White's team showed very good strategy.

Lusby, Badger left fielder, got a home run in the second with a teammate on base, when his long fly to left got past Friedman and rolled through the bushes bordering left field.

The ball, if not the ball game, made a deep impression on one spectator, who was hit squarely in the forehead by a "bee-line" foul. He was led out shaking his head, but returned to witness the rest of the game. Some day, perhaps soon, Washington University may have an expensive damage suit on its hands unless protection is provided for spectators. The bleachers along the third base line are not more than 15 feet removed from the baseline and there are no screens to protect the bleacherites.

Red Roche, Muny League umpire, officiated, and found himself a target for criticism several times. It was a hard afternoon for Red, as there were an unusual number of tough ones to call; and besides, two innings overtime and no extra pay.

Jordan got out of a tight hole in the fifth inning when, with the bases loaded, he forced Lusby, who already had a homer and a single to his credit, to ground out to Sausselle, and end the inning.

Catcher Jablonsky is apparently a good receiver so far as catching goes, but he is handicapped with a weak throwing arm. He had to "arch" some of his throws down to first base.

The game was well played throughout. Only three errors were made by each side.

WRAY'S Column

Names Are Nominal.

A FILLY may win the Kentucky Derby for the second time in history, next May, but the public would not know it. At least, not from the lady's name.

That would happen if the victory went to the flying daughter of Supremus-Regal Roman, named Alcibiades! Unless our ancient history has landed on the wrong fairway, Alcibiades was a Greek General.

Naming that nag was what one calls a double faux pas. To name the lady after a gent was all wet; and to name any Derby candidate after a General—well, it just won't do.

A Derby horse must run, but a General never!

We haven't heard of any Generals showing speed since the days of "strategic retreats."

Taking In Territory.

IN Merry England racing is going along swimmingly, save for a slight disturbance caused by the inroads of greyhound tracks. The United States has never been able to catch up with the old country's racing methods, ideals or mechanics.

It is pretty well established that in England they breed better thoroughbreds and conduct their meetings on a higher plane than most American tracks. And now they are taking the lead from us in serving the public with improved betting machines. The new movable totalizators are in use abroad now. At Newmarket England, a splendid and extremely costly totalizator of a new type is being completed.

The machines safeguard the public by mechanically registering all wagers, showing the constant fluctuation of the odds and mechanically estimating the pay off.

The machine is a big advance over any form of mutuel betting device in existence in this country. Even in Maryland, where the four tracks have turned over $475,000,000 in wagers in the last eight years, there is no totalizator to help out the public.

In England, at many meetings, movable "totes," mounted in huge motor busses, go from track to track, as the meetings shift. This sort is desirable in England, because racing meets there last only a few days, whereas the expense of constructing a permanent machine is very great.

In America, where meets last as long as 50 successive days (we may mention Fairmount's 1930 dates) the duration of meetings might justify installing permanent mechanical mutuel plants.

Here's a Novel Idea.

THE advance of the totalizator in popularity abroad has led to a suggestion in the London Daily Chronicle that "totes" be built in the various major cities of England and linked electrically with the main totalizator at the track.

That would extend the field of operations to an amazing degree and practically wipe out private bookmaking.

If this system were introduced into the United States the great profession of handbook making would perish overnight.

Handbooks today put a limit on maximum odds at about 20 to 1, sometimes less. With totalizators operating in cities, handbooks would be forced to quit or pay track odds.

Handbook men say the "going is pretty tough" under the present system, without having to face unlimited odds.

Just what is meant by "tough" is hard to fathom, since the number of bookmaking persons gainfully employed and getting rich rapidly is increasing at a high rate.

This "Night" Life.

NIGHT life is expanding in the world of sports. This is not the wild and untamed night life of the speakeasy, but the outdoor variety. We had in mind particularly the sports that once flourished in the daytime and have been converted recently to night uses—greyhound racing, college football, soccer football and now baseball.

The first three recently have proved night successes. It remains to be seen whether the ventures in baseball at Des Moines and other minor league points can be carried out successfully.

Illumination is the chief factor of doubt and if this can be developed to a point where high fouls and flies can be followed and fielded, there is no doubt that certain communities will be all for the night stuff.

Night Horse Racing.

HORSE racing? Most of us would say night races were impossible. To properly light a mile strip so that the horses and their colors can be followed beyond the chance of skulduggery, seems almost impossible.

The "Good Old Days."

AND yet at one time St. Louis had a pair of night race tracks—South Side Park and Chris Von der Ahe's "Shoot the Chutes" Park.

These were dinky little merry-go-rounds, poorly lighted on which all sorts of tricks were pulled. But they flourished for a time and some quite famous horses and also jockeys—Tod Sloan for example—were brought out at these courses.

The night track's origin was just a joke. The Western Jockey Club when asked for dates by Cella, Alder and Tilles, had replied facetiously: "Sure you can have dates—nights and Sundays! Haw, haw, haw!"

But George McManus, then manager of the Old Grand Opera House, who was listening in, took up the challenge. He told Tilles: "Let's take the nights and Sundays. We'll run a night track!"

They did—and made plenty money.

Today? That's different again. The public would like it. But the promoter's pocketbook might throw a fit afterwards.

McGraw to Use Roettger as Soon as He Joins Giants—Ruth Still Limping—Mahaffey Shuts Out Phillies.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 11.—Manager Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics is convinced he has a "pretty good" pitcher in Lee Roy Mahaffey, the big righthander obtained from the Portland (Ore.) Club.

Pitching against the Phillies yesterday, Mahaffey was the first Athletic hurler to go the regulation distance of nine innings, and he performed to the entire satisfaction of Mack, shutting out the hard-hitting National Leaguers. Mahaffey also lived up to his reputation as a hitter by knocking a single and two-bagger.

The city series stands two games to one in favor of the Athletics, with two more games to be played. One of the remaining contests was scheduled for the Phillies Park today and the other tomorrow.

Lopez Is Real Star.

NEW YORK, April 11.—In Alfonso Lopez, young Spanish catcher from Tampa, Fla., the Brooklyn Robins seems to have a real find. Lopez displayed his wares to Brooklyn fans for the first time yesterday as the Robins beat the Boston Red Sox. And all he did was get a timely single, follow it with a heady bit of base running that took him to second, score one of Brooklyn's three runs and nip two attempted steals of second with fine throws.

Ruth Is Still Limping.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 11.—At last Babe Ruth really has knocked a baseball clear out of sight, but he didn't get a home run when he did it. The Babe drove one off the top of Lookout Mountain here yesterday and no one saw how far it went. In game against the Chatta Southern Association team, the the Babe could do on his lame was get one triple, which K ran out for him, and let a balls get past him in left which he ordinarily would down.

Rancocas Stable's Grattan An Inconsistent Performer

		1st.	2d.	3d.	Unp.	Won.
GRATTAN	Lucullite .. Durbar (Chicle) ..	4	1	1	5	$25,050

Owner, Rancocas Stable (H. F. Sinclair).
Trainer, S. Hildreth.
Stakes: Won Great American Stakes at Aqueduct; won Hudson Stakes at Aqueduct; third in Sanford Stakes at Aqueduct.

GRATTAN (40 to 1 in Future Book).

AMONG the horses that won stake races during their 2-year-old season and are now being prepared for the Kentucky Derby is the Rancocas Stable's Grattan. In spite of his fine record in sprint events last year, he is considered only an outsider in the future book, being quoted at 40 to 1.

Grattan's finest effort was his victory in the Great American Stakes at Aqueduct when he defeated Prometheus, Sarazen II, Frumper and eight other high-class 2-year-olds at the five furlongs distance.

In taking the Hudson Stakes at the same track he scored at the expense of Erin, Crack Brigade, Questionaire and 10 others.

He gave away 10 pounds to Prometheus in winning the big stake and earlier in June he was a close second to the same horse when the weights were in Prometheus' favor.

This is one of a series of articles on Kentucky Derby eligibles and their records.

At best, however, Grattan has been an inconsistent performer. His four victories are scattered through 11 races and it seems he is as apt to finish last as first. He has never competed at a mile or farther.

He is a well-bred colt by Lucullite. His dam is Durbar whose sire was Chicle.

Next—Crazy Coot.

WEBSTER TRACK TEAM MEETS ST. LOUIS U. HIGH

Webster Groves High School's track team will engage in the first of its dual meets tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock, when the St. Louis U. High athletes are met on the Orange and Black field and track.

Webster's record so far this season in both the junior and senior tracksters is rather outstanding, especially that of the junior boys in their one meet with Kirkwood.

With Devine and Harkey starring in four events each, Webster ran away from the Lyonsmen, 84 to 29. Rogers is another who will help Webster greatly. Tremayne, in his first season at Webster, is a coming athlete and may pull some surprises in the dashes, pole vault and broad jump.

Coach Robert's seniors carried off second-place honors at the Carlyle relays, and placed in meets at Kemper and Columbia.

TOBERMANN IS BEAUMONT STAR IN TRACK MEET

Scoring all but three firsts in the junior division of the two-day triangular meet with St. Charles and Kirkwood, the Beaumont track team took a big lead in the competition yesterday. Several exceptional marks were made. Tobermann of Beaumont threw the shot 50 feet, which is one and one-half inches better than the district record. He ran the 220 in 25 seconds flat. Excellent height was made in the pole vault, which was won by Selejan of Beaumont, with 11 feet.

CARNERA'S KAYO RECORD IN U. S. UNDER INQUIRY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 11.—The National Boxing Association yesterday launched its threatened investigation into the one-round knockout tour of United States rings by Primo Carnero, Italy's man mountain heavyweight.

Its investigating committee, composed of Secretary Walter Liginger of the Wisconsin Athletic Commission and Chairman John V. Clinnin of the Illinois Commission, sent out questionnaires to commissions in all the 14 states Carnera has appeared in requesting leaders of each to investigate thoroughly whether there were any indications of collusion between Carnera's manager and those of any of his various opponents.

"We intend to determine whether Carnera's fights have been of the dive variety," Chairman Clinnin said.

Reports were received yesterday from commissions in Pennsylvania, Missouri and New Je y, but they were held secret.

Local Commissioner Ok's Bouts.

Seneca Taylor, Missouri Boxing Commissioner for the St. Louis District, said this morning that he had received no request from the N. B. A. for a report on the two Carnera bouts in St. Louis. Taylor stated he could say nothing officially until he received the questionnaire but said that in his opinion there was nothing wrong with Carnera's two appearances in St. Louis except that his opponents were not strong enough for him. Carnera fought Buster Martin Feb. 11 at The Arena and knocked him out in two rounds then met Chuck Wiggins March 17 and knocked him out in two rounds at The Arena.

Taylor said Carnera has the heavyweights around the country bluffed, that they do not want to meet the Italian at all but if they get into the ring with him they want a great deal of money for doing so.

"Take Von Porat, for instance," Taylor said. "He is here now for a bout with Jack De Mave and I'll bet he's only getting a thousand dollars or two for the bout. He wants $25,000 to box Carnera and De Mave asked $7500 to $10,000 to box Primo."

FORGER OF FOREST O'BRINE'S NAME MOVES ON TO OMAHA

Imposter Who Has Cashed Worthless Checks Here, Tried to Arrange for Banquet There.

A man, who represented himself as Forest OBrine, endurance flyer, and cashed worthless checks at Kansas City and St. Joseph this week, moved to Omaha yesterday, where he reepated the impersonation and announced he had been delegated to ararnge a banquet for the Caterpillar Club, an organization of pilots who have saved their lives by parachute jumps.

The man ararnged with the management of an Omaha hotel for an elaborate dinner, which he said would take place next Wednesday. When he sought to cash a check the manager became suspicious, and the stranger left.

Forest O'Brine is at his home here.

EVE WITH RIBBON IN HAIR STARTS DEBATE IN CHICAGO

Eden Styles as Depicted in St. Louis Artist's Painting Cause Discussion in Women's Club.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 11.—A St. Louis woman's painting of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, with Eve wearing a hair ribbon, has started a discussion among officers of the Illinois Women's Athletic Club, where the painting is on exhibition. Miss Valentine Vogel is the artist.

Mrs. Bessie Bragg Pierce, president of the club, holds that a hair ribbon is inadequate attire; Mrs. Minna Schmidt doubts that hair ribbons were worn at all in those days; other members disagree as to the meaning of the picture. Some have proposed that it be ruled out. Miss Vogel says that if her picture is banished, half the pictures in the Art Institute should be ruled out also.

Miss Vogel, who is 24 years old, lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Vogel, 5179 Cabanne avenue. She is now in Chicago.

Her picture, entitled "Apres," was displayed at the Noonan-Kocian galleries here last January. Adam and Eve, a pair of flaming nudes against a green sky, are depicted in smoldering vermillion. Some held it represented an Eden sunburn; others insisted it was the color of a state of mind, basing their opinion on the picture's title. Miss Vogel gave the simple explanation that she used vermillion because it made a good contrast against a green sky.

WILLS POINT, Tex.—After farming for more than half a century near the Van Zandt-Smith county line and finding it required both industry and economy to live, R. L. Wells, 70 years old, refused $1,000,000 cash for his holdings in the Van oil field. Wells has five children and says he does not wish to sell until they are satisfied with the bargain.

MAKE SWISS STEAK FROM ROUND STEAK

Time Well Spent in Preparing This Savory and Nutritious Main Dish.

All good cooks should know how to prepare the less expensive cuts of meat so that they will be tender, appetizing and palatable. Almost anyone with a slight knowledge of cooking can serve a tenderloin steak so that it will be a welcome part of the meal, but it takes some skill to accomplish the same result with a piece of the chuck or a flank steak or a cut of the bottom round.

This week the lesson deals with beef and the cooking of a Swiss steak.

For this use two pounds of meat cut from the bottom round. This varies in price according to locality. It is, however, solid meat and contains no waste. The meat fibers in this cut are rather long and the meat needs slow cooking in order to make it tender. It is excellent in flavor and when well cooked is extremely appetizing.

Have the meat cut about one inch thick. Spread it out on a large platter and rub two tablespoons of flour into each side or beat into the meat with the handle of a wooden spoon or with a wooden potato masher.

A heavy frying pan about two inches deep or one of the heavy kettles used to cook pot-roast in will be the best for cooking this steak.

Heat it and put in two tablespoons of meat drippings or of one of the fats. When the fat melts, put in the steak and cook quickly until it is brown on one side. Because of the flour you have rubbed into the meat, it will brown in a very short time. With a long handled fork turn the meat over and brown on the other side. Then turn off the heat or put the pan on the back of the stove while preparing the rest of the ingredients.

Peel two large onions and cut them in slices. Open a can of tomatoes—a medium sized can that holds two cupfuls will be needed. Scrape one carrot and cut in small dice. Put these vegetables over the meat, sprinkle with two teaspoons of salt and a little pepper. Cover the pan with a close fitting cover and cook over a very slow fire for one hour or a little bit longer if necessary to make the meat tender.

When done, lift the meat to a hot platter and sprinkle with chopped parsley. Mix two teaspoons of flour with enough cold water to make a smooth paste and stir it into the gravy in the pan. Let boil us, stirring to keep it smooth, and strain or serve with the vegetable in as you wish. It is best to serve the gravy in a separate dish.

This recipe has considerable nutritive value. The meat is, of course, a body building food. The tomatoes used supply valuable vitamins and the onions and carrots add more of these. The acid in the tomatoes helps to soften the meat fibers and to make them more digestible as well as more tender. In fact, it is because they are tender that the digestive juices can work upon them.

If using Swiss steak for a meal serve boiled new potatoes cooked in their jackets, with it. Add a plain salad of cucumbers and celery instead of cooking a vegetable, or serve coleslaw instead of the cucumbers. Fruit dessert or a sponke cake bought from the bakers and served with a fruit sauce or one of the good commercial chocolate sauces will make a well balanced and very satisfying meal and one that can be prepared without much worry.

LOCAL MARKETS DISPLAY LARGE SUPPLY OF VEAL

Less Tender Cuts May Be Used for These Savory Veal Birds.

Veal birds appeal to housewives who enjoy featuring individual services of food on the family table.

To prepare veal birds take one round veal steak, three slices bacon, one egg, one teaspoon salt, three-fourths teaspoon celery salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-half minced onion, two tablespoons lemon juice, three-fourths cup stale breadcrumbs, one and one-half cups water and flour.

Wipe the meat with a damp cloth, cut into five or six pieces, making each as nearly square as possible.

Make a dressing with the other ingredients omitting the flour and water. To make the dressing, put bacon through meat chopper, add breadcrumbs, egg and seasoning. Mix thoroughly.

Divide the dressing into as many portions as you have pieces of veal. Roll meat around dressing, skewer with toothpicks. Dredge with flour, brown in drippings. When well browned, place in casserole. Sprinkle with one teaspoon salt and one-quarter teaspoon pepper. Pour over the water.

Cover closely and place in oven. Cook slowly for three hours. When done thicken gravy with a flour-water paste.

APPETIZING MAIN DISH MADE WITH PORK TENDERLOIN

Tempting Way of Preparing This Very Delicate Pork Product.

Cut one whole pork tenderloin lengthwise and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Make a potato dressing, without sage, and spread this over the meat.

Roll as you would a jelly cake, tie with a string and put into a baking pan. Add a little boiling water and bake, basing frequently, until the meat is tender.

A strip or two of bacon may be laid over the meat before putting it in the oven.

Remove the meat from the oven, slice it as a jelly roll and arrange the slices on a hot platter.

Make a gravy of the liquid in the pan and add to it a tablespoon of tomato catsup with salt and pepper to taste.

HOW TO MAKE CHILDREN ENJOY CEREAL DISHES

Cereals are one of the most important foods and should form the main hot dish for growing children at breakfast time.

In order to avoid rousing dislike, be sure to serve a good variety of cereals and use them in different ways.

For example, cook enough wheat cereal for two mornings and pour half of it into very small cups or individual molds.

Set aside, and the next day serve it cold with fresh berries, sliced bananas or peaches, a little sugar and cream. Or reheat over hot water and serve with stewed figs, raisins or prunes. Or again, slice it in thick slices, dip in flour, saute in butter and serve with honey or maple syrup.

ANOTHER SHORTCAKE RECIPE

Modern Cookery Experts Supply Types for All Tastes.

Modern cookery experts find great pleasure in adding to the already long list of strawberry shortcake recipes.

Here is a new one in the series:

Strawberry Shortcake.

Ingredients needed are one-third cup butter, two-thirds cup sugar, one egg, one cup milk, two cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt and grated rind of one-half a lemon.

Cream the butter and sugar until light, add the egg, well beaten, then the milk and grated lemon rind, and, last of all, the flour, salt and baking powder sifted together. Beat thoroughly, turn into two pans, bake half an hour in moderately hot oven.

Serve with the whole or cut strawberries between the cakes. Serve with whipped cream.

When the Gravy Scorches.

A little sugar stirred into a scorched sauce or gravy will remove all taste of scorch.

Macaroons.

Beat the white of one egg until stiff and gradually fold in one cup sifted brown sugar. Fold in one cup pecan meats broken in small pieces and then chopped. Sprinkle with one-fourth teaspoon salt. Drop from the tip of a spoon an inch apart on a buttered and floured sheet and bake in moderate oven until delicately browned.

SPRING VEGETABLES, HOW TO COOK THEM

Suggestions for Making Best Use of Some Seasonal Green Things.

This is the season when young green vegetables should be used in abundance and when crisp salads should appear at least once a day on every family table. Yet there are countless numbers who do not know how to take advantage of the excellent variety of these foods that are present in our markets and that are reasonable in price.

Is there anything more disappointing than a salad that is flabby or a dish of green peas, which is expected to be sweet and tender, tasting hard and flavorless? A little care used in the preparation and a little knowledge of marketing is the best way of avoiding such mishaps.

First of all there are the salad greens—garden lettuce, watercress, dandelion greens, escarole, romaine and endive. These should be washed as soon as they are brought into the house, then thoroughly drained and put in a lettuce bag or in a plain paper bag and chilled. Watercress and dandelion greens will be easier to clean if soaked in cold salted water for about an hour. Bits of grit and sand will sink to the bottom of the bowl. Buy watercress that is a good green in color; if many of the leaves are yellow it is probably old and is sure to have a disagreeable flavor.

The large leafed cress is just as good in flavor and much easier to clean than the small leaves. Do not keep watercress in water in the icebox unless you want to crisp it quickly and serve it within a short time. It is much better to prepare it as suggested and keep it in a wet cloth in a bag.

Watercress Soup.

Watercress soup is a delicious spring delicacy. It is much similar to the sorrel soup that is so popular in France.

Cream a large bunch of watercress, break the sprigs and cook in two cups of boiling water for 10 minutes. Then drain, saving the liquid, and chop very fine or rub through a coarse strainer. Add the chopped vegetable and the juice to two cups of well seasoned white sauce and serve very hot with crutons or crisp crackers.

In cooking any of the leafy green vegetables time is saved and better results assured by soaking them first for an hour or so in plenty of cold water. This is much easier than washing each leaf separately. The soaking will loosen the sand and grit, and it will sink to the bottom. After soaking, lift the greens from the water and rinse them again. Do not pour the water off as they will put the dirt back into the greens again. This applies to spinach, beet tops, chard, dandelion, etc.

New Cabbage.

New cabbage is one of the best of the spring vegetables. The heads should be light green in color and the leaves free from defects. Wash the cabbage, cut in quarters and remove the hard core. Cover with boiling water and cook for 15 minutes, then drain, chop fine and season if desired. This short cooking period is enough to make the cabbage tender, it gives it its best flavor and it is more readily digested than when cooked longer. Shredded raw new cabbage may be crisped in ice water, thoroughly drained and served with other greens or alone as a salad.

New Green Peas.

To get the best results with new peas, buy pods that are green and fairly full.

Shell the peas, put in a saucepan with a half dozen of the pods and add just enough boiling water to cover them. Season with a little salt and a pinch of sugar—allowing a half teaspoonful of sugar to two quarts of peas. Boil 20 minutes, then add a tablespoon of butter and continue cooking until the water is absorbed. By that time the peas should be very tender and should have cooked not more than 30 minutes. Occasionally cook a sprig of fresh mint with the peas; the flavor combination is delicious.

Cheese Tart.

Rub cottage cheese through sieve, put on buttered thin crackers. Garnish with a tart jelly.

ECIPES FOR DISHES IN WEEK'S MENUS

arshmallow Mint Sauce and Ice Cream Make a Festive Dessert.

There are several kinds of fish that may be used for baking. ad roe is perhaps best known, t is also most expensive. Mackerel, founder or cod roe cost much less per pound, are delicate in flavor and just as good to use.

One pound of roe will be needed for four servings. Wash it, cover with boiling water, add one teaspoon salt and one tablespoon vinegar. Simmer for 10 minutes, then drain and remove any tough membrane. Cut in large dice and place in a baking dish and cover with two cups of well seasoned white sauce mixed with minced parsley and one teaspoon chopped chives. Spread with a layer of buttered bread crumbs and bake 10 minutes in a hot oven.

If used for breakfast, this may be prepared the night before ready for baking. Serve very hot.

Mint Sauce for Ice Cream.

Mix together in a small sauce pan one-half cup of sugar and four tablespoons of boiling water. Stir over a slow fire until the sugar dissolves and then boil for three minutes or until the syrup spins a thread when dropped from a spoon. Pour slowly, beating constantly, into one stiffly beaten egg white. Color a pale green with a few drops of vegetable color, add 12 soft marshmallows cut in pieces and one-half teaspoon of peppermint extract. Beat until the mixture is thoroughly blended.

This may be kept warm over hot water or served cold. It is good with chocolate or vanilla ice cream or chocolate blanc mange.

Baked Meat Loaf.

There is a baked meat loaf used on Thursday night. Use for it a mixture of chopped beef, veal and pork—about equal parts of each. One and one-half pounds will make a loaf that will serve six people. Mix with this two inch-thick slices of bread that have been scalded with boiling water and then drained, one beaten egg, one teaspoon of poultry seasoning, the grated rind of half a lemon, one and one-half teaspoons of salt and one-half cup of milk.

Shape this into a loaf or pack it into a bread pan and put thin strips of bacon over the top. Bake in a moderate oven for 40 to 50 minutes, depending on the thickness of the loaf.

Stewed Figs.

If fresh figs are used cook them in water until they are tender, add sufficient sugar to sweeten—half the weight or two-thirds the measure of the solid fresh fruit. The plain canned figs offer the less expensive and more convenient source.

Boiled New Potatoes.

Wash six medium-sized potatoes clean. Place in small kettle and cover with boiling water. Put over flame and let boil five minutes. Cover the place in oven for one hour. Remove from oven, drain season with one teaspoon salt and four tablespoons butter.

SERVE TUNA EN CASSEROLE FOR A MEATLESS MEAL

This Particular Seafood Is Delicate in Flavor and Appetizing Too.

Although this is delicious at any time, it makes an excellent dish for those who need meatless recipes.

Butter a casserole and line bottom with a layer of sliced raw potatoes. Follow this with a layer of flaked tuna, a layer of chopped mushrooms, and a liberal dotting of cheese and chopped pimento.

Next a layer of potatoes, followed by tuna, mushrooms, etc.

With milk, butter and flour make a thin white sauce and season well.

When casserole is half filled with the above ingredients, pour in part of the white sauce.

Then finish filling the casserole with layers of potato, mushrooms, tuna, etc.—pouring the last of the white sauce over the top to finish.

Bake in a moderate oven until the potatoes are done.

Empty Cans Are Useful.

Save cocoa and baking powder cans for small fruit cakes and steamed puddings. Several small puddings may be steamed at the same time, and are much more convenient for small families.

STORY OF HONEY, THE EARLIEST SWEET

Flavor Depends on the Flowers From Which the Nectar Is Extracted.

Honey has been known since remotest times and formerly was the sweet for rich and poor alike. When cane sugar was discovered, it was at first a luxury for the very wealthy, but today sugar and honey seem to have changed roles. Owing to modern processes of manufacture, sugar can be refined, shipped and distributed in such a way as to make its price less than that of honey.

Honey is difficult to handle. It is sensitive to changes of atmosphere and temperature and must be carefully packed. But for delicacy of flavor honey is unsurpassed.

The flavor of honey usually depends on the flowers from which the nectar is extracted. Western honey comes from alfalfa, sweet and white clover; Eastern honey from Swedish alfalfa and white clover. From Southern California we obtain honey from the sage, orange, bean and yellow star thistle; from Texas from the mesquite, guajilla and horse mint. The clover, poplar and tupelo trees yield nectar for bees in some southern states.

In England and Northern Europe the bees gather heather honey; in Southern France rosemary honey is produced. Narbonne honey comes from the district around this French city. The famous Greek honey is a product of the thyme of Mount Hymettis.

So much for the sources of honey. It is sold both in the comb and extracted. The latter type is used for cooking. Either kind of honey should be kept in a warm dry place because honey readily absorbs moisture and becomes thin and will sometimes ferment.

The lover of honey enjoys comb honey served with waffles, hot biscuits, or bran muffins. He will also enjoy the subtle flavor of extracted honey in pies, cookies, ices and puddings.

DAINTY CRABMEAT SALAD

Regular Company Dish Served in Green Pepper Cases.

Wash green peppers, allowing one whole pepper to a serving. Cut a cap from each pepper and remove the seeds. Parboil 15 minutes in boiling salted water. Drain and cool.

Prepare crabmeat by removing the contents from one can crabmeat, flaking it with a fork. Season with salt, pepper and lemon juice (one teaspoon), add one tablespoon finely minced onion, one-half cup minced celery, one-fourth teaspoon capers and enough mayonnaise to hold the mixture together.

Fill the pepper cases with the mixture, garnish with a shamrock cut-out made from a green pepper. Serve on lettuce.

FESTIVE FOODS FOR EASTER SUNDAY

Grownups as Well as Boys and Girls Will Enjoy These Easter Foods.

Easter being the important festival in the Spring season special prepared salads and desserts and decorated eggs are required for the day's menu.

Hard cooked eggs and fresh vegetables molded in aspic jelly lend many possibilities for an appropriate Easter salad. Mint jelly or mint frappe made with gelatine is an excellent accompaniment for the lamb roast.

An Easter pudding placed on a large platter and decorated with shreds of green gelatine grass and bunnies twisted into shape from marshmallows will delight everyone present at the festive dinner. The best part of this dessert is that everything, including the gelatine grass and marshmallow bunnies, are edible.

The proverbial Easter eggs can go high-hat this year by being decorated to form funny faces or figures. Eggshells can be filled with different flavored and colored blanc mange and become edible as well as decorative.

Blanc Mange Eggs.

To make them take 12 egg shells from which the contents were removed by making a small hole in one end of egg and shaking the contents from shell. After draining the eggs fill the empty shells with cold water until ready to use.

For the eggs take two cups milk, one half cup sugar, one half teaspoon vanilla, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one tablespoon gelatine. Red, green and yellow vegetable coloring.

Soak gelatine in one-half cup cold milk for about five minutes. Heat remainder of milk and pour over soaked gelatine. When gelatine is dissolved add sugar, salt and vanilla. Divide mixture into three equal portions, coloring one portion red with red coloring, another portion green with green coloring and the third portion yellow with yellow coloring.

Rinse out whole egg shells and fill with blanc mange, that is, fill some of the egg shells with red colored blanc mange, others with green colored blanc mange, and still others with yellow colored blanc mange. Set filled egg shells in upright position in pan filled with crushed ice. When contents of egg shells are firm remove shells and serve colored blanc mange eggs. They may be placed in a nest of shredded green gelatine grass and served with the dessert.

Shredded Gelatine Grass.

The green lemon gelatine shredded grass may be made with one cup cold water, two cups boiling water, two tablespoons gelatine, three-fourths cup sugar, one-half cup lemon juice, one-fourth teaspoon salt and green coloring.

Soak the gelatine in cold water about five minutes and dissolve in boiling water. Add sugar, lemon juice, salt. Color mixture with green coloring. Rinse a shallow pan in cold water and fill with the mixture. Set in a cold place and allow to congeal. To make the grass shreds press the gelatine through a potato ricer. Use the grass shreds as filling for the blanc mange colored eggs.

The grass shreds may also be served as a garnish for an Easter pudding made according to this recipe.

Easter Cream Pudding.

Ingredients needed are three eggs yolks, one-half cup cold water, two tablespoon gelatine, two cups hot milk, one cup sugar, one cup orange juice, one cup of cream, whipped stiff, one-half teaspoon salt and one teaspoon lemon extract.

Soak gelatine in cold water about five minutes. Add to hot milk and stir until dissolved. Add sugar and pour milk mixture slowly on yolks of eggs which have been well beaten. Cook mixture in top of double boiler over boiling water until mixture becomes thick and coats a spoon. Remove from fire, add orange juice and cool.

When starting to congeal fold in whipped cream and add flavoring. Rinse ring mold in cold water and fill with pudding. To serve, unmold on large platter and fill center and garnish around edge with shreds of green lemon gelatine (put gelatine through potato ricer to make shreds).

Take pieces of marshmallow and twist into bunny shapes by making ears, nose and tail. Mark with red coloring the eyes and nostrils. Place these marshmallow bunnies at intervals on the green gelatine grass shreds.

FISH ARE WHOLESOME

Have a Nutritive Value About Equal to That of Meat.

It is well to remember that fish belong to the protein or body building food group, and because of this, has a nutritive value about equal to that of meat.

It is readily digested, in fact, generally more readily than meat as it contains less fat.

Aside from its protein content, fish contains many valuable minerals, chief among which is iodine, which is so necessary for the proper functioning of the thyroid gland.

The fish that are particularly rich in this element are cod, halibut, blue fish, weak fish, bass, haddock, flounder and the shell fish including clams, oysters, lobster and shrimp.

BAKED STUFFED PEPPERS

This Is a Savory Way to Prepare These Vegetables.

Remove the stem end and seed six large green peppers. Cook five minutes and drain.

To one can of vegetable soup add one cup soft bread crumbs, one cup chopped, cooked or left-over meat, one small chopped onion, one cupful dried celery, one teaspoonful salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper and a dash of paprika.

Fill the peppers with this mixture (moisten with a little water if too dry), place a strip of bacon on top of each and bake in a hot oven of 450 degrees Fahrenheit for 20 minutes or until the peppers are tender and the bacon is crisp.

SOME NEW RECIPES FOR PRESENT USE

Variety of Food Combinations Offers Opportunity to Use Leftovers.

Try a few of the following recipes. They will add variety to your dinner and may be depended upon to tempt the most jaded palate:

Creamed Rice With Apricots.

Cook rice in milk and put in greased ring mold. When cool, turn into a fruit-dish or casserole. Cook dried apricots and place halves around the top of the crown. Strain the remainder of the fruit through a fine sieve and pour in the hollow of the crown. If desired hot, put the mold in the oven for a few minutes before trimming with the apricots.

English Monkey.

Soak one cupful of stale breadcrumbs in one cupful of milk 15 minutes. Melt one tablespoonful of margarine, add one-half cupful of soft, mild cheese cut in small pieces, and stir until cheese melts; then add soaked crumbs, one egg slightly beaten, three-fourths teaspoonful of salt, and a few grains of cayenne. Cook three minutes, and pour over toasted crackers.

Watercress Salad.

Pick over the leaves of the watercress carefully, removing all bruised or wilted ones, and with the fingers break into two-inch lengths. Lay the cress in a salad-bowl, chop the onion very fine, strew it over the cress, add French dressing and serve.

Lima Beans, Neufchatel Style.

Take two cups canned lima beans (or one cup dried limas soaked in water overnight) one teaspoon salt, one and one-half cups milk, one-fourth cup margarine and two egg yolks.

Cook beans in boiling salted water until almost tender. Drain, remove skins and return to saucepan. Add fat, salt and milk, and finish cooking. Just before serving, add slightly beaten egg-yolks diluted with a little milk.

Remove skins and cut bananas in halves lengthwise. Arrange in a shallow pan. Spread the honey over the bananas, dot with butter and pour on the lemon juice. Bake 20 minutes in a slow oven, basting occasionally with sauce.

Cereal Omelet.

Beat four eggs, whites and yolks separately. To the yolks add one-half teaspoonful salt and a dash of pepper and three tablespoonfuls water. Beat well. Fold yolks into whites and add about four cups ready-to-serve cereal, folding it in the egg mixture. Cook on both sides until a golden brown. Serve hot with broiled bacon and tart jelly.

School Toilet Tissue is not always safe!

Protect your child with Scott Tissues the way this mother does . . .

"CHILDREN are especially susceptible," doctors say, "to serious rectal ailments caused by harsh, chemically impure toilet tissue."

Millions of careful mothers are heeding this medical warning by equipping their bathrooms with health-protecting Scott Tissues.

And many go still farther in safeguarding their children.

They see that each child, starting off to school, carries a few sheets of these softer, more absorbent tissues.

ScotTissue, Sani-Tissue and Waldorf are made from specially processed fibres—"thirsty fibres." Crumpled in the hand they feel actually cloth-like in texture . . . suave as old linen.

Scott Tissues are extremely absorbent—yet tough and strong. Without this absorbent quality real cleanliness is impossible.

Not only your children but the grown people in your family need protection from the troubles inferior toilet tissues may bring.

Be sure of safety! Always ask for either ScotTissue, Sani-Tissue or Waldorf. They cost no more than ordinary tissues.

NOTE: ScotTissue and Waldorf are the two largest selling brands in the world . . . Sani-Tissue is the new popular priced white toilet tissue embodying the famous thirsty fibre qualities.

STUFFED BAKED POTATOES

Nice Way to Serve This Vegetable for a Change.

Select medium-sized potatoes and bake. Remove the top of each potato so as to make it boat-shape.

Then scoop out the inside, being careful not to break the shell and mash very thoroughly. Putting the potatoes through a ricer will add to their creaminess. Add butter, hot milk and salt and heat well.

Next pile the mixture lightly into the shells, being careful not to smooth down the tops. Place in a shallow pan, return to a quick oven and brown lightly on top.

If the potatoes are too large for a single serving, cut in two lengthwise and stuff each half.

FRESH ASPARAGUS IS NOW SEASONAL

Vegetable Kingdom Can Boast of Few More Attractive Members.

Asparagus was grown by the early Romans and regarded as a prized article of food, used only by the wealthy class and served chiefly as an appetizer to the elaborate feasts of the period. It is said to have first been used as a food about 200 B. C. or some 2000 years ago!

Fresh asparagus is in season in spring and summer, while hot house and canned varieties are available throughout the year.

How to Cook Asparagus.

Tender asparagus does not have to be scraped, but the scales on the stem should be removed. Work in cold water and drain thoroughly.

One good way to cook it to keep it whole is to tie in a bunch and stand upright in a tall kettle. Fill container to within one inch of the tips with boiling water. Cover and cook gently about 15 minutes, leaving the tips to cook only in the steam. Add one teaspoonful of salt and cook another five or ten minutes, depending upon the thickness of the asparagus.

Lift out, drain, untie and remove for serving or preparing in various ways. Save the water for soupe.

When cooking asparagus for several people it saves time and effort to divide the asparagus into portions before cooking, tying each portion securely with a cord.

At serving time it can be lifted out of the water with a fork, placed on the plate, and the string cut and removed, leaving it neatly arranged on the plate, ready to be taken to the table.

Serving Asparagus.

The favorite ways of serving asparagus include creamed on toast when the cooked stalks are placed on slices of toasted white bread and garnished with a cream sauce.

Many persons prefer young asparagus served with a drawn butter sauce while others order the vegetable served with Hollandaise sauce.

Asparagus salad is also a popular service. In this case a French dressing is generally used. Either the tips or the heavy stalks are served on lettuce hearts.

Finally modern cookery experts feature combination dishes in which asparagus and fresh peas are served together with a cream sauce. New potatoes cut into small cubes are also served in combination with asparagus, the cream sauce being used to extend the dish.

Banana Tarts.

Peel bananas and remove fiber. Place bananas in bottom of baked tart shells and spread each with two tablespoons melted jelly.

FOR BRIDGE PARTY OR SUNDAY SUPPER

Prospective Hostesses Will Find Some Novel Dishes in This Menu.

This special menu can be used for Sunday night's supper or for a supper after a bridge party or any other entertainment. Those who love oysters will welcome the salad course as it takes advantage of the disappearing oyster season and serves these shellfish in a rather novel way. The menu is not difficult to prepare and most of it can be planned so that there is little to do at serving time but to bake or reheat the biscuits and make the beverage.

Menu.

Oyster salad
Hot biscuits Gelatine whip
Spanish cake
Tea Cocoa Coffee

The following recipes are all planned for four servings; it is a simple matter to double these or to increase the recipes as desired, according to the number of persons served.

Oyster Salad.

Pick over two dozen oysters to remove any bits of shell and scald in their juice until the edges begin to curl and the bodies of the oysters look plump. This takes only four or five minutes; too long cooking makes the oysters tough. Drain and cool. When cold pour over them a dressing made as follows: Mix together one-third cup salad oil, three tablespoons vinegar, one tablespoon minced chives, three-quarters teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Beat this until thickened and smooth and let the oysters stand in it for at least half an hour.

When ready to serve mix two cups of finely shredded new cabbage with one-half cup diced celery and one green pepper shredded. Add thin mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing to moisten and arrange in four mounds on crisp lettuce.

Arrange six oysters on each mound of cabbage and garnish with narrow strips of pimento and small sweet pickles. A tablespoon of stiff mayonnaise may also be used as a garnish if more dressing is desired.

Gelatine Whip.

There are several brands of very excellent flavored gelatines on the market. Use whichever prferred, pouring one cup of boiling water over the prepared gelatine. Stir until dissolved and then cool until beginning to thicken. Beat with an egg beater until very fluffy and as thick as heavy mayonnaise. Fold in one-half cup of cream whipped stiff and one-half cup of finely diced oranges or of canned crushed pineapple.

Pile in individual molds or sherbet cups and chill before serving. These may be garnished with green or red cherries or chopped nuts.

Spanish Cake.

Cream together one-third cup of shortening and one cup of sugar. When well blended add two eggs and beat thoroughly. Then stir in three-fourths cup of milk and next two and one-fourth cups flour sifted with three teaspoons of baking powder and one and one-half teaspoons cinnamon. Pour into a greased shallow baking pan so that the cake will be about two inches thick when baked. Sprinkle one cup of chopped blanched almonds over the cake and then dust lightly with powdered sugar.

Bake in a moderate oven for 40 minutes. Cool and cut in small squares for serving. Any of this cake left over may be reheated and served with a fruit sauce to make an excellent dessert.

PLANKED STEAK ADDS AN AIR TO THE SUNDAY DINNER

Meats Cooked This Way May Be Made Very Decorative and Appetizing.

Buy a sirloin or porterhouse steak about two inches thick. Trim the fat and if a porterhouse steak is used have the end cut off and ground. Shape this into flat cake and fasten it with skewers to the lower end of the steak.

Sear the meat in a hot frying pan for five minutes on each side. Then place on a hot greased plank and arrange a border of fluffy mashed potatoes around the edge of the plank. Put the plank in a hot oven and bake for 15 minutes to finish cooking the meat and to brown the potatoes.

Meanwhile, have the vegetables hot and ready to place on the plank. Use a stuffed baked tomato for each person to be served, small boiled buttered onions, new carrots, string beans or green peas, and broiled mushrooms. These are to be placed on the plank between the potatoes and the meat.

The plank should be a large one so that there is plenty of room to hold all of the various foods. The planks are usually made of oak and are grooved to hold the juices from the meat.

For serving the plank may be slipped into a nickel holder, or if this is not available, it may be placed on a large platter covered with a napkin to prevent slipping when the meat is carved.

Barley Water for Invalids.

To make barley water with pearl barley, wash one heaping teaspoonful of barley. Drain. Then add a pint of cold water. Boil gently for three hours. There will be very little barley left and the barley will have swollen and become soft. Add sufficient boiling water to make it a pint again. Add a speck of salt, then strain.

BREAD GRIDDLE CAKES

Nourishing Dish for the Family Breakfast Table.

A nice way to use up stale bread is to make bread griddle cakes.

For one cup of stale bread crumbs use one and one-half cups flour, four level teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons sugar, one-half cup boiling water, one cup milk, two tablespoons melted butter and one egg, well beaten.

Add boiling water to stale bread crumbs, let stand five minutes, then add milk. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar, and add to bread mixture. Then add egg and butter.

Fry immediately on hot griddle well greased. When full of bubbles, turn and cook other side. Add two or three tablespoons of melted butter, if richer and shorter cakes are desired.

Mushrooms on Toast.

Wash, dry and peel mushroom caps from outside towards center; scrape and chop stems. Place enough butter in frying pan to cover the bottom; add mushrooms and cook gently until tender, about 20 minutes. Remove caps to plate and use remaining fat for sauce. Serve on toast, with meat or in noodle ring.

All the full-flavored juice of sun-ripened tomatoes, blended with piquant, savory spices, with just a dash of appetizing tabasco flavor. That's Brooks Catsup flavored with tabasco peppers—On the grocer's shelves in the distinctive tapered bottle. Order a bottle today.

now means the same in baking as it does in the dictionary

Now you can buy a flour that enables you to bake biscuits, pancakes and waffles . . . pie-crusts, pastries and cake . . . "quick" breads, cookies and rolls with positive assurance of certain success. Jenny Wren Ready-Mixed Flour works differently and more surely than ordinary flours, because it is prepared by an entirely different process.

Takes the guess-work out of baking

Every step in its development is based upon the idea of absolute certainty. The hard and soft wheats that go into it are carefully chosen for certain specific qualities and are balanced and blended in a certain specific manner.

The milling, the rolling, the sifting thru silk . . . all are done in certain, specific ways. The leavening agents and other dry ingredients are chosen for certain specific advantages . . . and are combined with the flour in certain never-varying proportions. And finally, each batch of Jenny Wren is tested by actual oven baking under the same conditions as those prevailing in your own home. This testing goes on constantly . . . to make sure that every package of Jenny Wren Ready-Mixed Flour will give you the same satisfying results no matter when or where you buy it.

More than a cake flour

Jenny Wren is more than a biscuit flour, more than a cake flour, more than a pancake, waffle or pastry flour. It is all of these in one!

All the hard-to-mix dry ingredients are scientifically blended into it in the exact proportions necessary for perfect results. You do not add baking powder, salt, soda, yeast or any other leavening agent. All chance of failure, due to inaccurate measurements, variations or omissions, is eliminated.

Certainly!

You can make wonderful biscuits with Jenny Wren . . . light, fluffy biscuits that fairly melt in your mouth. And do it every time you try!

Certainly!

Use Jenny Wren for pancakes too . . . it brings them off the griddle with a lightness and flavor that will amaze and delight you.

Certainly!

Jenny Wren makes marvelous cakes and cookies too . . . especially chocolate cakes, dark cakes and drop cakes. Try it and see for yourself.

Try Jenny Wren entirely at our risk

Jenny Wren is so certain in results that we are able to back it with the most liberal guarantee imaginable. We say . . . buy a package from your grocer. Use half of it. If not delighted, return the unused portion and the full purchase price will be refunded.

HOW TO SERVE EGGS FOR BREAKFAST

Variations in the Ways of Preparing This Popular Breakfast Staple.

In spite of the fact that we have in this country a very large variety of foodstuffs available for general use, in most homes a deadly monotony exists in the total number of foods served. It is so easy to plan the same foods, knowing that the family likes them and will eat them without question.

This is particularly true of breakfasts. In this one meal of the day the same foods are served in the same way day after day, month in and month out.

Finally, complaints are hear that some members of the family are lacking in appetite, and that they never seem to relish their breakfasts. Then is the time to try some variations in the method of serving the breakfast eggs and the breakfast fruit! Thes; are mentioned especially because the have become what we migh almost call our national breakfas staples.

Boiled eggs, omelets, poache eggs, scrambled and fried, mak up the commonly accepted lot o egg dishes. The first named ca vary only in the length of tim they are cooked. Omelets ar almost legion in number yet w so seldom meet them properl made. Varieties of poached egg have already been told of, and th methods used for the scramble and fried will be spoken of further on in this article.

Omelets Are Popular.

These may be made in tw main types—the plain and th puffy, the difference in the latte being that the egg whites ar beaten stiff and folded into th yolks before the omelet is cooked

In the first type the whites an the yolks are beaten together. On of the nicest of the plain omelet is the one made with potatoes. is delicious as a breakfast dis when served with crisp popovers o toast. The French excel in the ar of omelet making and this recip is handed on by an old Frenc woman.

For four people use six egg beating them just enough to mi the whites with the yolks. Add t them one-half cup of milk, one half teaspoon of salt and a littl pepper. Cut a clove of garlic an rub the inside of a heavy fryin pan with it. Don't be afraid this; it adds a flavor that is deli cate and really necessary to th perfection of the dish. Cut tw medium sized boiled potatoes int small dice. Put two tablespoo of butter in the frying pan, ad the potatoes, cover and cook ve slowly until they are crisp an brown.

Pour in the eggs and cook slow ly until the omelet is firm. This one of the secrets of success making any omelet—it must b cooked slowly. When firm fol over, turn out on a hot plate an garnish with parsley.

Omelet Variations.

The omelet may be made wit out the potatoes, cooking it unt firm, then spreading with any ta jelly before folding. Or one-ha cup of grated cheese may be sprea over the omelet during the la few minutes of cooking. A spinac omelet is excellent for breakfa and it is made by spreading o cup of cooked spinach over t omelet and cooking it just lo enough to be thoroughly heate Any vegetable, or finely chopp meat well seasoned, minced par ley, chopped chicken livers finely chopped cooked sausage a all excellent additions to t breakfast omelet.

Scrambled Eggs.

As to scrambled eggs, the must also be slowly cooked a constantly stirred during the coo ing. In the beginning the sa recipe used for an omelet w make scrambled eggs. The diffe ence lies in the fact that the la ter requires constant stirring, wh the omelet is cooked undisturbe The scrambled eggs may be serv on toast that has been spread wi deviled ham or with anchovy pas For variety stewed tomatoes i stead of milk may be mixed w the eggs before cooking.

Finally, complaints are heard that some members of the family are lacking in appetite, and that they never seem to relish their breakfasts. Then is the time to try some variations in the method of serving the breakfast eggs and the breakfast fruit! These are mentioned especially because they have become what we might almost call our national breakfast staples.

Boiled eggs, omelets, poached eggs, scrambled and fried, make up the commonly accepted lot of egg dishes. The first named can vary only in the length of time they are cooked. Omelets are almost legion in number yet we so seldom meet them properly made. Varieties of poached eggs have already been told of, and the methods used for the scrambled and fried will be spoken of further on in this article.

Omelets Are Popular.

These may be made in two main types—the plain and the puffy, the difference in the latter being that the egg whites are beaten stiff and folded into the yolks before the omelet is cooked.

In the first type the whites and the yolks are beaten together. One of the nicest of the plain omelets is the one made with potatoes. It is delicious as a breakfast dish when served with crisp popovers or toast. The French excel in the art of omelet making and this recipe is handed on by an old French woman.

For four people use six eggs, beating them just enough to mix the whites with the yolks. Add to them one-half cup of milk, one-half teaspoon of salt and a little pepper. Cut a clove of garlic and rub the inside of a heavy frying pan with it. Don't be afraid of this; it adds a flavor that is delicate and really necessary to the perfection of the dish. Cut two medium sized boiled potatoes into small dice. Put two tablespoons of butter in the frying pan, add the potatoes, cover and cook very slowly until they are crisp and brown.

Pour in the eggs and cook slowly until the omelet is firm. This is one of the secrets of success in making any omelet—it must be cooked slowly. When firm fold over, turn out on a hot plate and garnish with parsley.

Omelet Variations.

The omelet may be made without the potatoes, cooking it until firm, then spreading with any tart jelly before folding. Or one-half cup of grated cheese may be spread over the omelet during the last few minutes of cooking. A spinach omelet is excellent for breakfast and it is made by spreading one cup of cooked spinach over the omelet and cooking it just long enough to be thoroughly heated. Any vegetable, or finely chopped meat well seasoned, minced parsley, chopped chicken livers or finely chopped cooked sausage are all excellent additions to the breakfast omelet.

Scrambled Eggs.

As to scrambled eggs, these must also be slowly cooked and constantly stirred during the cooking. In the beginning the same recipe used for an omelet will make scrambled eggs. The difference lies in the fact that the latter requires constant stirring, while the omelet is cooked undisturbed. The scrambled eggs may be served on toast that has been spread with deviled ham or with anchovy paste. For variety stewed tomatoes instead of milk may be mixed with the eggs before cooking.

RHUBARB SUET PUDDING IS AN UNUSUAL SWEET

One of the Old-Fashioned Desserts Which Grandmother Liked to Make.

Buy half pound of suet and have the butcher grind it up fine. Wash and cut up in small pieces one bunch of rhubarb which should measure one pint when cut up. Sprinkle one cup sugar over rhubarb and let stand.

Make a crust out of two cups flour, suet, one-fourth teaspoon salt and one-half cup water. Add water a little at a time to the flour mixture until of a homogeneous consistency. Mix to a smooth dough.

Roll out half of the dough and fit into a baking dish. Put in the rhubarb in the dish and make a top crust out of the remainder of the dough.

Place dish in pan of hot water and bake for two hours in a moderate oven. During the last half hour increase the oven heat to brown the crust. Serve hot with either vanilla sauce or foamy sauce.

Keep Foods Refrigerated.

Never put hot foods in the refrigerator. Wait until they have cooled. The placing of hot food in an automatic refrigerator during the freezing period will have a tendency to raise the temperature and interfere to some extent with the rapidity of freezing.

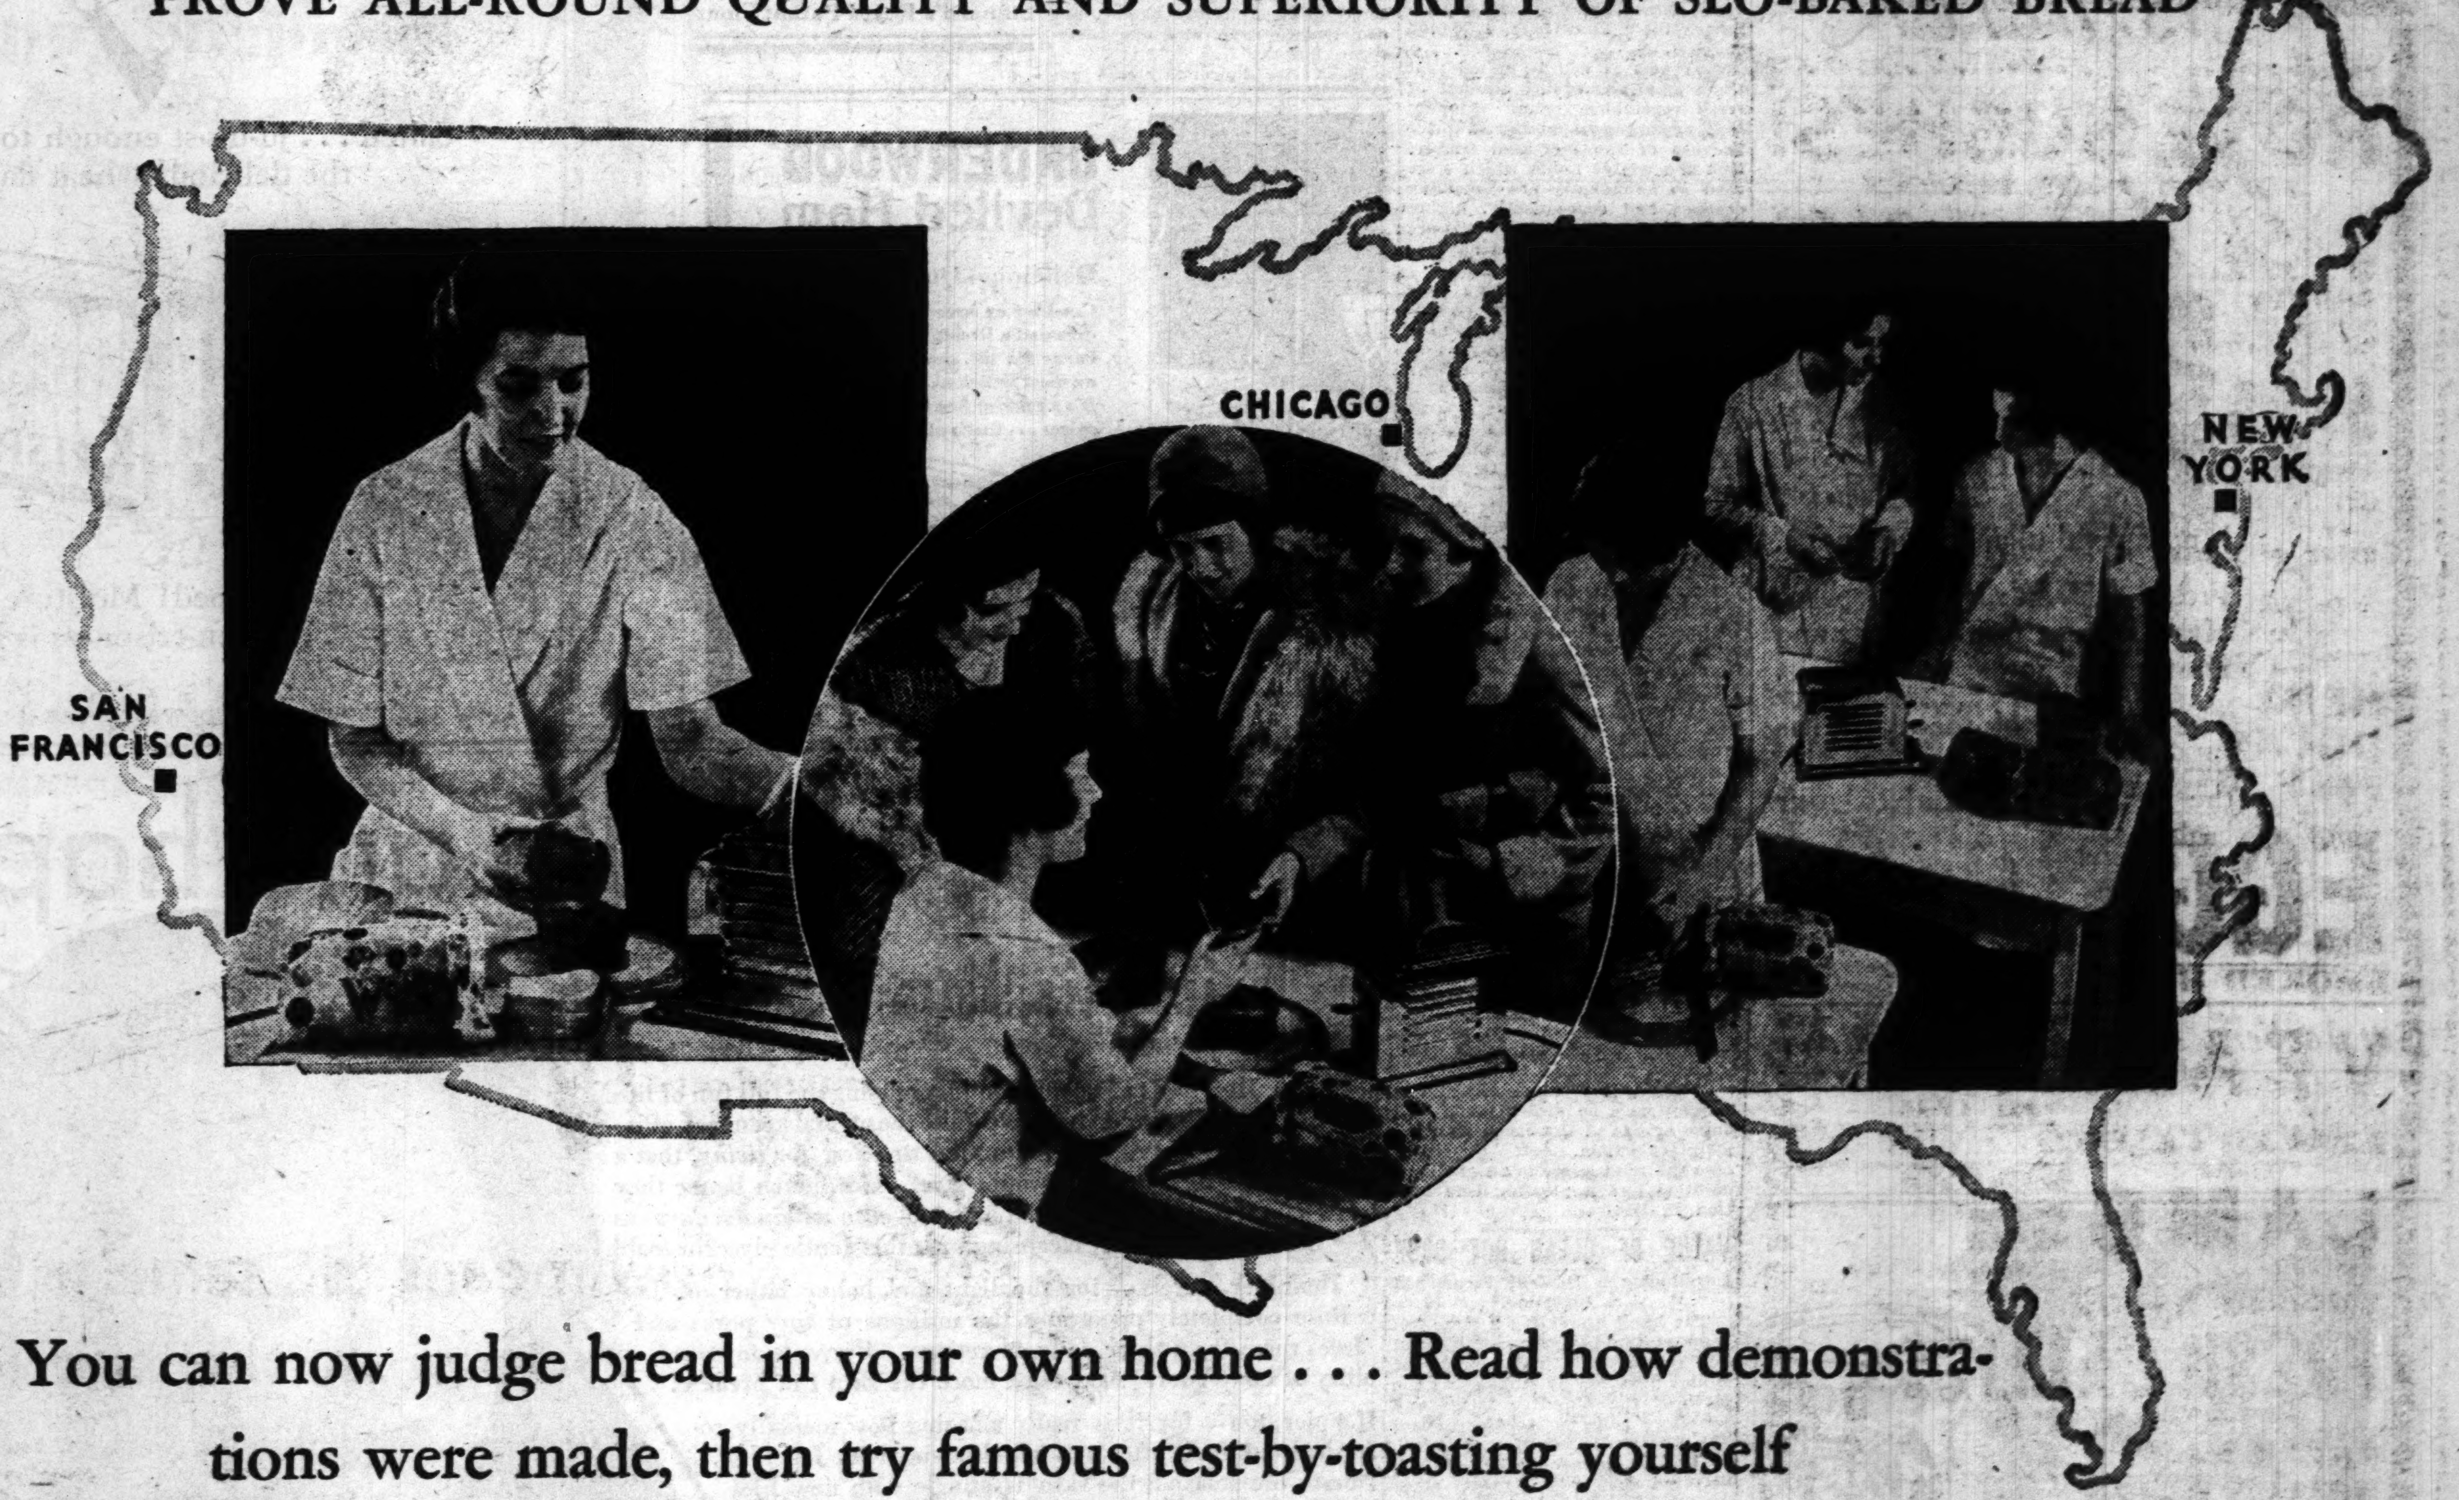
From coast to coast Women Test Bread by Toasting

PROVE ALL-ROUND QUALITY AND SUPERIORITY OF SLO-BAKED BREAD



You can now judge bread in your own home . . . Read how demonstrations were made, then try famous test-by-toasting yourself

By Alice Adams Proctor

WE wanted to demonstrate to housewives that Wonder Bread was best for use on their tables . . . for every household need.

We wanted to show the world that here, at last, was a really better bread in every respect.

Since only a scientifically perfect bread makes perfect toast . . . there is one sure way to prove bread quality—test it by toasting.

Hence, recently in many leading American cities our household bureau held toast demonstrations.

Public demonstrations were held . . . in department stores, in public service buildings and at food shows. They revealed clearly how much better slo-baked bread is.

In over 150 cities . . . including San Francisco, Chicago, New York, Kansas City, Washington and Cleveland . . . Wonder Bread proved the perfect all-round bread!

JUST ASK YOUR GROCER for slo-baked Wonder Bread. He gets it fresh twice each day.

The Toast Test

In the actual demonstration an automatic toaster was started . . . allowed to heat to bright redness. Then slice after slice of slo-baked Wonder Bread was inserted . . . generously thick slices . . . wafer-thin slices. Slices suited for dainty tea parties . . . for a hungry man's meal.

In every instance the demonstration revealed Wonder Bread as a rich, even golden brown over the entire surface . . . no uneven toasting . . . no underdone slices . . . no burned edges or blackened spots—every piece was that delicious golden brown most families like.

Housewives who were present tasted the toast. They were delighted at its superiority over toast from ordinary bread. They remarked how delicious the taste . . . how even the toasting.

Women went home. Made this identical test themselves. Had the identical results!

Toast made from the bread they had been using suffered in comparison.

No other bread, they said, would find a place in their toasters—or their bread-boxes. Here, at last, was the bread they sought.

Why Is This So?

Why does the fact that Wonder Bread makes better toast prove that it is a finer bread for all purposes?

Because only a scientifically perfect bread can make toast that's an even golden brown over the entire surface.

Slo-baked Wonder Bread is such a bread.

Every year we pay $2,000,000 extra for the super-quality ingredients required by the Wonder Bread recipe. We use a special flour made only from the most nutritious portion of the wheat . . . the very heart of the wheat berry. Our recipe calls also for double the usual quantity of milk, every drop of which is pasteurized.

Every Loaf Slo-Baked

Then all the natural flavors and nourishing qualities of these ingredients are sealed in by a special method of baking—Wonder Bread is slo-baked.

This means that every loaf is thoroughly baked. Each cell is baked to perfection, and thus Wonder Bread is remarkably easy to digest.

Won't you try a loaf today? Wonder Bread is delivered fresh twice daily to grocers in your neighborhood.

Yo Ho! Yo Ho! Yo Ho! for the famous Happy Wonder Bakers and their orchestra conducted by Frank Black.

Tune in on the entertaining Wonder Bread period every Tuesday evening at 8:30 over KSD and associated N. B. C. stations.

PLANNING MENUS FOR THE FAMILY MEALS

Keeping Track of Market Supplies Helps in Economical Home Meals.

One way to develop a good amount of interest in meal planning is to make use of this daily newspaper in keeping track of the market supplies that are received for the local market.

By watching these reports housewives can see what foods are cheapest and best at the time—and usually foods are at their best and cheapest at the same time. Whether they follow a definite food budget or whether they simply plan to shop as economically as possible, a study of market reports will prove a help and will certainly increase their knowledge of food supplies.

Just now it will be noted that there is an increasing amount of fresh vegetables being shipped; that eggs are lessenning in price because of the increased supply; that the winter fruits which were used so abundantly are becoming scarcer, and consequently, higher in price, while the spring fruits are increasing in quantity and improving in quality.

This week the meal plan calls for a planked steak with vegetables for Sunday dinner, just for the sake of variety and interest. If there is no plank to use, the steak may be broiled in the usual manner and then arranged on a large platter with a garnish of the vegetables and potato border, the same as used with the plank. Or one of the large platters made of oven glass may be used instead of the plank, as this can be put in the oven in the same manner.

Such a dish will be sure to please the family. It has a great advantage, from the housekeeping point of view, in that the meat and vegetables are all served together from the one dish.

Serve with a simple salad of mixed spring greens such as garden lettuce, watercress and escarole mixed with a well seasoned French dressing. If a large salad bowl is handy the crisp greens may be placed in it and the salad mixed at the table, so much the better. Rub the inside of the bowl with a cut piece of garlic or sprinkle a tablespoon of minced chives over the salad greens.

Chives belong to the onion family, and grow in a clump that looks very much like a bunch of grass. Buy the whole clump, which is always planted in dirt, and by watering it keep it growing for several weeks, cutting off what is needed from time to time.

Chocolate ice cream served for Sunday may be either made at home or one of the excellent commercial brands used. In either case the mint sauce is an excellent addition and a pleasing combination in flavor.

VALUE OF CLEAR HOT SOUP

Introducing a Meal It Is an Aid to Digestion.

The habit of serving a clear hot soup at the beginning of a meal has real dietetic background, for it aids digestion by stimulating the flow of the digestive juices and therefore helps in the digestion of the other foods served at the meal.

Bouillon, consomme or any well flavored soup made meat stock contains the extractives of the meat used in the making and though it has little nutritive value, it has the power of stimulating appetite.

Thick soups containing a large amount of vegetables, or chowders or cream soups made with milk have more nutritive value, and therefore, satisfy the appetite more than they stimulate it.

"KIPLINGS" ARE SMALL CAKES

English Housewives Are Fond of Making These Sweets.

These small sweet cakes are named in honor of the English poet Kipling.

To make them take one and two-thirds cups butter, three-fourths cup sugar, one quart flour, one teaspoon vanilla and three-fourths cup almonds.

Cream butter and sugar. Blanch almonds and cut up or strip, and add to butter and sugar—then vanilla—and flour.

Take a piece of dough size of an English walnut—(large one) roll and shape like a new moon. Sometimes you can curve and shape it better on cooky tin. Bake slowly for about 30 minutes. Roll in powdered sugar immediately after baking.

TASTY LUNCHEON DISH

Expert Housewife Can Prepare It in a Few Moments.

For this ideal luncheon dish use three-fourths cup raw rice, one cup finely diced American cheese, one can tomato soup and one tablespoon butter.

Wash rice thoroughly and put in three quarts boiling water to which one teaspoon salt has been added. Boil rapidly until the rice is cooked (about 20 minutes).

Drain and rinse with water to separate kernels. Arrange rice and cheese in alternate layers in a buttered casserole. Pour the soup (undiluted) over each layer. Put the butter cut in bits over the top.

Bake in moderate oven until hot and nicely browned—about 30 minutes.

An Economical Hint.

Two kinds of left over fruits may be baked in one pie shell. Fill half the shell with one kind of fruit and fill the remaining half with the other fruit.

DRESSING FOR FRUIT SALADS

Utilize the Liquids Extracted From the Fruits.

When serving dressings for fruit salads try making them with some of the fruit juice and always include a small amount of lemon, mixing these with some salad oil and sweetening, if desired, with honey.

For instance, a grapefruit salad may have a dressing made with a combination of grapefruit, orange and lemon juice, honey and about one-third as much oil as fruit juice.

This is a reversion of the usual rule, but is quite satisfactory.

Chuck Beef Pot Roast.

The chuck pot roast is cooked in a Dutch oven. Wipe the meat with a damp cloth, then season, allowing ¾ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper to each pound of meat. Dredge lightly with flour. Melt drippings in the bottom of the pan, brown the meat well on all sides, may be baked in one pie shell. Fill half the shell with one kind of fruit and fill the remaining half with the other fruit.

Melt drippings in the bottom of the pan, brown the meat well on all sides, add an onion, cut into quarters, also one cup of tomatoes, cover closely and place in the oven and bake about three hours in a slow oven.

Tasty Spring Salad.

A combination salad is as it sounds, a combination of vegetables, served fresh from the refrigerator. Combine tomatoes, peeled and cubed, with sliced cucumbers, small radishes, green onions, chopped celery and tender green beans or white wax beans, the last-named cooked in salt water and then chilled. Combine these ingredients by tossing together lightly in a mixing bowl. Add mayonnaise or salad dressing; then serve on crisp lettuce.

Eggs in Potato Nests.

Add one tablespoon minced parsley and pimento to mashed potato. Make nest of potatoes and drop in an egg. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake in moderate oven about 20 minutes.

SAVORY SALMON SHORTCAKES

Most Appropriate for the Family Luncheon Table.

One-half can salmon, one hard-cooked egg, one tablespoon capers, one and one-half tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper and one cup milk.

Make white sauce by blending butter, flour and seasonings until smooth, adding milk gradually and cooking in double boiler 15 to 20 minutes. Add finely chopped egg and capers and just before serving add salmon, coarsely flaked.

Split biscuits, spread lightly with butter; pour mixture over bottom half, cover with top half and pour another spoonful on top. Serve immediately.

Something to Remember.

Yolks of eggs may be kept fresh by putting them in a basin with enough cold water to cover, covering the basin and putting it in the refrigerator.

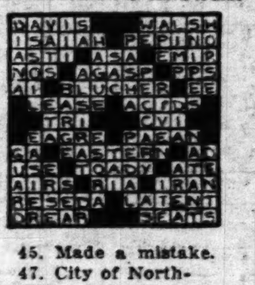
YESTERDAY'S ANSWER



$110 AVERAGE COST OF THE NEW BABY

This Includes the Doctor, Nurse and Hospital Care, Together With Layette.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO. — Expenses incident to the arrival of a baby can be covered by an outlay of $110, including layette, care of mother before birth, doctor's services, hospital and other miscellaneous items, according to the American Research Foundation.

A recent survey of 540 newly-born babies in a community of 300,000 people, says a bulletin of the foundation, indicate that the expenditures for the average baby work out as follows: Hospital care, $26; doctor's services, $47; nursing, $8; baby's clothes, $23; medicines, $1, and miscellaneous expenses, $5.

"Only 42 per cent of the cost of the average birth was devoted to payment of doctors says the bulletin. "The doctor is indispensable in bringing the baby into the world. He is indispensable in keeping the infant healthy later on. The mother who makes a practice of consulting a reputable physician regularly on the baby's diet and care will keep the family illness budget at a minimum and insure her baby sturdy health, for the doctor, by training and experience, is best equipped to direct the health program.

"The survey disclosed that babies cost their parents all the way from $692 to nothing at all, depending on the financial condition and the elaborateness with which they prepared for the little stranger's arrival. Babies of parents in comfortable circumstances cost $270, those born to the poor averaged $64, and those whose parents were dependent on health or social agencies cost only $27. But the average for all amounts to $110."

Interesting Statistics.

Seven heads of lettuce a person were eaten last year in the United States. Canada is also consuming a large part of the national production.

Dessert for Children.

Dates stewed in a little water until tender and pressed through a sieve, make a tasty, wholesome dessert which contributes iron to the diet.

An Economical Idea.

Do not throw away mushroom stems. Boil them, drain off the liquid in which they are cooked and add it to cream of mushroom soup.

Kidney Bean Salad.

Mix one-half cup celery diced with one-fourth cup of India relish and one cup baked kidney beans. Chill. Mix well with mayonnaise and serve.

Indian Pudding.

This old-fashioned dish is deserving of more popularity. Scald one quart milk and stir in slowly three-fourths cup cornmeal, one teaspoon salt, one-half cup molasses and three tablespoons butter. Stir over a slow fire for 10 minutes, then pour into a buttered baking dish. Pour one and one-half cups milk over the top; do not stir it in. Bake in a slow oven for one hour. Serve warm with milk or syrup.

Accompaniment for Fish.

In making a balanced ration, a starchy food should be served with fish—potatoes, rice, spaghetti or any other of the paste family. The last-named goes especially well with fish that is served with tomato sauce. Hard-boiled eggs go well with various types of fish.

Baked Onions.

Peel small silver skinned onions and cook in boiling water 15 minutes. Drain, put in a buttered baking dish, add one tablespoon melted butter, one cup hot water and one-fourth teaspoon salt and bake until soft (about 45 minutes), basting with water in pan.

Keep Refrigerator Clean.

No matter whether it is winter or summer, the refrigerator should be kept clean as long as it is used for food. Wash it out at least once a week with soap and water, clean out the drain pipe, and allow the food chambers to be aired and dried.

Canned Cherry Salad.

Wash clean, drain and shred lettuce, marinate with French dressing. Arrange on plates in nest-like shapes, fill centers with cherries, spinke with raisins and top with winely chopped minted cherries.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Raw sugar was unchanged with sales confirmed of about 100,000 bags of Cuban, subject to permission to ship by the Cuban committee at 3.39 duty paid, for April shipment.

Raw futures opened unchanged to 3 points higher on covering and buying by commission houses, particularly of the later crop deliveries. Offerings were light and the steadiness of the spot market seemed to restrict selling and prices showed further gains in the late forenoon with the list at midday 2 to 4 points net higher.

The volume of business was not very large and operators as a rule were inclined to hold off and await developments at the meeting of the Cuban Export Corporation on Monday next.

In refined withdrawals were of seasonable proportions, but as the trade are still covered for several weeks to come no new business was reported. Prices were listed at 4.90 by refiners with second hands available at 4.75.

Sugar futures closed firm; approximated sales, 20,250 tons; May, $1.65; July, $1.67; September, $1.74; December, $1.83; January, $1.84; March, $1.89.

BOND TRADE DULL ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Narrow price movements in investment issues, as well as in many of the convertible and stock privilege obligations, characterized today's dull bond market.

International Telephone 4½s, exchangeable for shares, rose more than 4 points to a new 1930 high at 127¼ and held a substantial part of the advance. American Telephone 4½s, dipping 3 points below the previous close, evened the decline in the later trading. Amusements were dull and met some profit taking. Shubert Theaters 6s dropping 3 points and Loew's 6s, with warrants, one. General Theaters 6s lost 4.

There was considerable activity in a rather limited group of rails, industrials and utilities. Santa Fe general 4s, Utah Light & Traction 5s, Goodyear Tire 5s, Pennsylvania 4½s of 1970 and Youngstown Sheet & Tube 5s held firm, while Nickel Plate "A" 5½s, Sinclair Crude Oil 5½s, Texas & Pacific (St. Louis division) 5s, Southern Railway 5s, and Rio Grande Western 4s rose ½ to about a point. Texas & Pacific "C" 5s and St. Louis & San Francisco 4½s yere irregularly lower. Wheeling Steel 5½s met enough inquiry to lift the price half a point.

Foreign bonds were quiet and generally firm. Of the United States Governments only the first Liberties were active, moving in moderate volume on a narrow price swing. The group was irregularly lower on a firming of short term interest rates.

COTTON CLOSES LOWER ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—A somewhat less active demand for near months, combined with relatively easy Liverpool cables, rather unfavorable trade advances from Manchester, and a favorable interpretation of the weather news from the South, was reflected by moderate declines in cotton here today. Spurts of covering and some trade buying caused more or less irregularity, but bulges were not maintained and the mid-afternoon market was within four or five points of the lowest at net declines of 7 to 12 points.

Futures closed barely steady, 7 to 17 points lower: May, 16.37c; July, 16.41@42c; October, 15.54@56c; December, 15.66c; January, 15.73c; new contracts, October, 15.29@30c; December, 15.42c; January, 15.47c; March, 15.70c. Spot steady; middling, 16.55c.

Cotton opened steady, off 4 to 9 points under comparatively small offerings, which were probably promoted by the relatively easy cables and a favorable view of the early weather news.

May sold off to 16.34c and the new October contract to 16.35c, or about 10 points under yesterday's close, but there was some spot-house buying of near months and the market recovered partially before the session had advanced far.

Liverpool cable said liquidation there had been absorbed by trade calling at the decline.

Domestic mill consumption for March is estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange at 533,000 bales, compared with 495,000 in February and 632,000 in March last year.

The rally from the early decline carried the market up to 16.45c for May and 15.42c for the new October contract with old crop months selling about 1 to 6 points net higher, while the new crop failed to fully recover its early loss. This bulge met a little more selling, however, and prices sagged off again later in the morning when sentiment may have been influenced by the rather heavy closing tone of Liverpool.

At midday the market was quiet and about 3 to 10 points net lower.

HEAT CLOSES NERVOUS AND LOWER AT CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Prospects of cooler, showery conditions in drought districts [illegible] wheat values down today in the [illegible] dealings here, although general rain [illegible] not expected. Persistent selling out [illegible] May wheat holdings was also a bearish influence, together with slackness of export demand today for wheat from North America. Comprehensive reports received indicated that continuance of hot dry [illegible] weather would bring material increase of complaints of crop damage.

Wheat closed nervous, ¼@1⅝c a bu [illegible] than yesterday's finish. Corn closed [illegible] down, oats unchanged to ¼c off and provisions at a shade to 5c advance.

Wheat advanced early after downturns [illegible] largely to scattered rains in Western [illegible] and Western Kansas and to [illegible] in Liverpool quotations.

However, active buying developed quickly and the market rose rapidly. Opening [illegible] off, Chicago wheat afterward [illegible] well above yesterday's finish for [illegible] deliveries but May. Corn, oats and provisions were easy, with corn starting [illegible] down, but recovering slightly.

Apparent inadequacy of moisture relief for drouth territory formed the basis for buying of wheat and focused attention on [illegible] of damage to wheat as a result of abnormal heat, high winds and dust [illegible].

Considerable stress by friends of higher [illegible] for wheat also was put on a summary which said Montana, the Dakotas and Minnesota spring wheat acreage would [illegible] decreased 10 to 15 per cent.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS

Orders, factory productions and other business items, compiled daily by Standard Statistics Co., Inc., New York.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Wholesale commodity prices registered another increase during the week of April 8. On that date the annalist wholesale commodity price index stood at 135.0, an advance of 0.8 points from the previous week and 1.2 per cent above the low of March 18. It is now 12.7 points below a year ago. Of the eight groups comprising the index farm products, food products and fuels advanced, building materials and chemicals remained unchanged while textiles, metals and miscellaneous declined. The textile index dropped to a new low because of lower prices for raw silk, worsted yarn and cotton goods. Lower prices for lead and tin lowered the metal index and a decline in rubber prices caused the drop in miscellaneous.

Railroads—Total freight car loadings for the five weeks ended March 29 declined 401,312 cars, or 8.3 per cent from the corresponding weeks of 1929. This percentage change will indicate the approximate extent by which railroad gross revenues in March may be expected to vary from the same month a year ago. Bangor & Aroostook and Maine Central were the only roads in New England to report traffic gains over the same period of last year. Of the Eastern trunk lines, Pennsylvania showed the smallest traffic reduction, 2.3 per cent; while Erie reported the largest, 14.1 per cent.

Railroad Equipment—Order for 125 box cars placed with Bettendorf Co., by Green Bay & Western R. R. Order for 100 ballast cars placed with General American Tank Car by Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. R.

IRREGULARLY HIGHER CLOSE ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The Curb market gave a good account of itself today in the fact of heavy week-end profit taking, and the adverse psychological effects of the news of the closing of the Tokio stock exchange. The market turned sharply upward at the opening, sold off substantially during the middle of the day, and rallied here and there in the last hour. Closing quotations were irregularly higher.

The standard power and light issues, which have been rather sluggish for some time, and the American Light and Traction shares, were buoyant features in the industrial group, which again dominated trading. American Light old shares rose 21½ points to a new top and closed at the day's best. The new shares sold up 5 points, and closed up 4. The Standard new shares sold up 6 points to a new top. American Superpower and United Light "A" rose about 2 points to new high ground, then receded slightly. Electric Bond and Share was a soft spot, closing off more than a point.

DISSOLVES INJUNCTION IN STEEL MERGER FIGHT

Youngstown Sheet & Tube Attorneys Declare Combine Is Accomplished.

By the Associated Press.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 11.—Judge C. S. Turnbaugh today dissolved the temporary injunction restraining the recording of disputed votes in the merger of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Petition for injunction was filed by Myron C. Wick Jr., of Youngstown, chairman of the opposition proxy committee, who asked that approximately 91,000 shares of sheet and tube stock be restrained from being recorded in the merger vote. Wick also asked equitable relief in the merger as a holder of 720 shares of sheet and tube stock.

The judge ruled the Sheet & Tube attorneys must answer the charges set up in the Wick petition on or before May 10.

Attorneys for Sheet & Tube said that insofar as they were concerned "the merger is accomplished," and that the action in that direction would be recorded as soon as the stockholders' vote was announced this afternoon.

A series of litigation is in prospect which attorneys for both sides expect ultimately to reach the United States Supreme Court and possibly keep the final outcome in doubt until Sept. 1, the date on which the contract calls for consummation of the merger and transfer of Sheet and Tube's property to Bethlehem. Bethlehem will not complete the deal until the litigation is ended, Newton D. Baker, counsel for the pro-merger committee, said.

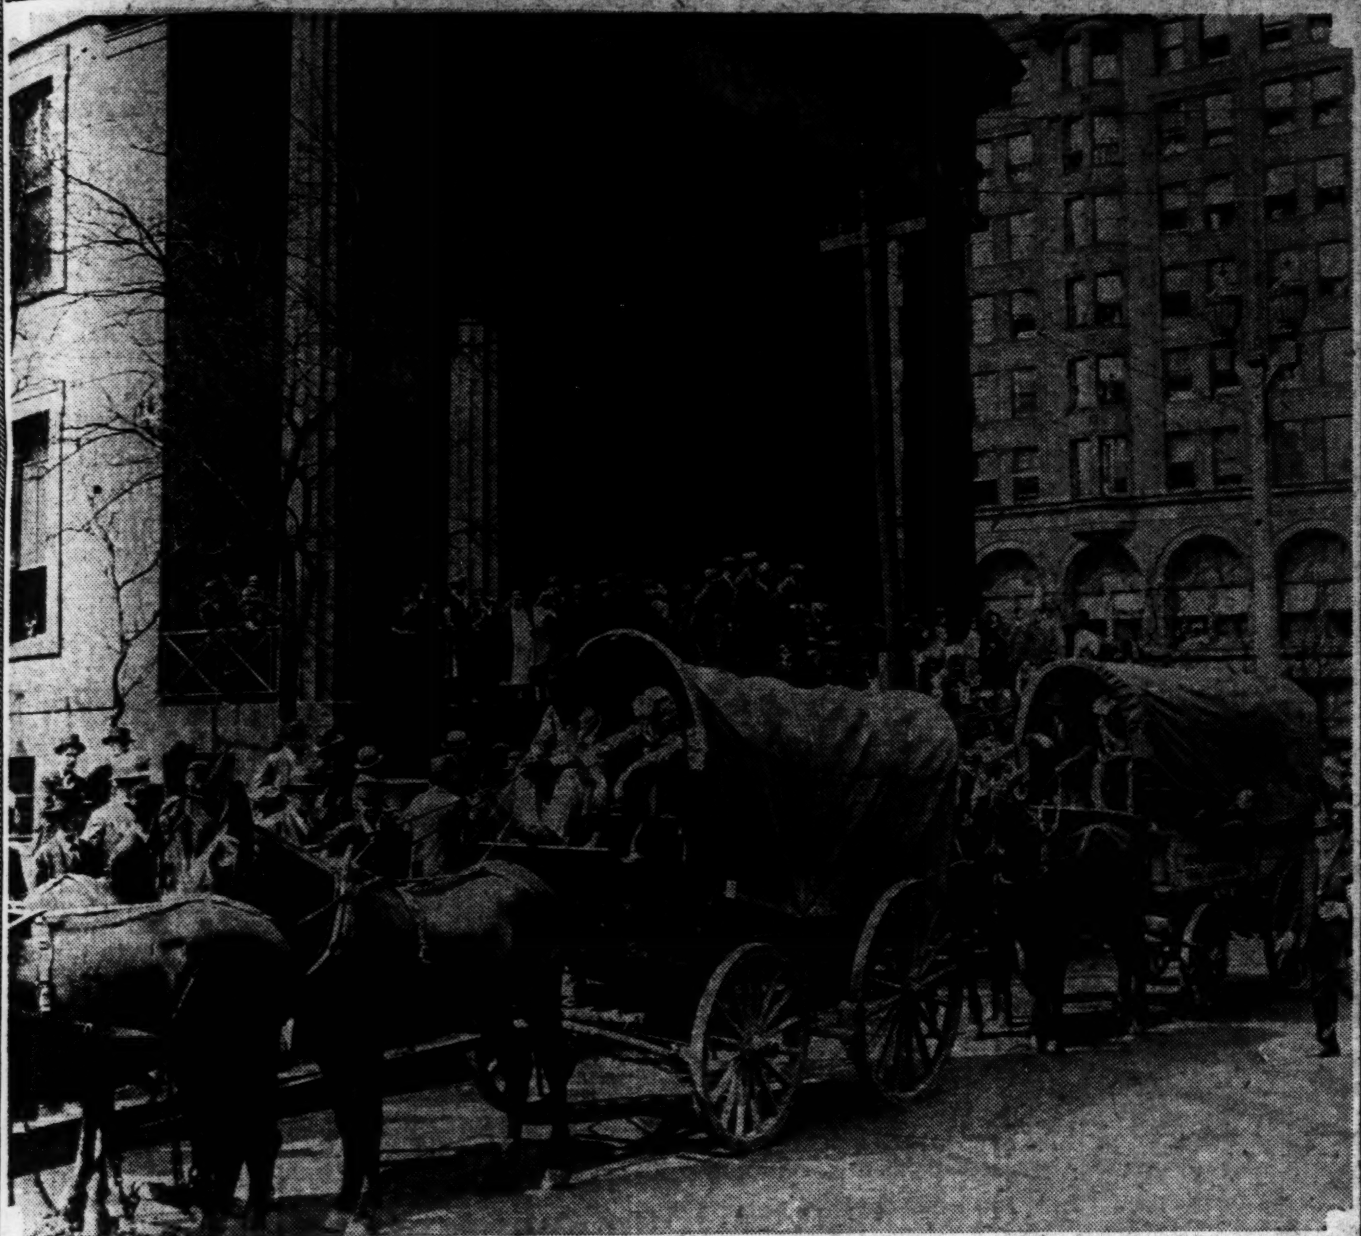
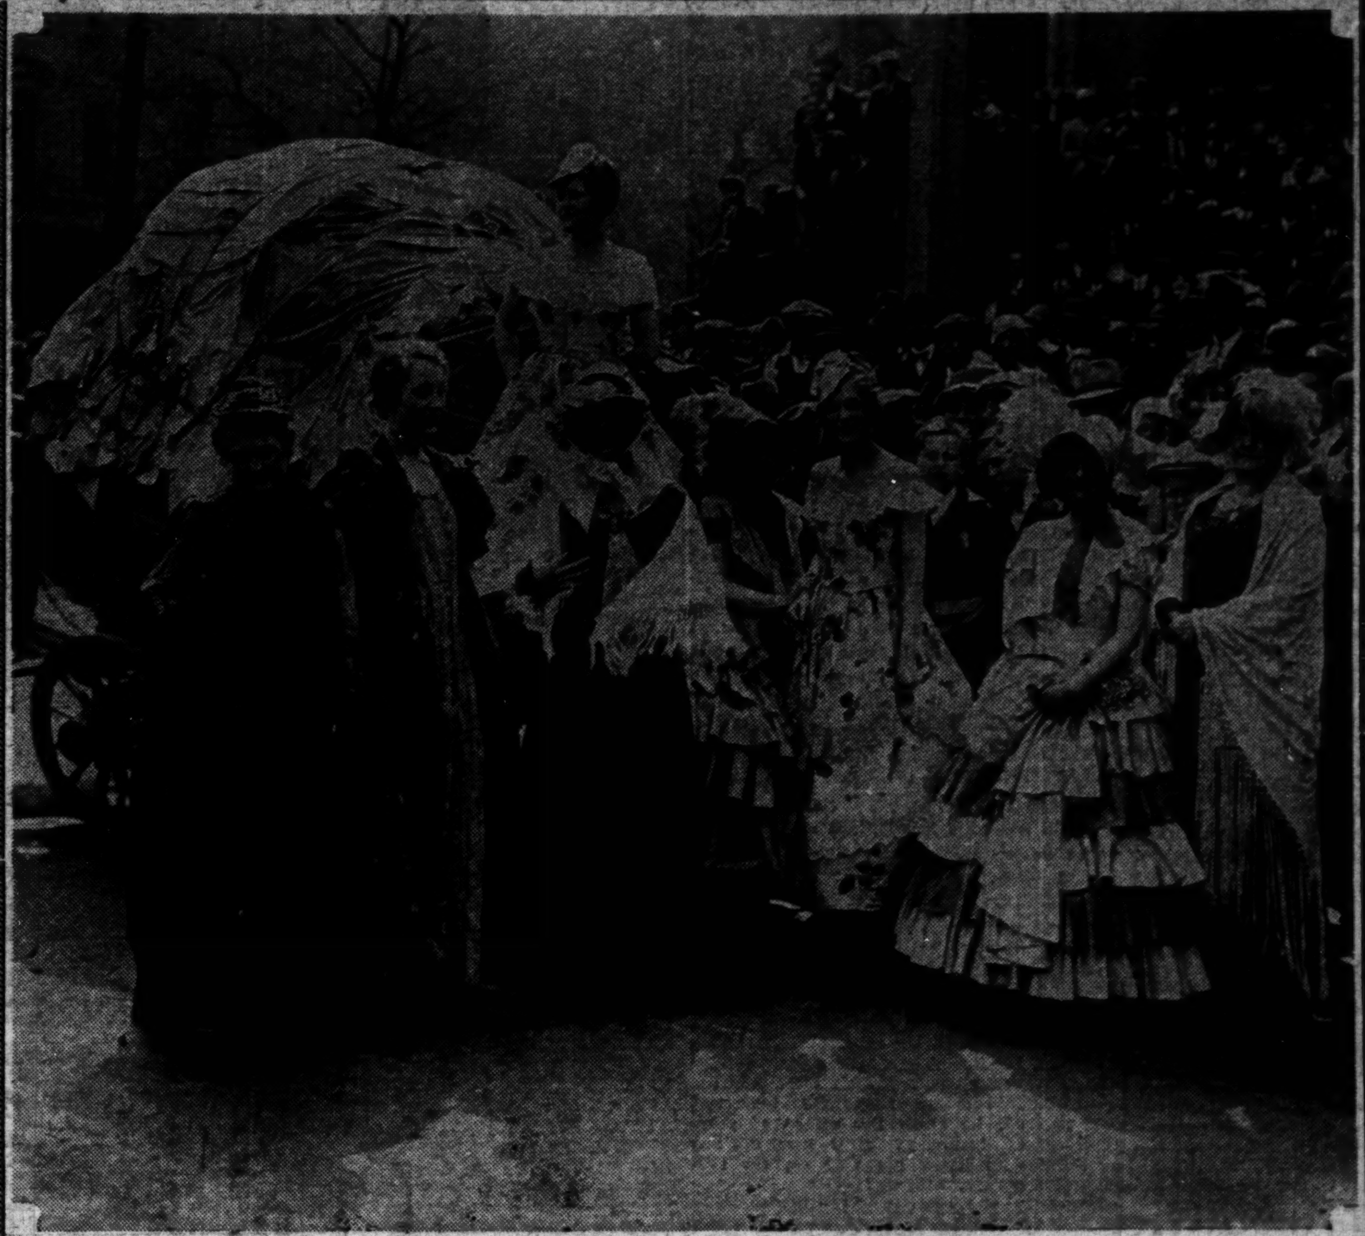
AGAIN THE COVERED WAGON WENDS ITS WAY THROUGH ST. LOUIS





Two photographs taken around the old Courthouse in Fourth street just before the start of the pageant depicting the pioneers who blazed the Oregon Trail exactly 100 years ago yesterday. Men in homespun and coon skin caps, their wives and daughters, Indians, mule-drawn wagons with canvas tops—all were faithfully portrayed in the procession which moved westward to Kingshighway Thursday afternoon.

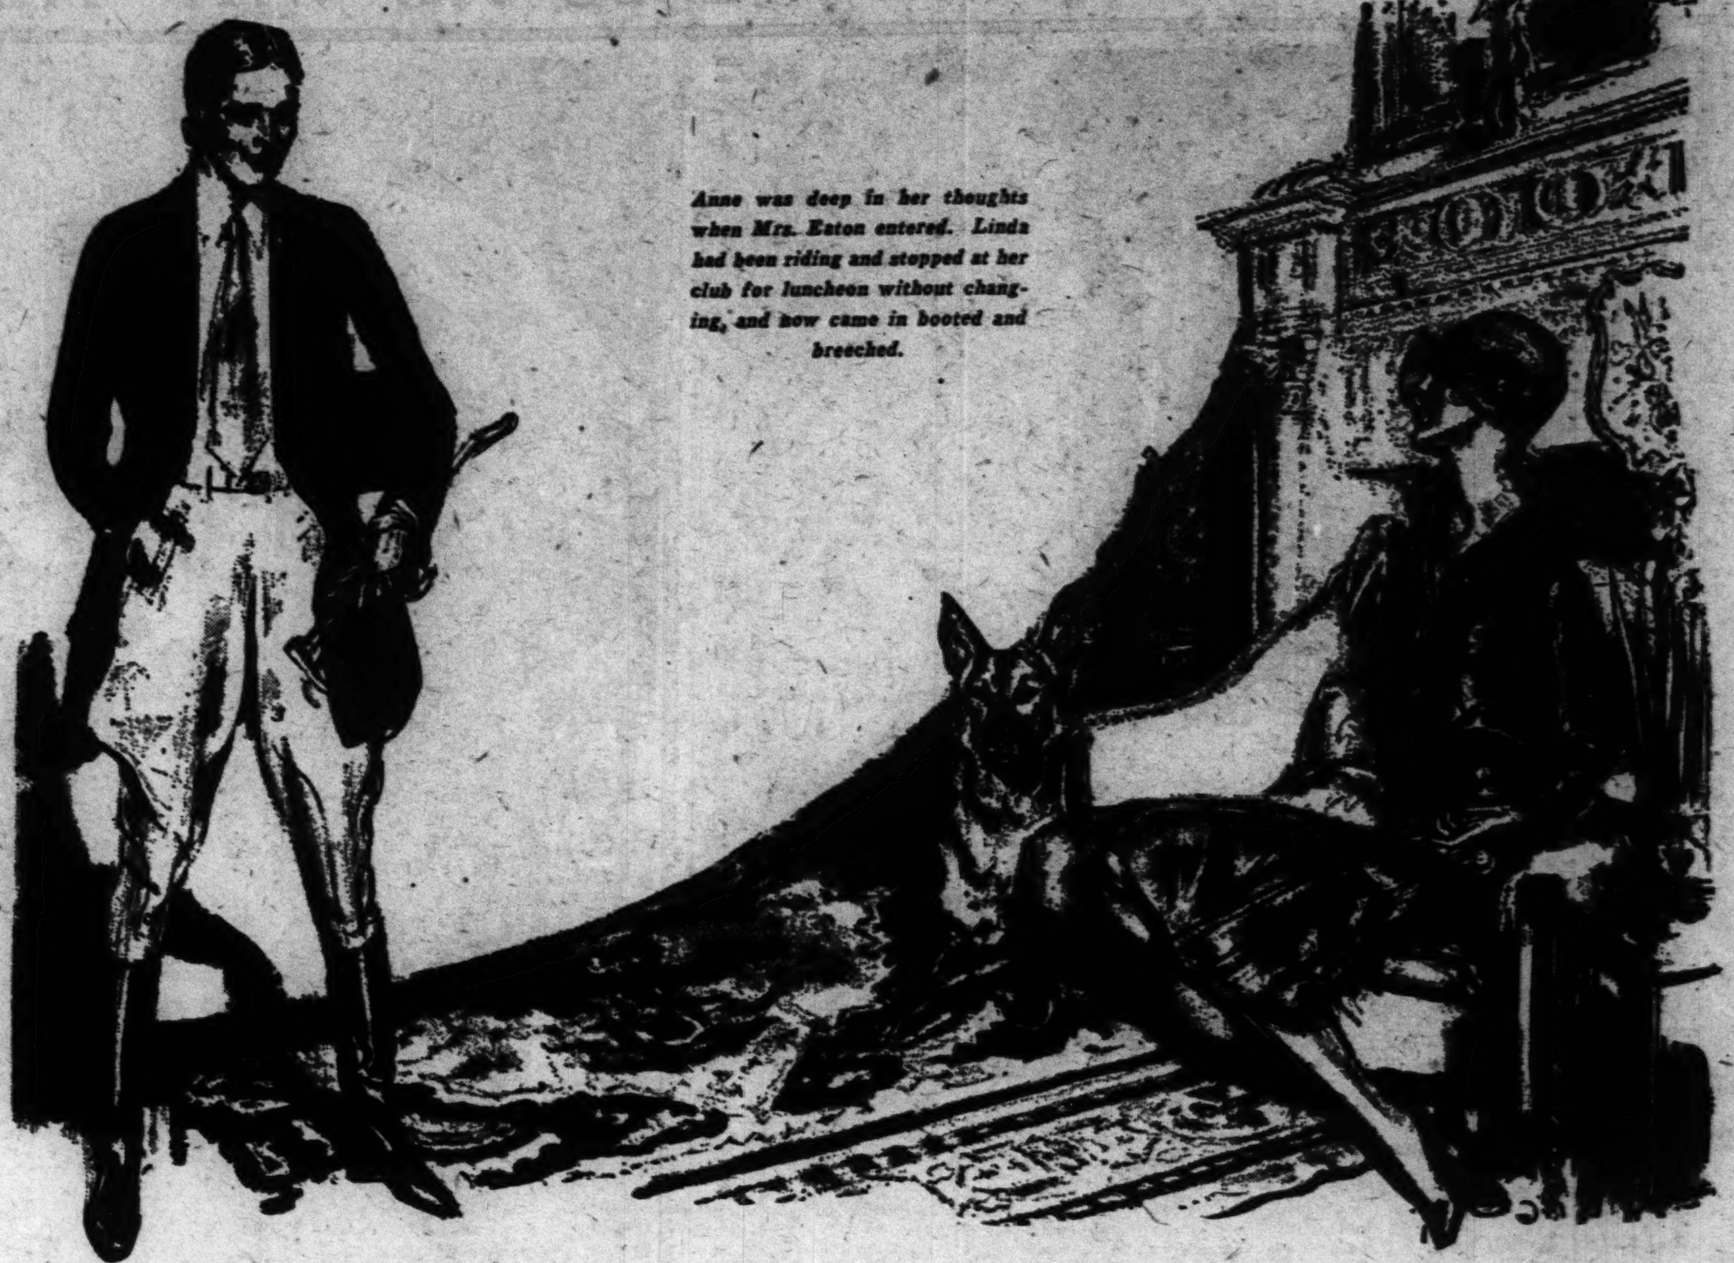
THE OFFICE WIFE

By Faith Baldwin

A Romance of Some Folks Who Might Be in Your Own Office—Or Your Neighbor's

(Copyright, 1930.)



Anne was deep in her thoughts when Mrs. Eaton entered. Linda had been riding and stopped at her club for luncheon without changing, and now came in booted and breeched.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

If people ever wondered why the employes of the Eaton Advertising Agency, nine stories above Park avenue, were so fiercely loyal to their chief, they would have been answered if they could have heard him laugh. Occasionally women said that Lawrence Eaton was the most attractive man of their acquaintance. His friend Jameson, hearing that magnetic laughter, did not doubt it.

"Well, what's the joke?" he asked, grinning in sympathy.

*"It's the dickens the way a man gets to depend on his secretary, isn't it?" said Eaton. "Miss Andrews has been—splendid—but it looks as if she had outlived her usefulness here * * * Nerves."*

So Eaton decided to give Janet Andrews a leave of absence.

And when she left at the end of a terrible week, it was with the definite knowledge of being supplanted by bright-haired, vital, alive young Anne Murdock.

Anne had been three years at the Eaton Agency when her opportunity came. To work with a man of Lawrence Eaton's breadth and power was something to dream of, for Anne had ambitions beyond a suburban home with Ted O'Hara, who was on her own rung of the ladder. What Anne had seen of marriage had not endeared it to her. Instinctively she understood her sister Kathleen's ambition to go into the chorus of "The Sky Girl."

*If she felt a twinge of misgiving about Kathleen, it was as faint as the ironic hoot of laughter in the back of her brain when she thought of Janet Andrews. Of course, Anne told herself, she admired Janet's former employer, she admired him greatly, but that was all * * * Had Janet once reasoned in the same manner—"but that was all"?*

*But Anne did not know that Lawrence Eaton, listening half consciously to the rapid staccato to which business is tuned, sighed a little and smiled a little and wondered why he was suddenly so restless and yet so unwontedly content * * **

CHAPTER FIVE.

LAWRENCE EATON'S New York home was the duplex penthouse on the roof of an upper Fifth avenue apartment building overlooking the park and blue waters of the reservoir. Eaton, who had been brought up in an old brick house at the lower end of the avenue, and whose early married life had been lived in the same district in one of the Brides' Row houses, had yet to accustom himself to an apartment.

But Linda liked their home, and, after all, it was Linda who really lived in it. He slept there, he entertained there, but he did not live there in the intimate sense in which Linda did.

Shortly before Christmas Dick Jameson dined with the Eatons. Another woman was present, Edith Lucien, an attractive widow, one of Linda's close friends. After dinner the four played bridge.

Linda Eaton was at her best as hostess. She had a genius for making people comfortable, and was by nature amiable and gay-hearted. And she was handsome.

At the time of her marriage to Eaton, she had been a rawboned girl, with masses of blue-black hair and brown eyes. Born Linda Schuyler, she was the fourth daughter of an impoverished family.

Her father had been a bookish gentleman who failed to keep his visionary eyes upon investments and the property rights of Dutch and American ancestors.

Her mother, left a widow in Linda's childhood, had been a brisk, worried woman, eternally contemplating with affection and exasperation the mild inefficiency of her husband. She had saved and sacrificed and battled to educate her girls in good private schools, to clothe them becomingly, to take them to Europe for a final polish, to permit them to follow their particular interests—in Linda's case, golf and tennis, horses and dogs—and eventually to marry them to money.

Lawrence Eaton had fallen in love with Linda when he entered his uncle's advertising agency, after some newspaper experience and a period of salesmanship. The other girls were safely and happily married, and Mrs. Schuyler—seeing the drive in Eaton, the urge forward which would make him a money-maker in his own right, though he had inherited a small fortune from his father, and also counting on the fact that Eaton would be his uncle's heir—encouraged the match.

Linda, at 22 had been as much in love with young Eaton as her nature permitted—a breezy, affectionate sort of love which had reached the clean heights of a wholesome and normal passion. Now, at 32, she liked her husband enormously, admired him, was proud of him and went her way, amiable and serene.

Linda was much handsomer than she had been in her girlhood. She carried herself magnificently and was beautifully gowned. She knew how to spend money—well; she was neither parsimonious nor extravagant.

The Eatons had an established place in the more conservative walks of Manhattan society, and Lawrence Eaton was fond of Linda and proud of her.

AT 27 he had been very much in love with her. Her out-of-door wholesomeness, her clarity of outlook, her lack of frets and fevers, held a tremendous appeal for him. So, loving her, he had married her. This he had never regretted, although he was not aware that his affection for her was as settled and unstimulating as if they had been 40 years married.

There was no child. Not long after her marriage Linda had been thrown in the hunting field, and for a long period of invalidism had been forced to possess her soul in patience. She had recovered completely, but Eaton's early inarticulate dreams of husky, splendid sons and pretty wheedling daughters had, perforce, to vanish forever.

So, they were fond of each other now, but they had outgrown each other. They had little in common; their interests lay apart. And that first sunny passion no longer existed.

Each was too busy to give much time to heart-searching. Yet each had reached a perilous period in development. The man was nearing 40; the woman had passed 30. The rose-blossom flush of youth was gone; they stood on the threshold of their prime—their second blooming.

Now and again Eaton, hearing of some amazing volteface of a contemporary—a violent secret love affair that had been unearthed given all the pitiless sardonic publicity of the times; a headlined divorce; a complete betrayal and repudiation of old vows—heading the whispers, "Harrington! Who could believe it of him, with a wife and children!" beneath his astonishment and contempt would feel a keen pang of—could it be envy?

He never inquired into the nature of these inexplicable experiences. Yet involuntarily he would wonder what it might be like to be caught up by a devastating force which swept everything before it; which knew no law save the fulfillment of its lawlessness; which scorched and tormented, harrowed and hunted, and which contained its own punishment—and its own reward.

IF HE had ever heard strange gods—or, more accurately, goddesses—calling, he had not followed their alluring voices—far. He had not been guiltless of minor, passing attractions and relaxations. But technically, at least, Eaton had kept to the letter of his public vow to Linda.

Sometimes he wondered at himself; at his quick, if temporary, response to the turn of a head, the fall of an eyelash, the murmur of a phrase; wondered whether he would have been rendered immune from—well, from the visualizing of colorful and fragrant gardens lying beyond the high road and over the high walls of his own particular matrimonial estate; if that first passionate devotion to his wife had held through the years, with its initial mystery and glamour.

And he extended his wonder to all men. Did they, too, look over the walls: those, that is, who still refrained from jumping them entirely? It was not, he reasoned, that he was a sensual man. It took more than the mere appeal of sex to stir him; it took mood, mystery, the vague promise, the dim warning somewhere within his consciousness that life is fleet and no man is sure of immortality.

Sometimes he wondered about Linda. How did she feel toward other men? What were her unfathomable thoughts? How well did he know her after 10 years of intimacy? How well did any man know his wife or, for that matter, himself?

And now, over the bridge table, waiting for Mrs. Lucien to return from her conversation on the telephone, Jameson asked:

"Have you decided about the club, Larry? We have things well under way now, but I didn't want to rush you. I did drop in at the office one day when you were out."

Eaton said: "I know. I'm sorry. Yes, I'll go in with you, Dick, but I can't promise to use the place much."

"How about wives?" Linda asked in her deep, lazy voice. "Am I permitted to invade these sacred premises?"

"As far as I am concerned you are not only permitted but urged and welcomed," Jameson told her gallantly.

LINDA smiled across the table at him. She liked Jameson. He was such a "good sort." And also, quite without vanity, she suspected Jameson liked her—more than a little. They'd been thrown together often in the last two years on house parties, at various resorts, at dinners—and Jameson had sometimes acted as her escort in Eaton's stead.

It would not have occurred to Linda to indulge in a cheap flirtation with any man of her acquaintance; that was not in her code. But as long as she did not exhibit her knowledge of Jameson's preference for her, she reasoned that she neither encouraged him nor imperiled herself.

"By the way," Jameson told his host, "I noticed at the office the other day that you have a new secretary."

His eyes were amused, quite without malice, and Eaton answered:

"Yes. Miss Andrews sent in her resignation some time ago. Her health——"

But Jameson's amusement was becoming a trifle too marked and Eaton was glad when Linda interrupted with a rush of words.

"Andrews gone? You didn't tell me. Poor old thing! What was wrong? She was so devoted to you, Larry!"

Now Jameson was grinning openly. He said, before Eaton could answer his wife: "The change is for the better, old man. That's a pretty little Cerberus you have slaving for you now."

"Larry, I'm amazed at you!" Linda laughed. "I thought you couldn't stand dolls around the office."

"Miss Murdock is far from a doll," Eaton answered quickly. "She's pretty, as any man with eyes in his head must admit, but she has a lot of gray matter. Things have gone on even better than they did under Miss Andrews' regime."

"Well, you won't keep this baby long," Jameson warned him. She's too darned good-looking. Some smart lad will snatch her away from you. Wonder it hasn't happened before this!"

"Lord, I hope not!" exclaimed Eaton, and was conscious of an instant inner rebellion at the thought. "She's becoming far too valuable."

Mrs. Lucien had returned in time to hear part of the conversation. "How do you feel about it, Linda—Beauty and the Business Beast and all?" she asked.

"Well," Linda replied, "such problems are mercifully hidden from me. I don't visit Larry's office. Only comic-strip wives do that, I fancy. Look here, Larry, may I borrow this paragon some day? You used to lend me the priceless Andrews occasionally, you know."

"Oh, Linda!" sighed Jameson. "I thought you were above that sort of thing."

"It's not all curiosity," she assured him. "I really need help on the Hospital Committee's business. The volunteer secretary is too dumb for utterance, and I'm swamped in lists."

"I'll ask Miss Murdock," Eaton said, "if you'll remind me in the morning. Perhaps she'll come up some Saturday afternoon, if that's all right."

HIS wife smiled her thanks, nodded and picked up the cards she had dealt some time before.

Her partner, Jameson, looked at her over his inferior hand. She was really lovely. Her heavy dark hair was knotted at the nape of her fine neck and pierced with a jeweled pin. There were diamonds in the lobes of her close-set ears, but her eyes did not suffer by that difficult comparison. The decollete of her semi-formal evening gown displayed the curve of her magnificent shoulders and breast.

Jameson sighed. She was his friend's wife and Jameson was a nice person, yet he thought gloomily: "Confound it, some men have all the luck! Larry doesn't half appreciate his." And glancing at Eaton, marking his strength and his attraction, Jameson's gloom increased.

But if Eaton did not appreciate his wife, he appreciated his secretary. And on the following morning he found himself looking at her with increased interest and some trepidation. She was—exquisite. Jameson was right, devil take it Some man would probably come along and marry her, and then where would he be?

Men, he pondered further, choose their wives through a combination of emotional motivation, propinquity and chance, but their secretaries are selected with a knowledge of certain definite needs—needs which do not alter with the years.

As he had said, Anne was becoming invaluable to him. He marveled how well and how swiftly she had fitted in; how easily she had taken Miss Andrews' place. Little by little, he had turned over to her the duties which Miss Andrews had grown into during her long years of service. Anne now attended to his personal bills, kept track of his club dues and his life-insurance premiums. She was in communication with his brokers; she kept a separate engagement pad for his social activities and never failed to remind him of them.

Yes, she was invaluable. There were other things with which, gradually, he might trust her. But if, as Jameson had said, he could be assured that she would leave him, what was the use?

The following morning he asked her: "Are you going to be busy Saturday afternoon, Miss Murdock?"

"No, Mr. Eaton."

As a matter of fact she had a matinee engagement with Betty Heward, but Betty would understand.

"It's not the office," he told her. "I shan't need you, but," he went on as Anne waited, aware of disappointment, "Mrs. Eaton is in a jam with one of her charity affairs. She asked me last night if she might borrow you. Miss Andrews helped her out occasionally in such matters."

"I'll be glad to," said Anne.

She afterward confessed to herself that she was curious. She welcomed the opportunity to meet Linda Eaton.

ON SATURDAY, Anne and her note book were called for at the office by Linda's car and chauffeur, and delivered at the apartment.

Anne waited in the library for some time before her employer's wife came in. She looked about her gravely; it was a lovely room, restful, hospitable.

Anne's heart ached. Here were the things she loved, beautiful material things, valuable to her not for the luxury, the expenditure they represented, but for the satisfaction they afforded her senses and spirit. These were the things she longed for, but would never attain.

Yet why shouldn't she attain them in a comparative measure? If she could ever have a little place of her own somewhere, which would hold the things she would save up for. . . .

Her brows drew together. Lately there had been a loud explosion in the brick house outside of town. For Kathleen, now a decorative member of the "Sky Girl" company had left home. She had explained patiently that it was too hard for her to travel back and forth for matinees and evening performances. So she had gone to live with three other girls in the company, sharing a flat over a flower shop in the East Forties.

Mr. Murdock had raged; Mrs. Murdock had commanded, and then warned with rare, distressing tears, but Kathleen had been firm.

"Anne, make them see. I wouldn't get home till all hours. It's so much easier this way and not expensive, with the four of us. And Lola is providing the furniture."

SO Anne, with some effort, made them see as she herself saw. For, she argued, Kathleen was sensible. She was more than sensible, Anne thought secretly. Why shouldn't Kathleen have her good times? Why shouldn't she live her own life?

The battle had raged for weeks, but Anne had seen it through. Kathleen had been forgiven, and now came out often to see her mother and turned up on Sunday, flushed with her little triumphs, full of the ultimate gossip of her new circle.

Anne had been to the apartment. She liked two of the girls—pretty, hard-working, healthy youngsters. Lola, who had "provided the furniture," and through whom Kathleen had procured the engagement, was older, more sophisticated, with that sophistication which is not surface veneer nor yet a matter of jargon and argot and youth's easy mimicry, but rather a wisdom born of personal experience—devious experience, thought Anne, judging by the girl's shallow eyes, hard as turquoises, and by the lines of her bitter mouth.

Anne was deep in her thoughts when Mrs. Eaton entered. Linda had been riding and had stopped at her club for luncheon without changing, as was sometimes her custom, and now came in booted and breeched, her derby and crop in gauntleted hand.

"I'm so sorry to have kept you waiting!" she cried, as she shook hands with the younger woman.

Anne observed how handsome she was, and magnetic. Somehow she had pictured Mrs. Eaton otherwise—more "society," harder, less cordial.

Linda said hospitably: "Do take your things off and sit down. There are books all around. I've got to change. It won't take long."

She disappeared, whistling in the boyish way she had. Anne took off her coat and her tight-fitting hat. She had worked hard all morning and her head was aching.

She sat down on the sofa near the fireplace, a book in her hands but she did not read. She looked instead into the blue and scarlet, gold and green blazing of the driftwood fire which burned there, and let the serene loveliness of the room sink into every pore of her thirsty spirit. Suddenly she found herself fitting Lawrence Eaton into this, his proper millieu, out of office hours.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

CLUB WOMEN PREPARE TO FLY

WASHINGTON'S club women may soon be flying to meetings.

The Woman's City Club has organized a special aviation section, the first woman's club in the country to include such a course in its regular program.

Thirty members, most of them mature women, are now enrolled for study, with the idea of learning to fly.

Some, including Mrs. Merritt O. Chance, president of the club, plan to buy and operate their own planes. Mrs. Chance hopes to fly from her country home in Maryland, 20 miles from Washington, to preside at club meetings.

"I have driven a car for 20 years," says Mrs. Chance, so I don't see why I cannot pilot a plane. We have ground for a landing field on our place."

Several young women lawyers, members of the club, also will enroll for the aviation course. They like to live outside the city in summers and will use the planes to take them back and forth from their offices.

Mrs. Lyle B. Steever, director of the aviation section, is a graduate of the Aviation Institute and holds a student pilot's license.

THE TRUTH ABOUT RUDOLPH VALENTINO---

By His Widow,
Natacha Rambova

"At First I Disliked Rudy Intensely; I Thought Him a Plain Nuisance"

By NATACHA RAMBOVA

(Copyright, 1930, by Natacha Rambova. All rights reserved.)

CHAPTER III.

AT first I disliked Rudy intensely. He was fresh and too much underfoot, always leaping to give me a chair, to pick up my pencil, hand me my script book; I thought him a plain nuisance. I got tired of his childish pranks and the jokes, yet I couldn't avoid him, for, as art director, I must always be on hand to make sure the scene was properly set and all details correct.

It wasn't until I saw he could act that I took any interest in him. He was the easiest person in the world to direct. The director didn't have to shout before the camera.

"Now, Rudy, let's have some grief, please!" or, "Give us a little joy; smile; no, not like a Cheshire cat; look human!"

He merely described what was happening in the scene and Rudy interpreted it.

I remember particularly one scene in "Camille," the high point of the picture. It is where Armand, grief-stricken by Camille's death, rushes to her apartment, where an auction is being held of all her private things. Here he sees and bids on a book he had given her years ago and which she kept until the last.

Before doing this scene Rudy asked if he might go away by himself for a moment; then he returned and the camera started clicking. It wasn't interrupted once. When that scene was finished tears were streaming down the face of every one of us, from director to prop boy. As for Rudy, later I found him in a chair behind the set, head buried in his arms, weeping like a child. This wasn't make-believe grief, but the real emotion.

Became Gardener's Apprentice

I often found him weeping like this for his mother, of whom he was passionately fond; or in despondent moods on days when everything had gone wrong. Being a foreigner and unknown, his path was none too easy. Everything about him that was different was held up to ridicule, from his foreign accent to his lack of sense of humor. People didn't understand his ways and made no effort to.

He was pathetically eager to be like American men—but it wasn't in him to be so. His ideal was Norman Kerry, who had proved himself a wonderful friend. It was through Norman he had got into pictures after years of futile attempts to earn a living in America any way he could, from pulling weeds in Central park to dancing in cabarets.

Rudy had landed in New York Christmas day, 1913, a lad of 18 who knew not one word of English, his head full of romantic dreams, his pocket bulging with $4000, the gift of his beloved mother. He squandered his nest egg immediately on fine clothes and lavish living—then whistled for food and shelter from a chilly bench in the park.

He had been trained to be a scientific farmer at the Royal Academy of Agriculture in Milan; and his first job was to help lay out an Italian garden on the Long Island estate of Cornelius Bliss Jr. But he was given his walking papers when he borrowed the motorcycle of a fellow workman and broke it.

Kerry Rudy's Ideal

After lean days had sobered his spirits, he became gardener's apprentice in Central Park—only to be told, when he applied for the civil service examination, that he was not an American citizen; would not be one for five years! Back to the streets and starvation! But Rudy always landed on his feet.

On the gala occasion of one elegant dinner at Maxim's in a borrowed dress suit, the head waiter recognized him as the handsome young foreigner who, months before in the palmy days of his $4000, had danced so well with the ladies. This led to a job as exhibition dancer in fashionable New York restaurants with Bonnie Glass as his partner; then a vaudeville tour with Joan Sawyer, in which they danced across the continent. In San Francisco Rudy gave up dancing to sell bonds. Of course, he couldn't do it and was rescued once more from starvation by Norman Kerry, who helped him get to Hollywood.

Couldn't Be Good Fellow

Now Norman, as everyone knows, is the most likeable fellow in the world, with a marvelous sense of humor and an endless fund of good stories. Everyone likes Norman, from the bank president to the prop boy. But when, in an effort to be popular, Rudy tried to emulate his friend, he only made himself ridiculous. When he told a joke he always forgot the point. When he slapped a fellow on the back, he antagonized instead of attracting, until he became the target of the unkind jokes of the picture colony. Being sensitive this hurt him terribly—but what did Hollywood care? He was a "Wop" and beneath their notice.

Later, after his success, the very people who looked down on him were the first to lick his boots and heap attentions and flattery on him. Rudy and I often laughed about this. I spent most of the last two years of our marriage trying to get rid of sycophants and hangers-on.

Rudy never forgot a kindness done him those days when he needed it most. To Pauline Frederick and her mother, who had championed him in his loneliness, he carried a debt of gratitude and love to the very end. He often spoke to me about them, always with a catch in his voice.

There were others who traded on this quality in him as a future means of support. These people took pains to remind him that when he was poor and unknown they had loaned him $25—which meant the return of a thousand. Rudy always gave them the money—if he had it—for he was fundamentally generous.

Russian From Salt Lake

When I first met Rudy, I was as unpopular in Hollywood as he was. The only difference was, I didn't care. What was public opinion to me? I was known as cold and unapproachable and many thought that I, too, was a foreigner. This was not true, but Hollywood always draws its own conclusions. I was born Winifred Shaughnessey in Salt Lake City, but I had been educated abroad from the age of 8 until I was 18. Then I came home and to the fury of my family joined a Russian ballet company, with whom I toured the country for three years, dancing. I was the only American in the company and my own name would have stood out on the program like a sore thumb. So I became Natacha Rambova.

During the summer layoff in California, I became art director for Metro, attached to Madame Nazimova's unit. My name, and the fact that madame and I always spoke Russian together, gave rise to the belief that I was Russian.

After Rudy became our leading man, Nazimova, he and I always spoke French at the studio. His French was as fluent as his Italian for his mother was a French woman, the daughter of a Paris surgeon. She had left her native land to marry the dashing Italian cavalry officer who became Rudy's father. Later he left the cavalry to be veterinary surgeon in the little village near Tarento where Rudy first saw the light of day in May, 1895. Rudy himself was sent to France as a youth, before he came to America, when his family despaired of keeping him out of mischief at home.

Throwback to Saracens

Rudy had a cultural background that wasn't apparent on the surface. On certain subjects he was surprisingly well read. He had a passion for history and historical novels, particularly those that dealt with mediaeval times in which he could live the adventures of the characters. "Le Cid" was one of his heroes; he adored Sabatini's books and anything that dealt with Moorish history fascinated him.

That is why he loved the role of the Sheik. The particular thing that intrigued him was the Sheik's snorting Arab horse with its silver trappings; the rich costumes and settings, the whole oriental atmosphere of the picture.

Rudy was really a "throw-back" to the Saracens, the pirate tribe of the Mediterranean who pillaged the sea coast towns. Somewhere at the root of his family tree may have been a Saracen ancestor. At least Tarento, his birthplace near the heel of Italy, had been drenched for centuries by Saracen blood.

Since Rudy and I had both grown up in Europe, speaking French and Italian, we soon found common ground for mutual friendship and understanding. We often talked of our life abroad, making happy plans to return—though at that time we did not dream we would really revisit those places together.

When work at the studio was over, Rudy often came home with me to my gay bungalow on Sunset boulevard, which boasted bedroom, bath, living room and kitchenette, to prepare himself what he called "a real Italian dinner." Before the elaborate preparations were finished it was often nearer midnight than the dinner hour, but what we lost in time we made up in good fun and sharp appetites. Sometimes June Mathis and her mother honored us at these feasts.

Soon after "Camille" was finished, came the Los Angeles opening of "The Four Horsemen." The film had already been released in New York and June Mathis had wired Rudy of its astounding ovation—but it seemed too far away to be true. After many years of hardship and struggles, the long dreamed-of success seemed still a mirage. Now both of us held our breath waiting for the momentous with medieval times in which he the picture.

When that evening came, every star in the Hollywood firmament gathered at the theater, an impressive audience. Yet many, I knew, had come to scoff and say, "I told you so!" The picture colony was skeptical. The film had been made at unheard of expense by a new, almost unknown director. With a woman at the head of it and an unknown actor in the lead, what could one expect of it? It would be the ruination of the Metro company.

During the running of the film not a sound could be heard in the theater except here and there a stifled sob as the story unfolded. About the middle of the picture Rudy reached out and took hold of my hand, which he held tightly in his own until the end. I knew he wanted to feel that there was just someone who cared and understood. We were both weeping from mingled emotions—joy at success which was now assured, and sorrow for the tragedy of the story.

It was finished. A moment of hushed silence was followed by a thunder of applause. Rudy was almost swept off his feet by the crowd who thronged to congratulate him, many of whom he did not know. It was spontaneous appreciation of a thing well done.

But his one aim was to reach the door. He wanted to be alone. I understood. During the ride to my bungalow, I don't think a word was spoken—just a brief "Good night," and he left me for his own bleak little apartment.

CHAPTER IV.

ONE picture does not make a star, as Rudy soon learned, even while Hollywood was still raving about "The Four Horsemen." The picture was a great success, but Rudy was not yet made. If he thought that now his lean days were over and he could dictate terms, he suffered a rude awakening.

About this time Rex Ingram started preparations for a new picture, "The Conquering Power," adapted by June Mathis from Balzac's Eugenie Grandet, and Rudy was asked to play the lead opposite Alice Terry. He was delighted and, in view of the wide recognition of his work in "The Four Horsemen," he asked for a $50 raise—only to be kicked out of the studio.

But Rudy, impractical young man that he was, never bothered about salary if a role appealed to him; at least, not until he found himself strapped and out of funds. Of course this was a chronic condition, so he was used to it. A little business acumen would have made things so much easier, but he didn't have any business acumen. So he was always in trouble.

The upshot of it was he took the job at his same old salary. When he started studying the script he became so absorbed in his new characterization he forgot all about his debts. Unfortunately, I couldn't.

Many amusing incidents happened during the filming of this picture. I was not on the lot myself, but I heard all about them at luncheon or dinner, for Rudy continued to take most of his meals at my bungalow near the studio.

One evening he stamped in in fury, eyes flashing, trembling with rage. Rex had insulted him! What should he do? Challenge him to a duel? In anger his thoughts always flew to a duel; his Italian ancestry cropped out with the force of a dozen Borgias; it was the only way to settle a quarrel.

Grown Children Quarrel

"But, Rudy, how did Rex insult you?" I asked when I could get in a word. At last the story came out.

Rudy had been dressed in evening clothes for the midnight entertainment scene—(he loved to wear his full dress clothes; he was so proud of them!) when, just as they were about to start shooting Rex suddenly stopped the camera and bawled Rudy out before all the extras. He was wearing a white vest when it should be a black one, or vice versa, I have forgotten. Anyway, it was not correct—Rudy, the model of the well dressed man whose effects were always impeccable! Words flew.

Rudy should know better, Rex declared, whereupon Rudy asked Rex what he knew about clothes; a trench coat was all he ever wore. More words, louder and angrier. The question was finally decided by calling in Frank Elliott, an English actor, acknowledged to be the last word in gentlemen's attire. Mr. Elliott, to Rudy's delight, pronounced him perfectly turned out.

But this was not all. From that moment on, Rex ignored his leading man completely. During the most important close-ups Rex sat cleaning his fingernails with a penknife. How could an artist act under such conditions? The matter called for a duel.

Motors More Than Love

A few weeks later the Metro company gave an official dinner to which Rudy was not invited, being only an actor, but Rex was to be a guest—and he had no evening clothes! Where should he get them? Why from Rudy, of course, for they were about of a size. At once he dispatched his assistant for the very outfit he had made such a fuss about. Rudy gave it without hesitation and couldn't understand why I laughed.

After all, the whole thing was quite natural. As I look back now I realize both men were little more than mere children, each with a great deal of talent—as well as newly acquired success. There were many such squabbles.

Now Rudy, at the time I am writing of, was without an automobile, a fact that to him was a tragedy. Motors were a fetish with him, more essential to his happiness than women. Women existed only in his romantic imagination, but a motor was something tangible; he could "race" the engine and take it apart. However, a recent calamity had deprived him of his car. This is how it happened.

With his first picture contract in his pocket and hopes of money to come, his thoughts flew at once to an automobile. How he had longed for one of his own and now at last he would have it! No time was wasted in indecision. His mind was fully made up. Nothing but a racing Mercer would satisfy his expensive tastes.

Arrangements were at last completed; he bought it on the instalment plan of so many dollars down per week, and in the joy of actual possession he was in ecstasy. But after something over $1000 had been paid down his contract, like all good things, came to an end, and with it his payments on the car. He went from studio to studio searching for work, but no producer was interested. Meanwhile he dodged the dealer as long as possible.

But the dealer knew picture people and took pains to seek out Rudy, who now was forced to acknowledge he had not a dime in the world. Immediately the hard-hearted Shylock separated Rudy from his car and the initial payments were confiscated.

"But Rudy, how dreadful!" I cried, when he told me this story. "Surely you could have done something to avoid losing the money you had already paid."

"Well, I did the best I could, didn't I?" he replied with a nonchalant shrug of his shoulders. This was always his answer.

Took, Traded Girl's Car

He had a philosophical turn of mind that permitted no regrets. He refused to worry or be unhappy about anything already past. He had "done the best he could" and that was the end of it.

Since I had a car while he had none, he promptly appropriated mine; therefore, I walked back and forth to the studio while he took the engine apart in the back yard or tried out its speed on the hills around Hollywood. He didn't mean to be selfish, but with a motor in his hands he was oblivious to everything else. It was a little Buick runabout which I had fitted out with mirrors, spotlights, canteens and such extras and I thought it quite a beauty.

But Rudy wasn't satisfied with it. You see, it wouldn't speed. As he said in disgust, "It had no pick-up." The only thing to do was to exchange the Buick for a car that would go! He knew I couldn't be satisfied with a car that took the California hills at only 50 miles an hour. The result was a perusal of secondhand shops and "sale and exchange" advertisements, while every prop boy was warned to look out for car with a pick-up. Rudy was nothing if not thorough.

One day during luncheon he phoned me he would be along in a jiffy bringing a wonderful surprise; I must wait at home for him. His arrival was announced by a series of raucous honks from the yard; and I flew to the door expecting to see the smart little sports car he had so often described. There sat Rudy, face wreathed in smiles in a 1914 model roadster on stilts, bearing faint traces of dingy blue paint, reminiscent of a bygone youth.

He must have read disappointment in my face, for at once he began to assure me the test of a good car was all in the engine and this one was beyond comparison. (Later I learned to my sorrow this was, indeed, correct.) He had tried out the pick-up on the hills and it was marvelous; at 70 it hadn't even a cough, and the cut-out—well, I must hear it! The outside of the car—a mere detail—could be made like new in a week. I must hop right in and try it with him.

Rolls-Royce of Wreck

Never was there such a salesman as Rudy! With his childish enthusiasm he could make me see things that existed only in his fertile imagination. Before we came back from the ride I was convinced we had something better than a Rolls-Royce. It ended with Rudy exchanging the new Buick for the old Cadillac, with $400 to the good, with which sum he assured me, we would soon have a car like new.

Since "The Conquering Power" was finished, he could give all his time to his new toy, and how he worked to transform the battered wreck into a handsome sports model. He fitted strong "spots" on either side of the windshield, a cigarette lighter on the driving board, and polished the nickel trimmings until they dazzled the eye. After a coat of good black paint—eggshell finish—it did not look so bad.

Hunt Held Hazards

Then our troubles began. It would suddenly stop halfway up a steep hill, which, he insisted, might happen to any powerful motor. (There was always a good reason for everything it did.) Worst of all, it ate up oil and gas faster than we could pay for it, for by then both of us were broke.

Rudy was in that lean period that always came between pictures, for he didn't know the meaning of saving, so he never had a dollar ahead. Although "The Four Horseman" had been released many months, the producers didn't realize his value and all the "possible offers" fell through, for one reason or another.

I myself was temporarily out of work through a change in Nazimova's plans and after the family jewels had been loaned to "Uncle," both of us were in a bad way.

When our appetites exceeded the icebox supply, we would resort to an early morning hunt on the old Robertson Cole ranch. These rides through the dawn fog were a delight as well as a necessity, for there was a thrill in poaching. It was out of the hunting season, and the chance of a possible arrest lent an added charm.

Once past Santa Monica the houses grew scarcer. Then we turned down the country roads where we stopped to prepare for action; brought the gun out of hiding, strapped on the cartridge belt and let down the hood of the car where Rudy sat, legs dangling over the side, while I drove. When we passed a quail or a dove I slowed down the car to a crawl while Rudy took a pop at the game. If we stopped altogether the bird flew away; if we slowed down, it paid no attention.

Escaped Game Warden

Since Rudy was a good shot and game plentiful, we soon had eight birds, the limit of our kill. Then we changed tactics and started for rabbits, which necessitated different maneuvers. We hid the car in the bushes, concealed the birds in the grass out of sight of any zealous game warden, then with guns under our arms set off across field and down ravines.

Rabbits also were plentiful for few people came this way; the ranch was seldom used even for "locations," yet though our limit for rabbits was four sometimes we had to leave before this when it grew too light for comfort.

We had several narrow escapes. One morning we had just hidden the car for our rabbit hunt when a man emerged from the trees across a near-by field and walked rapidly toward the road. We rushed for the car, hurled guns, birds and cartridges into the rear baggage compartment and drove furiously down the road.

When well out of sight we stopped for breath. Now what would we do? To avoid meeting the stranger we had driven away from Hollywood; to get home we must return the same road. We waited until it seemed safe. As we approached the danger zone we saw the man was still there, but now to stop or turn around would only arouse suspicion. We must go right on. Would he stop us? He did. We slowed down the car, hearts in our mouths, wondering who would bail us out.

"Did you pass anyone on the road with a gun?" he asked. "I heard shots."

Rudy found his voice first. Yes, we had passed a man, quite a long way back—but he hadn't noticed a gun; yet on second thought, maybe the man did have one. He turned to me; had I noticed? Not daring to trust my voice I gave an unconcerned shrug.

The man muttered "Thanks" and moved on. Needless to say, we did, too, fast and furiously.

For some time after this we decided we were rather tired of game. Our hunts were temporarily abandoned.

How often in later years we looked back with regret on those happy days! We were both poor, unknown to the world and glorying in our freedom. Days of laughter, days of dreams, of ambitious plans for the future.

For myself, I know they were the happiest days I shall ever experience in this life.

CHAPTER V.

RUDY and I wanted to be married, but we couldn't—he was married to Jean Acker, and Miss Acker was making it as difficult as possible for him to get his divorce.

It was during the filming of "The Sheik" that divorce proceedings were started and reached their peak of difficulties, so it was a trying period for us both.

This early marriage had taken place shortly after Rudy came to Hollywood—just as a lark at a party. From the first it had been a mistake, but all Hollywood, of course, was crazy—mad! People acted on impulse and regretted it later.

Rudy and Miss Acker scarcely knew each other. They had met one evening at Pauline Frederick's, planned a horseback ride together and during that ride became engaged. A few hours later Rudy sauntered into the Hollywood hotel, where he chanced to meet May Allison and Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Garger. In the exuberance of a young man in love (or who fancied himself in that romantic state) he confessed to them he was going to be married! Mr. and Mrs. Garger were planning a party next evening as a farewell to Richard Rowland, president of Metro. As a sort of fillip to the event they suggested he get his license immediately and turn their party into a wedding. Rudy, impractical and careless child that he was, agreed.

Bride for Dance Only

After the ceremony and supper they danced until 2 in the morning—when the bride unceremoniously left him.

Jean at that time was working with Fatty Arbuckle in "The Round Up," and when the disillusioned bridegroom sought her out on location next morning he found she had skipped to Los Angeles. He followed her there—only to be told she could never return to him.

Rudy left at once for New York to make tests for "The Four Horsemen" and Jean asked for an annulment. They didn't see each other again for four months.

When the amazing success of his Julio in "The Four Horsemen" changed Rudy from a penniless unknown to a rising star, with fame and fortune assured, Miss Acker changed her demands from annulment to separation with alimony. But Rudy fought this and asked for divorce, for in the meantime he and I had met.

He continued to pay dearly for this mistake of his youth even after the divorce was granted and our own marriage legalized. Later, when the very name of Rudolph Valentino stood for magic box office receipts, Jean Acker made a vaudeville tour as Mrs. Rudolph Valentino, which brought financial difficulties. Rudy did not feel that a few hours of marriage qualified her to the use of that title.

But I am getting ahead of my story:

After Rudy and I became engaged (while he was still far from famous and his name meant nothing at the box office) I chose a painless way of breaking the news to my mother, Mrs. Richard Hudnut. Mother at that time was in New York, about to sail for Europe. I wrote suggesting she go to see "The Four Horsemen" and write me what she thought of it. Her reply was full of enthusiasm for the young man it starred, Rudolph Valentino. Who was he? She had never heard of him.

Modern Parents Obey

She and Mr. Hudnut had scarcely reached Paris when I sent them a cable announcing my engagement to Mr. Valentino, demanding their congratulations. They replied at once with the desired word, saying they were modern, well-trained parents, who never disobeyed their children.

I could always trust mother's sense of humor to carry her over any crisis.

This was in May, 1921. The following October my parents returned to their San Francisco home, stopping en route in Hollywood to see me and meet their prospective son-in-law. I can best describe my mother's reactions to this visit by quoting her own account of it, as recorded in a letter she wrote my aunt.

"Natacha," she wrote, "had often written me glowingly of the beautiful bungalow she had furnished from her own earnings as Mme. Nazimova's art director. From her descriptions of this cinema home I had pictured it as something to compare favorably with the John Jacob Astor mansion.

"Natacha met us at the station at 7 in the evening with word that Rudy was still on location, but would dine with us at 8. As we drove along Sunset boulevard, we stopped at what I thought was an empty lot. But——

"'Come along,' said Natacha gayly, 'this is home!'"

"In the darkness we could scarcely find our way, for from the sidewalk we went down several steps along a narrow path that led to the "mansion," which proved to be so diminutive I mistook it for the garage. Here Natacha rang a bell and the door was opened by a neat little maid.

Closets Called Rooms

"We now entered a two-by-four that appeared to be divided into four closets, called rooms. The front room was large enough for four people—if they edged in properly. The rug, a creation of brilliant modern color and design, was painted on the floor. Four kitchen chairs painted red, a small sofa in modern chintz, two small sofa tables, which held lamps in gay paper shades, and red book cases that once had been packing boxes, comprised the unique furnishings of this room.

"I now entered a room at my right, the windows of which were small and curtained to the sills in mauve taffeta; the floor was covered with a black carpet. A kitchen table painted black, with a mirror top, stood at one side of the room. Upon it were two glass-bead baskets filled with glass-bead flowers, such as one sees by thousands in Italian cemeteries. On the other side stood what, at first glance, looked like an oblong black basket, with a small taffeta chair on either side. Having neither head nor foot, one could only guess what it might be. The room reminded me of a chapel in a morgue, but Natacha explained it was her bedroom.

"As I entered her white porcelain bathroom I encountered a snarling lion cub. 'This is Zela,' said Natacha; when I had stopped screaming: 'Rudy and I bought her at the zoo. Her claws are clipped and she wouldn't hurt a baby'—and she fondled the beast lovingly. She explained the cub was the constant companion of Rudy and herself, but always locked up when they had guests.

"I was then taken through the tiny kitchen to the garage to meet the rest of the family, two enormous Great Dane pups, an engagement present from Rudy. Right now they were suffering from rickets, since their mistress had tried to make them good vegetarians.

"We entered the house just as Rudy arrived for dinner. I saw a slender, boyish, athletic-looking young Adonis with dark, fervent, romantic eyes and a frank, honest smile that won my heart. In accordance with Italian custom, he embraced both Mr. Hudnut and myself, kissing us affectionately on both cheeks. It was impossible not to love this impulsive, naive child.

"The kitchen table was now brought into the living room and we sat down to a delicious meal."

Such was mother's description of the little bungalow where Rudy and I passed such happy days together!

Perhaps it was too full of animals for the average person's liking, but with Rudy and me it was a case of "Love me, love my dog!" We both adored animals of every kind; one of our cherished ambitions was to have a real zoo of our own. We passed hours laying out plans for the one we would build the minute we could afford it.

Wanted Cub for Pet

Whenever we could we would pass the day at one of the zoos around Los Angeles. The old Selig zoo was a favorite haunt, but most of all we enjoyed visiting Curley Stecker, head animal trainer on the old Universal lot. Curley spun us yarns by the hour of his hairbreadth escapes from animals he had encountered in the jungle and on the lot. He always took us to call on Joe Martin, the famous chimpanzee of Universal comedies, and Ethel, the tame lioness who always looked so fierce on the screen. Curley would put Ethel through her tricks and then take us to see Tom, Dick and Harry, the three big lions, fed.

One day Curley explained he had a special treat for us, and took us across the lot to the leopard cages. There in the end cage he showed us four adorable lion cubs, just six weeks old. Rudy and I shrieked for joy and insisted we must buy one, immediately.

Curley flatly refused at first. Lions, he said, were not playthings. Even in their infancy they had a will of their own and were anything but friendly. But we declined to take no for an answer, so Curley, after much protesting, went in search of a box while we chose our cub.

This was our introduction to the "snarling lion cub" whom mother encountered in my bathroom.

Crawling, spitting and yowling, we boarded Zela in her cage and deposited her in the automobile, while Curley, predicting disaster, declared we'd bring her back by the end of the week. But he didn't know Rudy and me!

Poor Curley! He has long since passed on, the victim of one of his own lions.

Arrived at the bungalow, our first problem was to clip our young spitfire's nails. This we managed by means of a gag, then Rudy christened her in soapsuds in the bathtub. After that we set her free and the fun began.

Such rage I have never seen in one so young. She howled and pranced and strutted. But alas! She had been shorn of her power to scratch back. We only laughed at her.

Kept Love for Master

Zela had an outstanding personality with plenty of temperament (or temper) and pride. She refused to be patronized but she could stand a lot of affection. When Rudy was sitting quietly reading on the couch, she would crawl up on his lap to be petted and caressed, like the great kitten she was. She became devoted to us both, particularly to Rudy, whom she followed about like an adoring puppy.

The trouble with Zela, she grew up too fast. At the age of 4 months she had a huge yawning mouth with great leonine fangs, and an annoying habit of opening the catches on windows and doors and sauntering down the street. These afternoon strolls caused such consternation that my indignant neighbors protested. Zela, they declared, would have to go!

Heartbroken at the thought of parting with her, Rudy and I decided to board her out with Nell Shipman's trainer on her ranch 30 miles from Los Angeles. The last time we saw her was some four months later, just before Miss Shipman and all her animals left for Oregon to make some films. Rudy and I drove out there to bid Zela a tearful farewell.

The trainer warned us to avoid her cage; she had grown very treacherous and would not remember us, and, to distract our attention, he led us off to see some new baby bears. While I was playing with them I suddenly discovered Rudy had disappeared. I called, but he did not answer, so I went in search of him.

I found him inside Zela's cage, sitting on the floor, talking to her, calling her all the old baby names; while Zela, now almost full grown, crouched fiercely in the farthest corner, glowering at him doubtfully. Then slowly she crawled toward him on her tummy, as I had seen her do so often in the olden days when she wanted to be loved. Then devotedly she put her head on his knees, letting out yowls of pleasure.

With tears streaming down his face Rudy sat there, fondling her, talking to her until the trainer made him leave. We never saw Zela again.

Obstinate Stoppers.

Put a few drops of sweet oil around the glass stopper of the perfume bottle when it sticks and place a lighted match close enough to warm the bottle. When warm, strike the stopper gently with a stick wrapped in a cloth. After a few gentle blows and turnings, the most obstinate stopper will yield.

A Refrigerator Hint

If you are spending money for ice in your refrigerator you should receive the utmost value in this. Many housewives do not get this because they check the cooling process of the ice by keeping foods in the ice compartment. This section of the refrigerator is intended for ice alone. No food should be kept there excepting the baby's and children's milk.

Another mistake often made by housekeepers is wrapping the ice in newspaper or covering it with crash. It does lower the ice bill, but it also lowers the cooling capacity of the ice and the food compartment will not reach the low temperature necessary to perfect refrigerator service.

The stems of watercress are good unless very large and coarse.

New Plaster.

Newly plastered walls should stand from eight to 10 weeks before being painted or papered, and even longer if the weather proves damp. A successful job cannot be done over plaster that is not thoroughly dried out.

There was little in the day's news influence price movements. Copr statistics for March were again favorable, and the red metal ises dragged around the low levels the year. It will be a year on esday since the 18 cents a pound ice for copper was put into efct, with opinion still divided over e ability of the producers to aintain that level. Private disatches from Youngstown indicated at an upturn in steel mill activi y was likely in that center next eek.

Utilities in Lead.

Public Utilities, which have been source of many merger rumors recent weeks, some of them died, again led the market in oint of activity. TOKIO STOCK EXCHANGE REOPENS; TRADING ORDERLY Yesterday's Closing and Stampede of Selling Attributed to Opponents of Administration.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, April 12.—The Tokio Stock Exchange reopened today after a one-day suspension. Trading was orderly and prices steady.

A stampede of selling yesterday, which led to wild scenes in the exchange and subsequent suspension, was characterized by Cabinet members as a result of manipulation by opponents of the administration.

Exchange officials announced a one-hour suspension yesterday when a bear trend first became evident. A near panic followed reopening and all trading for the day was called off.
